It's winter?

No major problems on New Year's Eve

By COURTNEY E. PACE

New Year's Eve can be a rowdy night with people partying and drinking the night away, but it can also be a typical night with not much out of the ordinary going on.

It appears this year's holiday was a quiet one.

Charlevoix City Police Chief Dennis Halverson said patrols were stepped up, but no arrests were made for drunk driving.

"For all practical purposes it was relatively uneventful," he said.

There were some miscellaneous traffic violations and other minor events. The biggest event was assisting the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department with a fight that broke out at the Flight Deck.

Sheriff George T. Lasater said the fight at the Flight Deck ended with the arrest of a woman who was charged with disturbing the peace and assault and battery.

Aside from the excitement at the Flight Deck, Lasater said the sheriff's department made a few other arrests, including one person charged with being a minor in possession of alcohol and three people charged with drunk driving.

Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority Member John Yaroeh thinks it's time someone took a leadership role in helping create a thriving business district in the city and he has a few ideas on how to do that.

At the Wednesday Downtown Development Authority meeting, Yaroeh presented his main idea to the group of creating a task force whose sole purpose is to create a vibrant and healthy downtown for Charlevoix. He said this group could come up with various events designed to bring more people to the downtown area, as well as provide support for promoting the downtown area and bringing in and creating new business.

"Things are not going to correct themselves, so someone has got to provide leadership," Yaroeh said.

He added, "I think we have to start somewhere. That somewhere is recognizing a need."

Yaroeh said a task force would help find a way to improve the downtown area, which is facing difficulties. He said the downtown was more viable 30 years ago; now there needs to be a better mix of stores, more restaurants and affordable housing to bring workers in.

As an example on how the community is losing its downtown, Yaroeh pointed to the demolition of the Parkside restaurant about six years ago. The restaurant was located near the current Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce on the shores of Round Lake. However, the city bought the building and tore it down to make more park space.

"When we eliminated the Parkside from the downtown, we eliminated 200 to 400 people from coming to town for waterside dining," he said.

He added, "We have to make changes in the way we do business."

Some of the suggestions a task force could look at Yaroeh said would be concerts and band festivals in East Park, classic car nights, classic boat nights, bike nights, film festivals, farmer's markets each week, shuffleboard tournaments, a winter carnival and boat races.

The goal is to use the existing amenities in the community, while at

District Court

The following cases were heard recently in the 90th District Court for Charlevoix County:

Amanda Lynn Diaz, 17, Charlevoix. Operator no license. Fines and costs totaling $200.

Richard Henry Towns Jr., 21, Boyne City. Operator's license suspended/revoked/denied/allow and traffic violation no proof of insurance and no proof of registration. Fines and costs totaling $260.

Matthew Daniel Macnaughton, 19, Boyne City. Minor in possession of alcohol, first offense and disturbing the peace. Six months probation; 30 days in jail, five days of community service work in lieu of five days in jail, 25 days held in abeyance, must attend substance abuse classes, $150 in fines and costs.

Daniel C. Knollman, 30, Charlevoix. Operator no license. Fines and costs totaling $200.

Cancer group to have organizational meeting

Interested persons are invited to attend a brief organizational meeting of the Circle of Strength Cancer Resource Center at 5:45 p.m. on Monday, Jan. 10.

The meeting will be in the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation Office located at 14634 Park Avenue in Charlevoix.

"We are looking for volunteers interested in helping to sew hats and quilts for cancer patients, as well as those who would like to be involved in other parts of our program," Diane Gorkiewicz with the Circle of Strength said. "We have opportunities for knitters, crochet masters, quilters and anyone who wants to help and maybe learn a few things along the way."

Kim Stevens, also with Circle of Strength, said, "Volunteers don't have to commit a lot of hours, they can set their own time schedule. We are looking forward to strengthening our circle even more and need volunteers to achieve that."

Those interested in helping with this project or with others may call the Circle of Strength office at 547-8950 for additional information or to inquire about other ways they can assist.

Callers may leave a message if there is no answer and they will

Jarema sworn in as new prosecutor

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

John Jarema has officially been sworn in as the county's new prosecuting attorney.

In a circuit court ceremony packed with supporters Monday, Jarema took the oath of office as given to him by judge Richard Pajtas. Jarema thanked the voters, his wife and the supporters for the opportunity to serve the county.

"I will do the best I can every day," he said.

Afterwards Jarema said it felt wonderful to finally step into the prosecutor's office as the prosecutor and he is looking forward to getting in the courtroom. In fact, Jarema said he was going to take on his

In last week's edition of the Charlevoix Courier, a story about the Charlevoix City Council going forward with plans for a $1.5 million building at the airport to house machinery, councilman Sherm Chamberlain should have been quoted saying the building will cost $40,000 after grants are applied to the bill.

Staff writer has plan to help American troops

Courtney E. Pace

Staff writer

When a loved one is deployed overseas emotions can run high and a feeling of powerlessness can set in. The ones deployed can feel estranged from home and adrift in a situation they can't control.

These experiences are normal in a time of war, which has reached into families in the tiniest towns and largest cities. The war in Iraq is like cancer, everyone knows someone affected by it.

However, no one has to feel disconnected or powerless against the mighty machine of war.

Charlevoix Courier Classified Manager Valerie Pedersen and I have created a group that will band together and help those who are overseas get the supplies they need and the attention they deserve.

Operation Soldier Awareness and Aid Packages (OSAAP) is a way to connect soldiers abroad and loved ones at home. It is also meant to help those who may not have someone cheering them on at home to feel appreciated.

One person can make a difference, but that difference has to start at home. The idea behind OSAAP is to use our local soldiers as contacts to send care packages, letters and support overseas.

Since the government won't allow for "any soldier" packages anymore, the plan is to use the actual names of local soldiers who can receive the packages. From there, they will hand out needed supplies and letters to those in their unit.

So far, all of the local people that we have an address for are stationed at different bases and camps, which means more soldiers can be helped through our local heroes.

My boyfriend, Sgt. Courtney J. Middleton, is going to be stationed in Kuwait for about 60 days while his unit receives more training. From there, there's no telling where the Army will station him in Iraq.

Valerie's son, Sgt. Sean Roberts, is currently overseas for his third tour in Iraq and is stationed at Camp Cuervo in Baghdad. He is in the midst of what is going on and knowing where he is doesn't make it any easier.

Both men receive much love and attention from home, but there are members of their units and other units who aren't so fortunate.

How would it feel to be in a country, far away from home and dealing with a hostile situation? How would it feel to not have someone back home to write and share experiences with?

This is the reality many soldiers are facing and Valerie and I would like to remedy the situation.

I am going to write several letters by hand that Courtney, Sean and the other local soldiers can pass out to anyone who may need a piece of home.

Iraq has divided the country before, during and after the election, but let's not forget those who are over there and facing the ultimate sacrifice.

We can't let Iraq become another Vietnam. Our soldiers need not feel adrift amongst the political mayhem that surrounds them.

Through OSAAP, the hope is that those soldiers won't feel forgotten and can spread the feeling of home to others they come in contact with.

No one needs to be forgotten in this war or any other. Veterans served their country and need to be remembered. These young men and women are going to be the next generation of veterans and let's not wait until they come home to support them.

Donation boxes will be available at several Charlevoix locations including Stafford's Weathervane, the Charlevoix Public Library, the Coast Guard station, the Veterans Affairs office and the Charlevoix Courier.

Donations can include anything such as DVDs, CDs, games, feminine hygiene products, feminine and masculine skin care products, deodorant, toothbrushes, toothpaste, floss, insect repellent wipes, miniature tape recorders and tapes, snacks, breakfast type foods and drinks, bottled water, canned soups, ready to eat chicken and tuna kits, dried fruit, nuts, eye drops, film, cameras and much more.

Monetary donations can be made at the Charlevoix Courier or the Charlevoix County Veterans Affairs Office. These donations will be used to purchase anything needed for a particular package to make things even.

Other items such as Beanie Babies, small toys and older coats and shoes are also welcome as soldiers like to hand them out to the young Iraqi children.

For more information on OSAAP contact me at 675-7394 or e-mail me at CourtneyEPace@hotmail.com or contact Valerie at 547-2968 or e-mail her at vpedersen@charlevoixcourier.com.

The first meeting of OSAAP will be at 5:30 p.m. on Jan. 7 at the Charlevoix Public Library and all are welcome to attend.

Courtney E. Pace is a staff writer for the Charlevoix Courier.

Reps' office hours

Residents of Antrim, Charlevoix, Otsego and most of Cheboygan counties with questions, concerns or needing assistance with state programs can contact newly-elected state Rep. Kevin Elsenheimer at his Lansing office.

"I'm looking forward to making seamless transition from Ken Bradstreet's term to mine for the people of the 105th District," said Elsenheimer, R-Bellaire.

"I'm keeping Brian Mills and Dan Dundas as my office staff, and I'm using as much of the previous office contact information as I can to make it easy for everyone."

The office mailing address and toll free, main office and fax telephone number remain the same.

U.S. mail can be addressed to Elsenheimer at the State Capitol, P.O. Box 30014, Lansing, MI 48909-7514; the toll free Lansing office telephone number is (877) 536-4105; the direct phone line is (517) 373-0829 and faxes may be sent to (517) 373-1841.

E-mail can be sent to kevinelsenheimer@house.mi.gov and residents may also contact Elsenheimer and access valuable government information via the lawmaker's online office Web site at www.gophouse.com/elsenheimer.htm.

Calling for peace

Every Friday from noon to 1 p.m. several people stand on Bridge Street as a symbol of peace. (from left) Christa-Maria, JoAnne Bier Beemon, Sydney King, Joseph King and Meg McClorey take part in the Women in Black peace movement. Beemon and Christa-Maria said the movement began 15 to 20 years ago when an Israeli and Palestinian woman started a vigil for peace together in Jerusalem. It is now spread all over the world. The Charlevoix group has been doing it for about three years.

Read to your child at the Charlevoix library

It's never too early to read to your baby.

The Charlevoix Public Library is offering an opportunity for you and your small child. Lap Sit at the library is a way to introduce your child to the world of books, reading and the library.

Lap Sit is a program designed for children 18 months to 35 months old. The Lap Sit program brings parent and child to the library to enjoy 20 minutes of a mixture of stories, songs and poems.

The different types of literature are introduced through a variety of media including traditional books, storyboards, flannel boards, puppets and music.

"Researchers have shown that reading is an excellent way to foster language development," Val Meyerson, library director, said.

Lap Sit is at 10:05 a.m. every Thursday and follows the same schedule as the Charlevoix Public Schools. If there is an older sibling, bring him/her along as well, because traditional story hour is from 10:30 - 11:15 a.m.

"This is a wonderful opportunity for your pre-school child to experience the library while you are upstairs with your toddler," Amy Spegele, youth services assistant, said.

For further information, please contact Spegele at 547-2651.

Quit smoking clinic offered

Are you ready to kick the cigarette habit? Charlevoix Area Hospital's Freedom from Smoking program can give you the tools, techniques and motivation to quit for good.

Offered in cooperation with the American Lung Association, Freedom from Smoking is a lively, interactive, step-by-step program with a proven track record.

A new, eight-week series of classes will begin at 3:30 p.m., Tuesday, Jan. 11 at the hospital. There is no charge for this clinic.

Each week participants will learn how to break the nicotine habit; get practical tips for handling stress, maintaining weight, and making changes in daily routines; and receive plenty of encouragement and support as they adjust to their post-smoking life. Space in the classes is limited. To register, please call Charlevoix Area Hospital's Freedom from Smoking coordinator, Michelle Potter, at (231) 547-8672.

VFW fire declared accidental

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The Veteran's of Foreign Wars Post 1153 fire investigation is coming to a close.

Spl./Sgt. Jerry Briolat of the Fire Investigation Unit of the Michigan Department of State Police, said the investigation will close as an accidental fire.

"There's nothing more we'll be doing," he said.

Briolat said he and the private fire investigator from the VFW Post 1153's insurance company both agree that it was an accidental fire and not arson, which was a popular thought when the fire occurred.

The fire occurred on Dec. 10 at 2 a.m. and took the Charlevoix Township Fire Department about two hours to get under control. No one was hurt in the process and no one was inside the building at the time, however it completely destroyed the building.

The VFW Post 1153 was vandalized during the night between Nov. 18 and Nov. 19, when four rocks were thrown through two different windows.

The rocks broke through the 48 inch by 41 inch windows and storm windows and created about $1,000 worth of damage including cleanup costs.

The only other problem the post had in regards to vandalism was five years ago when the building was broken into during a string of break-ins in the area. That incident cost the post about $10,000 worth in damage and those responsible were prosecuted.

Briolat said in a previous interview that the fire originated in the attic, which is an unusual place for an arsonist to start a fire. Recently, when Briolat was able to investigate the remains of the building he didn't find anything to support an arson theory.

"When inside, I found some really good distinct burn patterns to support an attic fire," he said.

Briolat said in a previous interview that two people accessed the building during the afternoon and early evening on the day of the fire. One person came in at 3 p.m. and another at 5 p.m., but neither person stayed long and everything was locked up when firefighters arrived.

He said in a previous interview that one of the highest probabilities is an electrical failure, since the fire originated near the building's electrical panel. However, there is no way to prove or disprove that it was an electrical fire because of the amount of damage.

The distinct burn patterns Briolat discovered were visible above the electrical service panel, in the same vicinity the fire originated.

Briolat said the building can probably be rebuilt about the same size with insurance money, but was told

"When inside, I found some really good burn patterns to support an attic fire."

Jerry Briolat, of the Michigan State Police Fire Investigation Unit

the biggest hit the post has taken is losing their Friday night Bingo games.

The home of VFW Post 1153 was formally dedicated in 1953 during the 13th District Rally. Before that time, the post and its auxiliary functioned out of the second floor of a building in downtown Charlevoix.

VFW Post 1153 received its charter on June 16, 1937 and has continuously served the community. The building that became the post's home in 1953 took two years to build and was constructed almost entirely by volunteer labor, including the plumbing and wiring.

The only feature that wasn't built by volunteers was the Onaway stone fireplace and other stone work. The volunteers also didn't dig the well.

A second edition was added in the 1970s followed by a garage addition in the 1990s.

Currently, the VFW Post 1153 is accepting any donations that come their way.

Charlie Butcher, commander of Post 1153, said in a previous interview that the insurance will only cover some of the costs and the rest have to be generated.

Some of the items that were lost were ceremonial rifles and flags and a speaker system. Some of these small details are what made the post a home to many veterans and not just another building.

Women's ski tour coming to Charlevoix

Celebrate women, winter and chocolate on Feb. 27.

Active Women Now, Inc. a non-profit organization will host The Second Annual Charlevoix Ladies Tour, a weekend of fun and activities that will take the winter blues out of northern Michigan.

Active Women Now, Inc. has ski tours in Michigan and the United States, celebrating the camaraderie that women hold in empowering one another while giving back to their community. This non-competitive winter event for women will be at the Charlevoix Elementary School and the trails will weave through Mount McSaubia.

Novice winter activists are encouraged to attend.

Ski clinics will be given on Feb. 26 for beginners and those who are looking to cultivate their skills.

A wine and cheese event will be at Castle Farms as a prelude to the Charlevoix Ladies Tour. Log onto the Women's Ski Tour web site for more information.

Tickets in advance are $35 and include all the chocolate, goodies and fun you can hold in one day. Proceeds from the Charlevoix Ladies Tour benefits BASES and the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan.

Obituaries

Bruce A. Green: Oct. 26, 1920 - Dec. 31, 2004

Bruce A. Green, 84, of Bay Shore, died Dec. 31, 2004 at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey.

Visitation was at the First Presbyterian Church of Bay Shore, on Tuesday, Jan. 4, 2005. A memorial service followed with the Pastor Ward Potts officiating. Interment will be at Greenwood Cemetery, in Petoskey, at a future date.

Bruce was born Oct. 26, 1920, in Boyne City, the son of Clifford and Bertha (Holton) Green. He married Margaret Eileen "Deenie" Zipp on Jan. 31, 1942. Bruce served as Master Seargant in the U. S. Army Signal Corps during World War II. He and his wife Margaret were proprietors of Green's Grocery Store in Bay Shore for 17 years.

Bruce was also an electrician and was proud to be a lifetime member of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. Bruce had many friends during his lifetime and most recently enjoyed camaraderie at the Emmet County Friendship Center in Petoskey.

Bruce is survived by daughters, Janelle (Jim) Sisserson of Melbourne, Fla., and Shelly (Joseph) VanWart of Bay Shore; grandchildren, James "Alex" Sisserson, Shelly "Alexis" Burrie and Andrew James VanWart; sister, Donna Kirby of Boyne City; numerous nieces and nephews.

His wife Margaret Eileen preceded him in death, as did his parents, brother Lyle, and sisters Georgia and Vivian.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be directed to the Emmet County Friendship Center, or First Presbyterian Church of Bay Shore.

Winchester Funeral Home, in Charlevoix, is serving the family.

Estella Mitchell: Died Dec. 27, 2004

Estella Mitchell devoted her highly capable 95 years to being useful-teaching, nursing and traveling.

She died quietly the evening of Dec. 27, 2004 in Ann Arbor.

Estella had explored most of the world's countries, particularly excited by Central America and Russia with its full employment and spanking clean streets.

She spent most of her life in Michigan, but was born in Maplewood, Mo. on Memorial Day, 1909. As a child, she thought that national celebration was for her birthday.

Estella will be remembered for her teaching in Flint and Pontiac schools, as visiting public health nurse and nursing supervisor in Monroe and Oakland counties and at St. Joseph's Hospital in Pontiac.

Upon retirement, she worked summers at an Indian reservation near Green Bay, Wis. and volunteered for 20 years at the Ann Arbor Red Cross.

An outstanding and determined student at a time when few women went to college, she earned her way through Northwestern University during the Great Depression, working as a nanny and maid, and she also sent home money to her widowed mother and younger brother. Later she taught in Flint for several years, but when the war came, she said she "wanted to be useful" and went to John Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore for a masters in nursing.

Part of an understaffed profession in World War II, nurses received responsibility quickly and Estella supervised the night shifts while studying. Afterward she moved to New York City for several years to work as visiting nurse with the Henry Street Public Health Nursing Facility in Harlem.

She loved spending summers waitressing at the Beach Hotel in Charlevoix where she met such interesting people.

She is survived by many friends; a cousin, Marie Mitchell Hayes, in Kenilworth, Ill.; and her brother's widow, Joan Mitchell, in Kenosha, Wis.

A memorial will be from 2-4 p.m., Tuesday, Feb. 1, at Glacier Hills in Ann Arbor. For information call (734)769-6410, ext. 1.

In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to John Hopkins Hospital (Nursing Unit) or Northwestern University.

Final burial will be off her birthday, Memorial Day, 2005, in her family plot near Silver Lake, Wis.

Michael Craig Cooper, 38, formerly of Charlevoix passed away unexpectedly Dec. 30, 2004 at his home in Anderson, Ind.

Michael was born Oct. 29, 1966 in Petoskey, the son of Robert and Irene (Lepinski) Cooper. He was a 1984 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

Michael had a passion for music and played with several bands in both Charlevoix and Indiana. He was a very talented singer, songwriter and guitarist.

Survivors include a son Draven Bryan of Indianapolis, Ind.; his mother, Irene E. Cooper of Charlevoix; a sister, Susan Cooper of Charlevoix; a brother, Steven Cooper of Farmington Hills; two nieces, Kristina and Nikole; his fiancé, Melissa Freestone and her two sons, Wyatt and Austin.

Michael was preceded in death by his father, Robert C. Cooper of Charlevoix.

A memorial service will be planned for the spring.

Lily Chou to perform at Crooked Tree Arts Center

Crooked Tree Arts Center will host pianist Lily Chou in concert at 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 14 in the Ross Stokes Theatre.

Chou has been many things in her life, mother, musician, missionary and, earlier this year, the first female minister at Smith Chapel United Methodist Church in Mount Olive, N.C.

Chou and her sister, Irene, happened to stop by the Crooked Tree Arts Center this past summer and were regaled with all that executive director Dale Hull had to say about the activities here. They also fell in love with Petoskey, calling it the "Beverly Hills of Michigan."

They hope to retire to Petoskey within a few years.

Chou learned to play the piano as a small child, taking lessons until she was 10 years old, then playing on her own until she came to the United States for college.

She is a graduate of Juilliard and has performed in the Tchaikovsky International Competition in Moscow in 1986, the Scheveningen International Competition in the Netherlands in 1989 and in Tchaikovsky and Rachmaninoff Halls in Russia. She's performed with orchestras from the Urals to Kazakhstan, with nine orchestras in China, Salzburg and the United States.

Tickets for the performance are $15 each and can be purchased at the Crooked Tree Arts Center.

Ice rink in early East Park plans

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The current ice skating rink, located in the grassy field across from Charlevoix Middle School, may not be the only place for long.

Along with plans to create a new marina, there are also plans to renovate East Park that would include a plan for an ice rink in the park.

The plan for a place to ice skate in East Park isn't new, but never came to fruition the first time around.

City Manager Michael Wiesner said the original idea was to have a natural ice skating rink in East Park. However, they had some trouble, which caused the rink to never be completed.

Wiesner said there were old building foundations that caused problems and the city hit some voids and couldn't build the rink.

Also, Wiesner said the air temperature was a concern in order to keep the rink frozen. He said Round Lake may have been causing the warm temperature.

The city had a liner that was going to be the bottom level of the rink, but Wiesner said it may have been damaged. However, its usefulness isn't what it should be.

"Unless you have an area that is totally flat, it isn't as effective," he said. "We haven't been using it the last few years."

With current East Park renovation plans, Wiesner said the initial concept of a new ice skating rink has been to install an artificial rink.

Hugh Mason, chairman of the Downtown Development Authority, said the renovation plans are in their preliminary stages.

Right now, the DDA is planning to see if it is feasible to have some sort of cooling system that would allow the rink to stay frozen when a natural rink would melt.

Mason said the weather was a problem the first time a rink was attempted to be built in East Park.

He said the liner is something that would keep the water from absorbing into the ground.

No matter what the ideas are, Mason said everything is too early to tell.

"It is far from a definite plan," he said.

CHARLEVOIX TOWNSHIP NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

A public hearing will be held by the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission on January 26, 2005 at 7:30 p.m. at the Township Hall, located at 12491 Waller Road, to take public comments on proposed Amendments to the Township Zoning Ordinance. The following language in bold face font represents the proposed amendments:

1. Amend Article V, Section 5.2 E. 1., Change one-family-dwelling minimum lot area from 15,000 to 12,000 Square Feet.
2. Amend Article V, Section 5.6 B. Permitted Principal Uses. Land and buildings in the C Commercial District shall be used only for the following purposes, provided no single-tenant occupancy exceeds a footprint area of 20,000 square feet and the
3. Amend Article V, Section 5.6 C. Uses Permitted with Special Conditions. Land and buildings permitted with special conditions shall be used for the following purposes, provided no single tenant occupancy exceeds a footprint area of 20,000 square feet, the
4. Amend Article V, 5.6 D. Uses Permitted by Special Use Permit. Add the following: 5. Single tenant occupancies exceeding a footprint of 20,000 square feet. No single tenant occupancy shall exceed a footprint area of 90,000 square feet.
5. Amend Article VIII Special Land Uses, Section 8.3 F. 4. b. 4). Change the size of large buildings from 2,000 to 20,000 square feet.
6. Amend Article VIII Special Land Uses, Section 8.3 to add Subsection H as follows:

H. Single Tenant Occupancies Exceeding a Footprint Area of 20,000 Square Feet in the C Commercial District. In addition to the General Standards listed in Section 8.2 A of this Ordinance, the following conditions shall apply:

1. Purpose. The purposes of this Section are to satisfy the purposes and intents of the Township Master Plan which are to insure that large buildings and occupancies: fit the small town character and appearance of the community, do not become a blighting influence, are more readily able to be reused if abandoned, and do not adversely impact existing businesses, the community, or the neighborhood.
2. Design Standards.

a. Building Placement.

- 1) Buildings shall have a well-defined front facade with entrances facing the street. They shall be aligned so that the dominant lines of their facades parallel the line of the street.
- 2) The relationships between buildings and the street shall be parallel or perpendicular rather than oblique or diagonal. Front facades shall be parallel to the street with major roof ridges either parallel or perpendicular to the street.
- 3) New buildings and additions to existing buildings shall maintain and continue the "street wall" created by adjacent buildings.

b. Architecture.

- 1) Buildings or parts of buildings facing onto public spaces and streets, including canopies for accessory facilities, shall have peaked roofs with a slope of at least 8:12, except that hip roofs with a slope of at least 4:12 and flat roofs that are hidden by a raised cornice shall also be permitted.
- 2) Windows shall be vertically proportioned and balanced on facades, with width to height ratios ranging from 1:2 to 3:5. Horizontal windows may be used just below roof eaves ("eyebrow" windows) and as first-floor display windows.
- 3) Trademark architecture, which identifies a specific company by building design features, shall be prohibited, unless the applicant can demonstrate that the design is compatible with the historic architecture of Charlevoix.
- 4) Large buildings shall be broken up to provide the appearance of smaller volumes consistent with the use and building proportions found in the region's traditional architecture. Generally, facades facing a street shall have the appearance of several vertical buildings attached side by side.
- 5) Buildings shall have windows and doors at street level, on the street sides of the building, to encourage pedestrian traffic and commercial activity.
- 6) No buildings shall have more than 15 horizontal feet of wall facing the street without a window or door opening.
- 7) Building materials for the exterior walls of all new buildings that are visible from a street shall be wood, brick, stone or similar materials traditionally used in the Charlevoix area. Building walls and structures that are not visible from a street shall be constructed of wood, stone, brick, concrete block, metal, and similar materials.
- c. Lighting. Lighting within parking lots shall be on low poles of 12 feet to 15 feet maximum height, with color-corrected lamps and cut-off luminaires designed to minimize glare and light pollution. Design of poles and luminaires shall be compatible with the style of the architecture and adjoining streetscape treatment. Sidewalks leading from parking lots shall be lit with bollard lighting and indirect illumination of buildings and vegetation.
- d. Landscaping. Minimum three-inch caliper shade trees, measured at breast height, shall be provided along all streets and pedestrian ways at intervals averaging twenty feet on each side. Existing trees, lawns and shrubs shall be preserved to the extent practical. Landscaping shall not be required as buffers between uses unless the uses are determined by the Planning Commission to be incompatible.
- e. Access and Connections. Access shall be provided in accordance with the Access Management requirements of Section 3.18 of this Ordinance.
- f. Sidewalks. Sidewalks or defined walkways shall be provided leading from parking lots and along streets.
- g. Parking and Loading.
- 1) The Planning Commission may reduce the off-street parking and loading requirements of Article VI if the applicant can demonstrate that full compliance is unnecessary because of the characteristics of the proposed use, the availability of shared or public parking, or other circumstances. The Planning Commission may also consider "proof of parking" in lieu of finished parking improvements provided the applicant agrees in writing to provide parking when it is deemed to be needed by the Commission.
- 2) On-street parking and shared parking shall be encouraged where feasible.
- 3) Parking lots shall be located to the rear and side of buildings, and shall be laid out to minimize visibility from existing streets, wherever possible. Parking in front of a building shall consist of no more than one bay width or sixty (60) feet.
- 4) Rear parking lots shall be connected to adjoining parking lots and side streets, if any, and shall have clearly delineated pedestrian paths leading to the sidewalks along the street.

3. Additional Requirements For Buildings Exceeding a Footprint Area of 50,000 Square Feet. The following shall be required:

- a. Market Feasibility Study. A retail market study shall accompany the application that indicates the potential of the market to accommodate the project and the impact of the proposed project on existing retail businesses in the Charlevoix market area.
- b. Traffic Study. A traffic impact study shall accompany the application indicating the effects of the proposed development on the level of service of all existing and proposed intersections within one mile of the project and how traffic impacts will be mitigated.
- c. Adaptability For Reuse Plan. The building design for a retail use shall demonstrate how the building is designed for adaptation to a multi-tenant building in the event of the abandonment of the single tenant occupancy. The design may include, but is not limited to, compartmentalized construction, including plumbing, electrical, service, heating, ventilation, air conditioning and wall placement. The plans shall also demonstrate how the exterior of the building can be divided into separate tenancies, facades can be adapted to separate entrances, parking can be shared, and the exterior can be maintained as a multi-tenant occupancy.

7. Amend Article XIV, Definitions, to include the following new definitions:

Single Tenant Occupancy - The area of a lot that is used by a single tenant, exclusive of parking.

Footprint Area - The area of the ground floor of a building computed by measuring the exterior faces of the exterior walls of said building.

Proof of Parking - Demonstration on the site plan that parking equal to Ordinance requirements is satisfied on the lot, some of which is not improved, but may be required by the Township to be improved if parking demand warrants at a later date.

8. Amend Article XII, Administration and Enforcement, Section 12.1 F. 2., replacing Planning Commission and Zoning Board of Appeals with Township Board.

You may appear and testify at the hearing, either in person or by duly authorized agent, or you may provide written comments to the Township Clerks Office prior to the hearing and they will become part of the hearing record. Copies of the Zoning Ordinance and Amendments are available for inspection in the Township Clerks Office on Monday through Friday from 9:00 a.m. until 12:00 p.m. or by appointment.

Stay focused on keeping resolutions

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The New Year may bring to mind festive parties and other celebratory events, but to some it is a fresh start to their lives.

Meghan Vogel, 21, of Charlevoix, said her New Year's resolutions for 2005 are to start a sensible diet, lose 10 pounds and to start going to the gym again.

"I want to get my old body back," she said.

Vogel said she would have also wanted to stop smoking, but she has already accomplished that feat. Now, she plans to get her old figure back by eating a low carb diet and eating natural foods.

Instead of eating out, Vogel said she wants to make her own meals. She is also going to join a gym.

Kirby Dipert, 53, of Charlevoix, said he doesn't necessarily have a New Year's resolution, but has decided to lose weight.

He plans on doing this by eating a low carb diet and working out on his own and not at a gym.

Candy Smith, manager, personal trainer and fitness instructor at Harbor Health and Fitness Center in Charlevoix, said any fitness and weight loss goal can be achieved if it is realistic.

Smith said in order to commit to a fitness routine, one should set long term goals, but also realistic short term ones.

"Something that allows them to have a real life," she said.

Instead of setting one's goal as losing 40 pounds this year, Smith suggests focusing on being active at least three times a week. This is easier to achieve and she said it makes people less likely to stop what they start.

Smith also said in regard to losing weight, one shouldn't say they are not going to eat anything unhealthy, but instead should focus on eating less sugar on certain days per week.

Smith will have been teaching fitness for 25 years and has been a personal trainer for 18 years. She said one thing for people to keep in mind when they start an exercise routine is to start gently, but stay consistent with whatever they like to do.

By starting out slowly, Smith said people don't overexert themselves and will feel good about their workout and most likely will want to come back and do it again.

Smith suggests starting out with a routine that is under one hour, which will make the person more likely to stick to it. The time can be lengthened as the person becomes accustomed to their new lifestyle.

"Just doing 15 minutes a day is better than not at all," she said.

A common misconception, Smith said, is that people tend to think they need energy to workout.

"When you exercise it gives you energy," she said.

Exercising with someone or at least having someone to talk to about fitness helps some people stay committed to their regiment, Smith said, but so does rewarding oneself.

Some common goals and how to keep them

Smith suggests rewarding oneself with treats such as shoes or a new workout suit whenever a goal is achieved. However, fashion is not a prerequisite for working out in the gym.

"They don't have to look good in the gym," she said. "It's important to get here."

Smith said people of all ages and sizes can be found at the gym, which can be encouraging to most people.

With the weather outside not conducive to exercising, Smith said the gym or one's home is a great place to exercise.

During the winter, people cover up with bulky clothing that hides their bodies. Smith said exercising throughout the winter enables people to see their bodies and not gasp when they put on a bathing suit in the spring or summer.

At Harbor Health and Fitness Center, Smith said there are several classes available such as step, yoga, pilates, strength classes and more. However, a low-impact aerobic class will be starting up at 10:30 a.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. It will not be the traditional type of aerobics, but rather a less intense version. Smith said this is great for those who haven't exercised in a while or those starting out.

Smith said newcomers are welcome and everyone is friendly and helps each other out.

One member achieved her 100 pound weight loss goal. Smith said she lost 50 pounds last year and 50 this year.

"It's definitely achievable," she said. "You just have to decide if that is a priority and take those steps."

Beth Strawbridge, 56, said her New Year's resolution is to start doing aerobic exercises for at least 30 minutes every day.

Strawbridge said she has already been snowshoeing and cross country skiing, but plans to create an exercise routine out of fast-paced walking when the weather is nice.

She also goes to the Charlevoix Area Community Pool to swim laps or take an aqua exercise class.

Al Gooch, director of the Charlevoix Area Community Pool, said there is something for everyone at the pool whether they prefer to exercise alone or with a group.

The pool offers over 18 hours per week of lap swimming time where people can come and swim however long they have time for.

"Lap swimming is great because it's something you can do by yourself," he said.

Aside from lap swimming, the pool also offers over eight hours per week of aquatic aerobic classes, which are offered 8 a.m. to 9 a.m. Monday through Saturday and from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m. on Tuesdays.

Gooch said the classes can be modified by each person to fit their fitness needs.

"Some people, by being in a group setting, are more motivated," he said.

There is also a Twinges in the Hinges class offered from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday for those who are older or those who haven't exercised in awhile.

The class is geared toward people with arthritis, but Gooch said can be a way to spring board someone back into being active.

Frank Porter, 22, of Riverview, a suburb near Detroit, is making his New Year's Resolutions to try and save more money and to pay off debts.

"I used to save at least 30 percent of each check, but that was before I had any bills," he said.

Porter said he plans on accomplishing his resolutions by making a budget and cutting out buying unnecessary things he doesn't need at the moment. He also plans on making a list outlining everything he has to pay.

Derek A. Chowen of Edward Jones Investments of Charlevoix, said saving money is easy to get started.

Chowen said whatever institution one decides to deal with, they should sit down and talk about what would be the best strategy for them.

Opening a regular account or an IRA account, which Chowen said can be done at any institution is a good way to save.

At Edward Jones, Chowen said he has gotten a lot of people started by having them pay a monthly contribution to their account. He said this is the best way for people to get started.

"As people see their savings grow they get excited," he said.

Chowen deals with investments and not debt, but he said one can pay off debt by concentrating on the worst and working up from there.

"You want to get rid of it as quick as you can," he said.

Also, he said there is one sure fire way to get out of debt.

"Stop spending more than you make," he said.

Pole barn fire reported

At 1:29 a.m., Dec. 31, the city of Charlevoix Fire Department responded to a pole barn fire at 03885 M-66 North in Eveline Township.

The fire was contained to the pole barn and contents (no other structures were involved). The fire is not suspicious in nature and began near the woodstove that was used to heat the building.

The building and property is owned by Greg Vereyken of Williamsburg. Renters were staying in the house and were using the pole barn.

No injuries were associated to this fire. Firefighters were on scene over two hours.

The city fire department was assisted by the Charlevoix Township Fire Department, East Jordan Fire Department and Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office.

Volleyball team stopped short in tourney

BY B. JON GOHS
Sports writer

Charlevoix wasn't as adept at overcoming their lack of practice on the court last week as they were in the first tournament of the season.

A lack of practice and the excitement of the holiday season took their toll on the varsity volleyball team last Wednesday as they came in third overall at Leland.

"We didn't make it out of pool play," Coach Liz Grunch said. "I think it was kind of a hard week for us because of vacation. We didn't get a lot of practices in."

And, she added, the holidays made it difficult for the girls to focus.

But the tournament will have to suffice as practice time, as the regular season is about to begin.

"That's why I like to get them into a tournament. It's nice to get some time to play," Grunch said.

Indeed the loss to Pellston was what kept them from moving on in the tournament.

How to get your event news in the Courier

If you have a news item you think would be perfect for the Charlevoix Courier, feel free to call 547-6558, e-mail news@charlevoixcourier.com or visit the Courier office located at 112 Mason Street in downtown Charlevoix.

News items include events sponsored by non-profit organizations. Please inform us of your event at least two weeks in advance.

Our coverage area is the city of Charlevoix and its immediately surrounding areas, including Beaver Island.

Because of space limitations in the newspaper, we generally try to avoid publishing "check-handing" pictures or "ribbon-cutting" pictures. However, we will work with your organization to get a picture that reflects the event and is visually interesting to our readers.

Due to time constraints on the

"The last game against Pellston we didn't play to our potential," she said. "We made a lot more mistakes than the other team. We were giving them the opportunity to spike it back at us."

And, she added, "We couldn't pass the ball; couldn't get it where we wanted it and set it up."

But, Grunch said, "It doesn't take away the fact that we played well in the morning."

"I think we attacked the ball pretty well and served pretty well, but our defense is still our weak point," Grunch said. "It's something we need to work on in practice. Defense is repetition: practice, practice, practice."

"We'll get there eventually," she added. "But right now we're not consistent enough to beat the really good teams."

According to Grunch, communication and defense are still downfalls, but things will improve as the girls get more court time with each other.

"We definitely have the potential to work with."

While the defense still has some work to do, Coach Grunch seems pretty happy with the job of the offense.

"I think we did a lot better job serving. We served probably 80 percent in the first tournament and the last tournament we served around 90 percent," she said.

The Rayders beat Kalkaska 21-12 and 23-21, Glen Lakes 21-7 and 21-15, both a loss of 7-21 and a win of 15-21 to Leland. The day ended with a two of three loss to Pellston with scores of 12-21, 21-17 and 9-15.

Players of mention were Teresa Martin with six aces, 19 digs and 18 kills. Kari Way with 10 digs, five aces and 22 kills; Betsey Dennis with five aces, nine digs and two kills and Zita Anderson with 49 assists.

Another challenge the Rayders face is the new rally scoring system adopted from the college level, wherein a mistake is an automatic point for the opposing team. Also, a ball which hits the net and goes over is considered good by the rule change.

Regardless of amended rules, Grunch said she is ready to get past last week's stumbling block and move on to the start of conference play against the Ramblers.

"In the past we've been very successful in beating them," she said.

But, she added, "They have a new coach this year. She's working really hard to build them back up."

The Rayders beat the Ramblers at the Inland Lakes tournament and hope to make a repeat performance this week.

"Our overall record is six wins, two losses and two ties," Grunch said. "Which is a good start."

The Rayders meet the Ramblers of Boyne City for the best three of five at 7 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 6 at Charlevoix High School.

There are two hearings scheduled to finalize the foreclosure process. This publication is intended to provide additional notice to parties of interest in these parcels as to the nature, time, and location of these hearings.

At this hearing the Foreclosing Governmental Unit shall ask that the court enter a judgment foreclosing the property as requested in the petition for foreclosure. A person claiming an interest in a parcel of property set forth in the petition for foreclosure, who desires to contest that petition, must file written objections with the clerk of the circuit court and serve those objections on the State of Michigan, the Foreclosing Governmental Unit. The docket number of the petition is 04-386-20-CZ.

- You have the right to redeem this parcel from the foreclosure process by payment of all forfeited unpaid taxes, interest, penalties, and fees prior to the expiration of the redemption period. You should contact the Charlevoix County Treasurer for the amount required to redeem.
- You may lose your interest in the property as a result of the foreclosure proceeding.
- You have until March 31, 2005, to pay the delinquent taxes, penalties, interest and fees to redeem the property or, unless otherwise ordered by the Court, you will permanently lose your interest in the property.

This notice is required to be given by law: even if the party no longer claims or desires an interest if it appears they hold any undischarged, apparent, or potential title or lien right to the property.

This list is NOT an offering of property for sale. These parcels are NOT being sold, auctioned, or otherwise made available by virtue of this notice.

There is no procedure for purchasing these parcels from the Foreclosing Governmental Unit at this point in the foreclosure proceedings. Those parcels that are foreclosed and not redeemed may become available at public auction in July, September, and November of 2005. These parcels remain the property of their current owner until redemption rights have expired. No party should make any attempt to inspect or enter upon these parcels assuming them to be for sale. This may constitute trespassing and subject the offender to criminal prosecution. The street address of the parcels listed is based on local records and is not guaranteed to be the actual location of the property.

The amount due listed indicates the balance which was due as of forfeiture on March 1, 2004. The current amount required to redeem must be obtained from the Charlevoix County Treasurer, as additional penalties, fees, and interest have accrued since forfeiture.

December melt

On Dec. 31 the weather became warmer as the sun shone through the clouds. The ice that had once covered the South Pier of Pine River Channel started to melt somewhat.

Dale Hull to kick off library program series

The kick-off to the Charlevoix Public Library 2005 program series will be at 7 p.m., Wednesday, Jan. 12, at the annual Friends of the Library Meeting.

Dale Hull, executive director of Crooked Tree Arts Center, will speak about the state of the arts in northern Michigan. A freelance actor and writer and former English teacher, Hull is responsible for the operations and implementation of all programs at Crooked Tree.

He has extensive experience in the arts, having previously been associated in Grand Rapids with its FM radio station, ballet company and civic theater.

A short business meeting with the election of officers and a review of the accomplishments of 2004 will precede Hull's remarks. Light refreshments will be served.

The public is invited to attend to the lower level of the Charlevoix Public Library, 109 Clinton Street. For further information call the library at 547-2651.

THERE ARE GOOD REASONS WHY

PUBLIC NOTICE

APPEARS IN YOUR NEWSPAPER.

Currently, and historically, it is the responsibility of state and local government to publish public and legal notices here in Michigan's newspapers. This paper you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. And its pages hold your right to know what the government is doing in your community. In fact, it's law.

In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. That is why you have, and read, your newspaper, where public notices are published with accountable circulation and presented to you on these pages in clear black and white.

DDA wants to extend lifespan for marina

Public hearings are being planned

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

A plan to increase the life span of the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority in order to pay for the Charlevoix marina renovations passed unanimously, and without discussion, Wednesday at the organization's regular meeting.

At the meeting, DDA officials stressed this is not a tax increase, but simply an extension of the organization's life span. Officials said the DDA will not take any more tax money than what it currently collects.

Chairman Hugh Mason said, "We are not going to take excess money than what we are going to need. If it comes to that, then we will give some back."

The DDA will have public hearings on this matter before final adoption.

City Manager Michael Wiesner, who brought the plan to the DDA, said he had recommended to the DDA that they update their Development Plan and Tax Increment Financing Plan to incorporate the marina project. This would also allow the DDA time to pay off the bonds it needs for the marina plan.

In 2013, the DDA's financing plan will come to an end, but the marina project will require a 20 year time period to repay the bonds used to finance the million dollar project. This would extend the life of the DDA to 2024 or 2025, Wiesner said.

The DDA is footing the bill for some of the project and will repay the bonds over the 20 year period. By extending the financing plan, Wiesner said the DDA can reconsider the whole plan and not have to worry about bond rates.

The Michigan Waterways Commission is expected to pick up about 75 percent of the tab for the $10,570,207.97 marina project.

By extending the DDA's financing plan, Wiesner said it will only extend the amount of time the DDA can get taxes from property owners but will not increase the current tax rate.

Wiesner said whether the DDA was there or not, the downtown property owners would still be paying the 1.3 mills required for operations.

Wiesner said he didn't have the exact figures, but about five percent of the money collected by the DDA comes from downtown property owners and about 95 percent comes from taxes collected on downtown properties before it's shared between other entities such as the Charlevoix Public Schools. This money is generated from new tax dollars on properties located in the DDA district — the downtown area — that are gathered from inflation and new assessments on the properties.

The Charlevoix City Commission also looked over this plan at its meeting Monday night.

Charlevoix Council Member Shirley Gibson said she would like to see what different government bodies the DDA captures money from and how much exactly is taken. The DDA takes a little tax money from various government funds to pay for the projects it takes on.

Wiesner said he could supply her with that information.

Crooked Tree to 'Boogie Woogie' in art series

The Crooked Tree Arts Center continues its Virginia McCune Performing Arts Series with the Boogie Woogie Babies to warm up your January.

The Boogie Woogie Babies will perform two shows at 8 p.m., Friday, Jan. 21 and Saturday, January 22 at the Crooked Tree Arts Center. Friday evening's performance is a high energy, entertaining and patriotic revue of music, history and trivia from World War II, while on Saturday, the Boogie Woogie Babies will perform their show, Boogie Down Broadway.

Boogie Woogie Babies is comprised of seasoned performers of the Grand Rapids theater and music scene: Mary Rademacher, Barbara Wisse and Francesca Amari.

Amari created the revue by request of the American Legion Boat and Canoe Club, and the group has been performing the show ever since throughout Michigan and Illinois.

Amari has been a professional vocalist for 20-some years and has appeared in national and regional theater and trained in New York City.

Rademacher is one of west Michigan's finest jazz vocalists and has appeared overseas with the USO, in dozens of area theater productions, is a regional Star Search winner, a former MSU cheerleader and is a busy choreographer and performer. She's opened for Taylor Dayne and Bob Newhart.

In addition to her own band, the RadPack, she performs regularly with The Night Band and the Midtown Horns in clubs, casinos and private events. She's released two CDs: Radhot and You Hit the Spot.

Wisse most recently performed her one-woman cabaret act, Laughing Matters as a part of Grand Rapids' Circle Theatre 50th Anniversary Cabaret Series.

Accompanying the Boogie Woogie Babies is pianist Mark Kahny, one of west Michigan's finest keyboard and vocal talents in demand by vocalists and bands alike.

Non-member rate of $25/adult and $10/student and for art center members, $20/adult and $8/student.

Purchase tickets at Crooked Tree Arts Center, 461 East Mitchell Street in downtown Petoskey. Call (231) 347-4337 or contact them on-line at www.crookedtree.org.

DRIVERS You probably entered the driving profession so you could make an honest wage doing what you love, but is 25 CPM Really An Honest Wage? To quote an article from the December 6 issue of Transport Topics, smaller fleets pay "about 25 cents per mile compared with an average of 40 cents by larger carriers like J.8 Hunt Transport Services." Wouldn't you rather be averaging 40 cpm for the exact same job? At J.8 Hunt, you can. J.8 Hunt drivers start at 34 to 36 cpm, and with guaranteed pay raises earn 37 cpm in just two to six months. That's 12 cpm more than you may be earning with a smaller carrier. And J.8 Hunt pays up to 43 cpm with a full benefits package plus many other extras: time off every 14 days, new Freightliner conventionals you can take home, 98% no-touch freight, monthly bonuses, and a career path featuring thousands of dedicated jobs and a Zero-Down lease opportunity. Villager Pub

In order to capture the spirit of New Year's Eve in Charlevoix, the Charlevoix Courier placed two disposable cameras in two downtown bars that night: the Villager Pub and the Weathervane Restaurant. People taking part in the New Year's festivities at those businesses were invited to take random pictures of the evening as it unfolded. Here are some of those pictures. Since the Courier staff was not in attendance, all of the names of the people in the photos are not known. Therefore, we have decided to just print the pictures without captions. From the looks of things, people in these two businesses had a great New Year's Eve. All photos are by unknown photographers.

New Year's Eve relatively quiet in Charlevoix

QUIET

New Year's Eve proved to be a lucrative evening.

Rod Hayward, owner of All Star Taxi & Shuttle, said the night went fairly well.

"The rate (of people) was almost a normal Friday night in Charlevoix," he said.

He said despite a record number of people at certain places like Stafford's Wauthervine, no more than normal took a taxi.

Hayward's taxi company services bars, restaurants, motels and individual people and an even number from each area took a cab.

All Star Taxi & Shuttle opened for business on Nov. 1, 2004 and Hayward said he is pleased with how things have progressed.

"It (New Year's Eve) was the best night I've had since I've been open by almost double," he said. "I wish it was New Year's every weekend."

He said it's hard to have a typical night when dealing with drunk people.

"That's why I do it," he said. "I enjoy it. It's good for laughs. People are so funny when they've been drinking and partying."

Another local taxi company also had a good New Year's Eve and said its business was up.

Robert Simpson, owner of Quickie Cab Company, said the night went really good.

"More people used the cabs than ever," he said.

Simpson has been running his company for the past three years, and his first proved to be the best so far. However, this New Year's pulled a close second.

Simpson runs a fleet of three taxis and had them all running for about 24 hours to service those in the area on New Year's Eve and New Year's Day.

Throughout the evening and early morning, Simpson said his company gave rides to between 70 and 100 people. There weren't any problems.

Everyone was happy and jolly while enjoying the evening.

"We do our best to save every life we can," he said. "We try to do it at a fairly decent price."

Simpson said New Year's Eve was great as he served bars, airports and individual people. He said gave rides to about an even number of people per area he covers.

Simpson has been driving taxis professionally for five years, two of which while working for Harbor-side Taxi before creating his own company.

He created the company since there wasn't really a taxi presence in Charlevoix anymore.

"I try to take care of everybody," he said.

Yaroch has a few ideas for improving Charlevoix the same time adding additional events and functions that will bring more people to the downtown area.

Yaroch also stressed "smart growth," such as "increasing housing density and the population base to support the business community while minimizing sprawl." An example of that would be creating an ordinance that would allow apartments above garages, which will help create affordable housing with little or no additionally parking requirements of consumption of property.

Yaroch suggested the task force be composed of representatives from the city council, DDA, chamber, Charlevoix Visitors and Convention Bureau, Downtown Retail Merchants Group and other organizations.

But, Yaroch's plan did create some concerns among authority members and city staff.

Charlevoix City Manager Mike Wiesner said he did not like the idea of having another body trying to guide the downtown area. Currently there is the chamber, DDA and there was a downtown steering committee that is now inactive.

Some authority members also expressed this concern. It was suggested to look into having the DDA coordinate this goal with the current bodies that are involved in improving the downtown area.

Additionally, authority members questioned how involved it could become in a project such as this. Typically, the authority takes on building projects, such as funding renovations to the marina and East Park, in order to improve the infrastructure of the downtown area. But, what is not known is if the authority can take part in promoting the downtown area as was suggested by Yaroch.

Therefore, the authority asked Wiesner to look into the rule governing a DDA to determine just how much it can pay for promoting a downtown, if at all.

Authority member John Taylor said, "We want to know how far we can go down this path."

Authority chair Hugh Mason said the group will meet on this matter again in the near future. It is not known at this time when that next

Citizen considering petition

By JEREMY MCBAIN
 Editor

Charlevoix resident Jill Picha is upset with current proposed East Park renovation plans that show the Odmark band shell being torn down, and she is considering a petition to stop it.

Picha began questioning what it takes to start a petition to get a referendum on a city ballot stopping the destruction of the band shell at the Jan. 3 city council meeting.

"I want to save that band shell that was built by donations in memory of Clarence Odmark, and I would like to keep that bandshell in that park."

alone."

Picha stressed she is only considering this option at this time. She said she is trying to determine if there would be support for such a measure.

She added she has gotten a few telephone calls in support of her idea. She is hoping more people contact her about her plans for a petition that will lead to a vote by the public on the East Park project.

"It is too late if it is a done deal. Here, we have a chance to undo all of this," she said.

But talk of a referendum may be a little premature.

According to Charlevoix City Attorney Jim Young, the charter says a referendum can be held on an ordinance that was passed by the city council.

However, Charlevoix Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson said nothing in the park has been finalized yet, and the council is working towards getting the marina side of the project started. He stressed when the council begins looking at the park side of the marina and park renovation plans, if people want it to be changed, then that is the time to do it.

"There is nothing to have a referendum on right now," he said.

According to Young, city charter states that if council passes an ordinance or amends an ordinance a group of people don't like, then that group of people can take action.

Under the charter, five registered voters must file an affidavit with the city clerk, who provides them with petition blanks. That group then must get at least 15

Winter filled with outdoor activities

When the weather turns cold and snow covers the land most want to hibernate until spring, but winter offers a variety of activities that can only happen when snow is on the ground.

Snowshoeing, ice skating, downhill and cross country skiing and snowmobiling are just a few aspects to the fun winter provides in Charlevoix.

Alison Adams, education specialist with the Little Traverse Conservancy, said people can snowshoe on the several preserves throughout the county.

The Charles A. Ransom Nature Preserve on Maple Grove Road, Adams said, provides a mix of open land and forests. Adams said the land was donated by the Ransom family in 1976 in memory of their son.

"It has a great view of Lake Michigan," she said.

Adams said there are two good sized loops snowshoers can use, but she advises beginners to choose a different preserve due to the steep and hilly terrain.

The preserve is 80 acres with a total of one-and-a-half miles to trek across.

Adams also suggested those who want to snowshoe can try

Raven Ridge Nature Preserve near the Raven Hill Discovery Center.

"It's a neat way to spend the day," she said.

The preserve spans about 140 acres with three loops that total more than one-and-a-half miles in total length. Raven Ridge Nature Preserve also features an old homestead site.

"It's probably hard to find unless you're with someone who knows," Adams said.

Adams said the preserve also features a lookout over the valley in East Jordan.

The preserve was purchased in a joint fund-raising effort, Adams said, between the Little Traverse Conservancy and Raven Hill Discovery Center.

For those who want less hilly terrain to try their hand at snowshoeing, Adams said the Sleepy Hollow Nature Preserve is great.

The preserve is about 55 acres with more than a mile of hiking trails and is located off M-66 across from Phelps Road on Sleepy Hollow Lane.

A spring fed stream, Clear Creek, runs through the preserve and Adams said the plant life on the way to the creek is something to look at. When walking down to the creek the trees are all cedars

Fiddle music feature of concert

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

With snow on the ground and the weather cold, one activity in Charlevoix hopes to get your blood pumping and your feet tapping.

The 2nd Annual Fiddler's and Picker's Day on Jan. 15 will feature the talents of various musicians for a night of musical enjoyment.

Gabe Campbell, Charlevoix resident and former mayor, said the idea for the event came from his wife, Karen Campbell, second ward city council member.

"It's great if you like that kind of music," he said.

Campbell said his wife was tired of the January boredom and asked their friends last year if they would mind getting together and playing. He said Bill Stevens and Dan Johnston agreed and the first event went well.

Campbell doesn't play an instrument, but enjoys listening to the talents of others.

Last year a total of 85 people came to the event and hopes are more will attend this year.

"It's really a lot of fun," Campbell said. "They (musicians) enjoy it and the people enjoy it."

Stevens has been playing the guitar for a very long time and said the object is to just get together and have fun during the winter months.

However, the event also helps raise money for up and coming musicians.

The event will be at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Charlevoix and entrance is by donation. These donations will then go toward the East Jordan Fiddler Jamboree Scholarship Fund.

Stevens is one of eight members of the Jamboree and said the scholarship program helped 17 young fiddler's last year.

The East Jordan Fiddler Jamboree has been occurring for 25 years, but for the last eight it has mainly been a scholarship program.

Campbell said Andy Tuck, Charlevoix resident and young string instrument prodigy, received help from the scholarship fund.

The Jamboree will be on March 5, and Stevens said the 2nd Annual Fiddler's and Picker's Day is a great way to prepare for the Jamboree.

Stevens said those who attend will hear banjos, guitars, fiddles, pianos and more.

"Just to keep the old time music alive," he said.

Campbell said attendees can hear old and new songs, hymns and much more.

To add to the atmosphere of the evening, old fashioned square dancing with a live caller will occur later in the evening.

The 2nd Annual Fiddler's and Picker's Day will be from 3 p.m. to 10 p.m. and dancing will start at 7 p.m. Food and beverages will be available.

For more information call Campbell at 547-9739, Stevens at 547-9153 and Johnston at 526-5145.

Fun racing to be taught at Mount McSaubia

Erik Lundteigen will once again be hosting a Fun Racing league at Mt. McSaubia. Fun Racing will start at 2:30 p.m. on Jan. 15, Jan. 29 and Feb. 12. Lundteigen will be teaching racing skills for elementary and middle school students. All racers need to be able to make it up the rope tow. Each session is $5.

OPINIONS

Come together with plans for downtown

EDITORIAL

Make no mistake about it, Charlevoix's downtown could use help.

At a recent Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority meeting, member John Yaroch talked about the problems facing our downtown, such as loss of businesses and slow winters.

He said Charlevoix's downtown was more vibrant 30 years ago than it is today and it gets worse each year. And, he said, more people are starting to take notice of the neighboring towns and leaving Charlevoix behind.

But, Yaroch sees many positives that Charlevoix has to offer and many ways it can become competitive with neighboring towns. But, he believes, more needs to be done to promote Charlevoix's downtown and provide ways to get more people into the community, so they can see just what kind of city this is.

To do so, he suggested a task force. This task force would look at ways to promote the downtown area and provide events throughout the year to bring people into the area. Events like reviving the winter carnival, band festivals, motorcycle nights and many others. The key is using the character of the downtown that we have already.

In addition to this, he wants to see some enhancement to the downtown, in the form of new zoning laws making it easier for affordable housing — something he thinks is hurting the growth of the community — and trying to get a better mix of businesses downtown.

While some balk at the idea of another committee or group trying to help the downtown, Yaroch should be commended for trying to think of a solution and trying to help. Maybe his ideas will give fresh energy to those organizations, such as the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, who are already working to promote the community.

Maybe it wouldn't hurt if a task force was created, composed of those various organizations who concentrate on helping the downtown, to talk about ways to help the downtown.

This does not mean we need more studies that suck up more taxpayer or chamber funding. All we need right now are some fresh ideas and some energetic people, such as Yaroch, to get them started. This task force would simply be a way to give the downtown groups a chance to all get on the same page and brainstorm for this community.

The history behind your morning coffee

Roger Knutson
'Ear to the ground'

At a season of the year when a cup of hot coffee in the morning is synonymous with getting up and getting going, it might be worthwhile to consider what it is we are drinking.

Coffee is one of a number of plants from around the world that produce the alkaloid caffeine. Other plants containing caffeine are tea, cocoa and the cola nut tree. Mate, another caffeine containing beverage, is made from a South American species of holly.

Not all alkaloids are harmless stimulants. Cocaine is an alkaloid from coca plants, opium and heroin come from poppy plants, nicotine from tobacco and scopolamine from Jimsonweed.

Hundreds of alkaloids are found in plants. What distinguishes caffeine from many of the others is that it is not outlawed as a dangerous drug.

Plants do not make alkaloids to please or stimulate us. The alkaloids found in plants are generally extremely bitter substances which provide a measure of protection for the plants from grazing animals that might eat them. Children generally avoid bitter-tasting things, but as adults we learn to enjoy at least some of them. Most alkaloids are also poisonous to some degree.

Humans have been using the caffeine in coffee as a stimulant for at least 1,800 years, first in the Arabic countries of the Middle East and later all over the world. At present we in America consume on average about 30 gallons of coffee per person each year, only slightly less than the average consumption of beer.

Coffee did not make its way from Arabia to Europe until the 1600s, but was then so popular that no city in England or France could call itself up-to-date unless it had coffee houses where men — almost always men — congregated, socialized and conducted the business of the time.

Women drank coffee at home, and it even found some use as a stimulant during childbirth. In Arabia if a husband refused to keep his wife supplied with coffee, she had grounds for divorce. All coffee came from Arabic countries until about 1700 when plantations were established in much of the tropical world: first by the Dutch and later by the English. Most countries in South and Central America and many of the Caribbean Islands grew and exported coffee before 1800, and many still do.

J.S. Bach composed a coffee cantata in honor of the precious stimulant. And Bruce Catton in his history of the Civil War says the north could not have won without the daily ration of coffee beans provided to every Union soldier.

Caffeine is a perfectly legal, non-addictive drug, but we should not think that it is completely harmless. Caffeine is habituating, which means that as we use it we need ever more of it to get the same effect.

We can also feel the very mild effects of withdrawal. A heavy coffee or tea drinker, or someone who drinks six cans of cola a day, is likely to feel the effects of a slight cold if they are deprived of their usual fix for a few days.

If either is taken in pure form, a lethal dose of caffeine is just about twice the lethal dose of cocaine. Fortunately, caffeine is legal and as a result is imported in the very dilute form of coffee or tea.

In the forms usually available, it is nearly impossible to consume a lethal dose of caffeine, although six or eight cups of coffee will certainly increase your heart rate and blood pressure.

Enjoy your morning cup of coffee and your afternoon tea and don't worry about the amounts of caffeine in soft drinks. But we should remember that cocaine is not the only slightly dangerous drug we import from Colombia.

Letter to the editor

Thank you

Editor:

A sincere thank you goes out to all of you who contributed so generously to the Women's Resource Center's (WRC) Annual Harvest Food and Supply Drive to benefit the Safe Home! Your kind donations of food, supplies, financial support and gifts have stocked the shelter pantry and provided holiday cheer to many families in our community.

Last year the Safe Home housed over 130 women and children who otherwise would have been homeless due to domestic abuse. The shelter is a 24-hour-a-day, 365-day-a-year, resource to families in crisis in Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet and Otsego counties. The community support received during the Harvest Food and Supply Drive allows the WRC to continue providing these important services to families in need. Thanks to all the service groups, churches, businesses, schools, clubs and individuals that made supporting victims of domestic abuse in this community a priority. Your contributions have a direct, positive impact on the lives of many families in northern Michigan.

Back roads to be plowed on weekends

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Charlevoix County roads will be cleared of snow despite tighter budgets.

Pat Harmon, Charlevoix County Road Commission manager, said the county is doing fine this year with its road budget and no changes were made that weren't already in place last year in the face of smaller budgets.

Harmon said the back roads in the county are cleared on the weekends and only if they are in had condition.

In past years, Harmon said all roads were treated the same and cleared daily, but with a tighter budget coming in from the state the back roads had to become a weekend venture.

Harmon defined back roads as the secondary or local road system. These roads don't receive the same priority as the primary road system, which includes state highways and main roads that connect city to city.

Primary roads, Harmon said, are cleared daily. The primary road system in the Charlevoix area includes: Boyne City/Charlevoix Road, Marion Center Road, Bell's Bay Road, Barnard Road, M-66, Ferry Road, Lakeshore, Peninsula, Advance, Burgess, Upper Bay Shore, Maple Grove Road, Norwood, Dixie Highway and Richardson, On Beaver Island they include East Side, Kings Highway, McCauley and Pogenog.

In 2005, Harmon said the portion of funding the county gets from the Michigan Transportation Fund is projected to be three percent less than what it was for 2004.

Harmon said the money comes from Michigan gas taxes and fi-cense plate fees, which are used for operations by the county road commission. However, Harmon said there may be less funding because of permanent license plates installed on trailers.

It is still unknown exactly how this cut in funding will affect the county, Harmon said, because it may be more or less than the projected three percent.

"If it holds true to be three percent or more we'll have to make some adjustments next fall or cut a service somewhere along the way," Harmon said.

The final decision will be up to the County Commission to decide. Things in the city, however, are a little different.

John Martin, street superintendent for the city of Charlevoix, said there haven't been any problems as they budget accordingly for the winter months.

"I don't think we're any different than any other year," he said.

Martin said there are four trucks that go out each day and clear roads, parking lots and sidewalks.

He said so far, he thinks everything will be OK throughout the season. However, no one can predict when snow will fall, he said.

Floor safe stolen from EZ Mart

Sometime between midnight and 5 a.m., Sunday someone broke into the Charlevoix EZ Mart on the corner of M-66 and Bridge Street and stole a safe.

According to Charlevoix Police Department Chief Dennis Halverson, someone pried the lock of the front door of the business and removed a 3-foot-by-3-foot safe using a handcart that was in the store.

The safe contained an undetermined amount of cash and checks.

Halverson said employees at the store told him the safe was too heavy to be picked up or moved by just one person.

Therefore, police believe more than one person was involved with this crime.

Police do not have any leads at this time.

If you have any information on this theft, please contact the Charlevoix Police Department at (231) 547-3258.

President John Lachman and his wife Agnes at the Kiwanis Club birthday celebration.

Kiwanis Club celebrates 70 years of service to area

Charlevoix Kiwanis Club celebrated its 70th birthday recently with 75 members and guests in attendance. Present was District Governor Chuck Kineaid and wife, Nadine; Lt. Gov. Leroy Ormsbee and wife, Janet, of Division 22. Also representatives from the Boyne City, Cheboygan, Indian River and Petoskey Kiwanis Clubs were in attendance.

Charlevoix Kiwanis Club President John Lachman said the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club prides itself serving the youth and the Charlevoix community for these past 70 years. Sponsoring a Key Club for high school students, Builders Club for middle school students, K-Kids for elementary students and Aktion Club for adults with disabilities. Supporting Scout Troop 11 for 65 years, Camp Daggett a cabin and yearly scholarships and many other youth needs and community support.

Bottling maple syrup and selling it in local stores has been the club's longest fund-raiser and the Kielbasa stand is a favorite at Venetian and the Apple Festival. One hundred percent of all funds raised is returned back to the community.

Obituaries

Julie Marie Brewster: Aug. 11, 1971 - Jan. 1, 2005

Julie Marie Brewster, 33, passed away on Saturday, Jan. 1, 2005 in Sarasota, Fla.

She was born on Aug. 11, 1971 in Royal Oak, but spent her years growing up in Charlevoix. Julie graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1989.

She spent a year abroad in Europe before attending college at Grand Rapids Community College. From there, she lived in various states throughout the country before settling down in Florida.

Julie enjoyed art, reading, music and a strong cup of espresso with friends.

Survivors include her father and stepmother, Vincent and Christine Brewster, of Charlevoix; her mother, Jeanie Olach, of Aurora, Ill.; one sister, Jackie L. Brewster, of Grand Rapids; one maternal grandfather, Clement Olach, of Charlevoix; one paternal grandmother, Mary Brewster, of Dayton, Ohio; stepfather, Dr. John Lignell, of Charlevoix; and one step-grandmother, Joan Rodgers, of Pulaski, Wis.

A Mass of the Resurrection will be at 10:30 a.m. on Saturday, Feb. 12, 2005 at St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix. A luncheon will follow.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests that donations be made to the charity of your choice.

Who is in your tree?

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

You really never know who is in your family tree until you look.

With five sessions of genealogy classes available through the Charlevoix Public Library this winter, one can learn research tips, how to utilize the Internet, original documents and much more.

Carol Goodenough, a professional genealogist will be teaching the courses.

"I feel history is so important, both local and family," she said. "Who better to write your own history but your family."

Goodenough said the classes are designed for everyone, whether a newcomer to genealogy or someone who has already gathered some information.

Goodenough said she uses the terms genealogy and family history as two different things. Genealogy is the generational mapping of one's family that includes names while a family history incorporates professions, day-to-day life and much more.

Historical value is important to Goodenough when compiling a family history.

By incorporating the customs and professions of one's ancestors, Goodenough said it helps create a complete picture of who they were.

Sometimes the only clues to who they were are their professions and not other details. If this occurs, Goodenough said the individual's profession can be studied and read about in diaries of others who lived at the same time. Then, when writing the family history the author can incorporate what an individual's life might have been like.

"I think every family is important and every family contributes to the history of the country," she said.

There will be five classes that will introduce people to the study of genealogy.

Goodenough said she always starts out by asking people why they want to trace their family back and then guides them through the research process.

Interviewing people who are still living is a great way to get information, Goodenough said.

New president

Susanne Muma, Aktion Club advisor, presented incoming president Ruth of the Charlevoix Aktion Club her president pin. President Ruth's goal is to continue serving the needs of the people of our community. Members are adults living with disabilities who strive to give back to the community the benefits, help and caring that they have received. The Charlevoix Aktion Club has been active since 1999. Club involvement in the community has blossomed providing many services and assistance to various needs. Delivering meals, cleaning at the humane society, delivering surplus food, singing at nursing facilities, providing food packages to needy families or seniors and many other services are some ways the club helps out. The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club along with the Bergman Center sponsors the Charlevoix Aktion Club. The club meets at 11:30 a.m. every first and third Monday at the Senior Center. All are welcome at these luncheon meetings. For further information phone Kim Brock, Aktion Club advisor, at (231) 547-2979.

Official Notice

CHARLEVOIX TOWNSHIP NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

A public hearing will be held by the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission on January 26, 2005 at 7:30 p.m. at the Township Hall, located at 12491 Waller Road, to take public comments on proposed Amendments to the Township Zoning Ordinance. The following language in bold face font represents the proposed amendments:

1. Amend Article V, Section 5.2 E. 1., Change one-family dwelling minimum lot area from 15,000 to 12,000 Square Feet.
2. Amend Article V, Section 5.6 B. Permitted Principal Uses. Land and buildings in the C Commercial District shall be used only for the following purposes, provided no single-tenant occupancy exceeds a footprint area of 20,000 square feet and the
3. Amend Article V, Section 5.6 C. Uses Permitted with Special Conditions. Land and buildings permitted with special conditions shall be used for the following purposes, provided no single tenant occupancy exceeds a footprint area of 20,000 square feet, the
4. Amend Article V, 5.6 D. Uses Permitted by Special Use Permit. Add the following: 5. Single tenant occupancies exceeding a footprint of 20,000 square feet. No single tenant occupancy shall exceed a footprint area of 90,000 square feet.
5. Amend Article VIII Special Land Uses, Section 8.3 F. 4. b. 4). Change the size of large buildings from 2,000 to 20,000 square feet.
6. Amend Article VIII Special Land Uses, Section 8.3 to add Subsection H as follows:
 - H. Single Tenant Occupancies Exceeding a Footprint Area of 20,000 Square Feet in the C Commercial District. In addition to the General Standards listed in Section 8.2 A of this Ordinance, the following conditions shall apply:
 1. Purpose. The purposes of this Section are to satisfy the purposes and intents of the Township Master Plan which are to insure that large buildings and occupancies: fit the small town character and appearance of the community, do not become a blighting influence, are more readily able to be reused if abandoned, and do not adversely impact existing businesses, the community, or the neighborhood.
 2. Design Standards.
 - a. Building Placement.
 - 1) Buildings shall have a well-defined front facade with entrances facing the street. They shall be aligned so that the dominant lines of their facades parallel the line of the street.
 - 2) The relationships between buildings and the street shall be parallel or perpendicular rather than oblique or diagonal. Front facades shall be parallel to the street with major roof ridges either parallel or perpendicular to the street.
 - 3) New buildings and additions to existing buildings shall maintain and continue the "street wall" created by adjacent buildings.
 - b. Architecture.
 - 1) Buildings or parts of buildings facing onto public spaces and streets, including canopies for accessory facilities, shall have peaked roofs with a slope of at least 8:12, except that hip roofs with a slope of at least 4:12 and flat roofs that are hidden by a raised cornice shall also be permitted.
 - 2) Windows shall be vertically proportioned and balanced on facades, with width to height ratios ranging from 1:2 to 3:5. Horizontal windows may be used just below roof eaves ("eyebrow" windows) and as first-floor display windows.
 - 3) Trademark architecture, which identifies a specific company by building design features, shall be prohibited, unless the applicant can demonstrate that the design is compatible with the historic architecture of Charlevoix.
 - 4) Large buildings shall be broken up to provide the appearance of smaller volumes consistent with the use and building proportions found in the region's traditional architecture. Generally, facades facing a street shall have the appearance of several vertical buildings attached side by side.
 - 5) Buildings shall have windows and doors at street level, on the street sides of the building, to encourage pedestrian traffic and commercial activity.
 - 6) No buildings shall have more than 15 horizontal feet of wall facing the street without a window or door opening.
 - 7) Building materials for the exterior walls of all new buildings that are visible from a street shall be wood, brick, stone or similar materials traditionally used in the Charlevoix area. Building walls and structures that are not visible from a street shall be constructed of wood, stone, brick, concrete block, metal, and similar materials.
 - c. Lighting. Lighting within parking lots shall be on low poles of 12 feet to 15 feet maximum height, with color-corrected lamps and cut-off luminaires designed to minimize glare and light pollution. Design of poles and luminaires shall be compatible with the style of the architecture and adjoining streetscape treatment. Sidewalks leading from parking lots shall be lit with bollard lighting and indirect illumination of buildings and vegetation.
 - d. Landscaping. Minimum three-inch caliper shade trees, measured at breast height, shall be provided along all streets and pedestrian ways at intervals averaging twenty feet on each side. Existing trees, lawns and shrubs shall be preserved to the extent practical. Landscaping shall not be required as buffers between uses unless the uses are determined by the Planning Commission to be incompatible.
 - e. Access and Connections. Access shall be provided in accordance with the Access Management requirements of Section 3.18 of this Ordinance.
 - f. Sidewalks. Sidewalks or defined walkways shall be provided leading from parking lots and along streets.
 - g. Parking and Loading.
 - 1) The Planning Commission may reduce the off-street parking and loading requirements of Article VI if the applicant can demonstrate that full compliance is unnecessary because of the characteristics of the proposed use, the availability of shared or public parking, or other circumstances. The Planning Commission may also consider "proof of parking" in lieu of finished parking improvements provided the applicant agrees in writing to provide parking when it is deemed to be needed by the Commission.
 - 2) On-street parking and shared parking shall be encouraged where feasible.
 - 3) Parking lots shall be located to the rear and side of buildings, and shall be laid out to minimize visibility from existing streets, wherever possible. Parking in front of a building shall consist of no more than one bay width or sixty (60) feet.
 - 4) Rear parking lots shall be connected to adjoining parking lots and side streets, if any, and shall have clearly delineated pedestrian paths leading to the sidewalks along the street.
 3. Additional Requirements For Buildings Exceeding a Footprint Area of 50,000 Square Feet. The following shall be required:
 - a. Market Feasibility Study. A retail market study shall accompany the application that indicates the potential of the market to accommodate the project and the impact of the proposed project on existing retail businesses in the Charlevoix market area.
 - b. Traffic Study. A traffic impact study shall accompany the application indicating the effects of the proposed development on the level of service of all existing and proposed intersections within one mile of the project and how traffic impacts will be mitigated.
 - c. Adaptability For Reuse Plan. The building design for a retail use shall demonstrate how the building is designed for adaptation to a multi-tenant building in the event of the abandonment of the single tenant occupancy. The design may include, but is not limited to, compartmentalized construction, including plumbing, electrical, service, heating, ventilation, air conditioning and wall placement. The plans shall also demonstrate how the exterior of the building can be divided into separate tenancies, facades can be adapted to separate entrances, parking can be shared, and the exterior can be maintained as a multi-tenant occupancy.
7. Amend Article XIV, Definitions, to include the following new definitions:

Single Tenant Occupancy - The area of a lot that is used by a single tenant, exclusive of parking.

Footprint Area - The area of the ground floor of a building computed by measuring the exterior faces of the exterior walls of said building.

Proof of Parking - Demonstration on the site plan that parking equal to Ordinance requirements is satisfied on the lot, some of which is not improved, but may be required by the Township to be improved if parking demand warrants at a later date.
8. Amend Article XII, Administration and Enforcement, Section 12.1 F. 2., replacing Planning Commission and Zoning Board of Appeals with Township Board.

You may appear and testify at the hearing, either in person or by duly authorized agent, or you may provide written comments to the Township Clerks Office prior to the hearing and they will become part of the hearing record. Copies of the Zoning Ordinance and Amendments are available for inspection in the Township Clerks Office on Monday through Friday from 9:00 a.m. until 12:00 p.m. or by appointment.

Timms questions money for well

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix Council member Boh Timms is tired of the city using infrastructure funds to pay for anything other than roads and sewers and says a recent decision to using over $220,000 of that fund for wells at the golf course are an example of this.

During the Jan. 3 city council meeting, Timms referred to a Dec. 20 decision by council to transfer $228,999.50 from the city's infrastructure fund to install a new 14 inch well at the Charlevoix Golf Course in a 4-3 vote, calling it a misuse of taxpayer money. He pointed out at that same meeting the council was talking about creating a citizen's committee to look at city services.

"You were talking about a committee to save money, then in the next breath you vote for a quarter of a million water well," he said.

At the Dec. 20 meeting, Timms, council member Karen Campbell and councilmember Shirley Gibson voted against the plan to use infrastructure funds to pay for the well. Council members Bill Haggard, Sherna Chamberlain and Bill Bellows voted for it. Due to the tie, mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson cast a vote for the plan.

At that meeting, council was given two options to solve a water issue at the Charlevoix Golf Course. According to a memo to council from city manager Mike Wiesner, the city must water 12-16 hours a day because it is using a 6 inch well converted to an irrigation well, with a current flow of less than 200 gallons a day.

"We are concerned with the drop in the flow and that the system may fail, thereby possibility causing turf burnout," Wiesner wrote.

Therefore, city staff gave council members two options.

In "option a" the city would fix the existing well and install a new 10 inch well, with a final cost of $252,355. In "option b" the city would install a new 14 inch well, with a final cost of $228,999.50. Option "b" was approved.

Carlson said he voted for the second option because it was the cheaper of the two and, by putting in a new well, it would last longer.

"I was looking into the future, not just putting a Band Aid on it," he said.

But, while Timms did not argue there was a problem at the course with water, he was against using infrastructure funds, which are meant to be used for road repairs and similar issues, to pay for a water well. He also questioned the financial figures given to council, saying he does not believe it costs more to fix the existing well than put in a new well.

"Those are a lot of hokeyed up numbers for my money," he said.

Carlson pointed out to Timms that the city's budget for this year included using infrastructure money to pay for the golf course well and that Timms voted for that budget.

Timms said that vote was under "duress."

"If that's the case, then I won't vote for the budget next time," he said.

Charlevoix Public Library offers genealogy classes and can tell it," she said.

All sessions will help prepare those who attend to compile a complete family history that they can eventually put down on paper. Goodenough recommends writing in biographical fashion, which makes it more pleasing for others to read.

Goodenough has personally been researching her family's history for over 30 years. She has traced her family back to the 1800s and 1700s and traced her husband's family back to the 1500s and almost into the 1400s.

The discoveries she made along the way prompted her to get involved in the field of genealogy.

She eventually started teaching some classes on the subject while living in St. Joseph and also spoke as a part of several programs through local genealogy societies.

Through time, Goodenough said she kept adding different kinds of programs to her teaching and started building up professional clients and helping others do research.

Her own research has led her to England where she and her husband were able to see places their ancestors lived. Goodenough got to see the building where her great-great grandfather ran a stationary shop. It's currently a restaurant, but Goodenough said the building is the original.

"I can't explain the feeling to go into these places and see where they actually lived and worked," she said.

Goodenough has extended her genealogical work to helping found the Charlevoix County History Preservation Society. The society is trying to get complete records on the history of the county and the people who lived and live in it before it's lost.

"While you're telling the history of an area, you're telling the history of the people," she said.

Cynthia Postmus, chairperson of the Michigan Room and a trustee of the library, said the idea for genealogy classes at the library came after the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library were inventorying the Michigan room and came across information that would help the study of genealogy.

Postmus said the library compiled literature and information that would tell of the life and times of people in Charlevoix.

A lot of letters and requests came to the library by people seeking information they needed for their personal family genealogies.

"That made us realize this is a hot hobby," she said.

Postmus said a lot of people in the area have an interest in finding out about their ancestors.

"Genealogy is like a puzzle," Postmus said. "You find one answer and it leads to another."

Postmus said the library is currently working on a project to get all the copies of obituaries from the Charlevoix Courier scanned into the computers. Then, people can access the information and print out a copy instead of only getting bits and pieces of information.

Currently, 800 obituaries have been successfully scanned in.

The sessions will be from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Jan. 19, Jan. 26, Feb. 2, Feb. 9 and Feb. 16. The cost is $7 for members of the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library and $10 for non-members.

Seating is restricted to 16 participants per session due to availability of computers, so it is first-paid and first-enrolled. For more information call the library at 547-2651.

NOTICE OF SHOW CAUSE HEARING AND JUDICIAL FORECLOSURE HEARING NON-PAYMENT OF PROPERTY TAXES

On March 1, 2004 real estate with unpaid 2002 and/or prior years property taxes was forfeited to the Charlevoix County Treasurer pursuant to the General Property Tax Act, Public Act 206 of 1893, PA 206, MCL 211.1 to 211.157, as amended.

The State of Michigan is acting as the Foreclosing Governmental Unit in proceedings to foreclose on this property for unpaid property taxes.

There are two hearings scheduled to finalize the foreclosure process. This publication is intended to provide additional notice to parties of interest in these parcels as to the nature, time, and location of these hearings.

A Show Cause Hearing is scheduled for January 24, 2005 - February 4, 2005 at 430 W Alcona, First Floor, Lansing MI 48922.

Any person with an interest in the property forfeited to the county treasurer may appear at the show cause hearing and redeem that property or show cause why absolute title to that property should not vest in the Foreclosing Governmental Unit.

A Judicial Foreclosure Hearing is scheduled for 2:15 P. M., February 18, 2005 at the 33rd Circuit Court, 301 State St, Charlevoix MI 49720.

At this hearing the Foreclosing Governmental Unit shall ask that the court enter a judgment foreclosing the property as requested in the petition for foreclosure. A person claiming an interest in a parcel of property set forth in the petition for foreclosure, who desires to contest that petition, must file written objections with the clerk of the circuit court and serve those objections on the State of Michigan, the Foreclosing Governmental Unit. The docket number of the petition is 04-386-20-CZ.

If you are a person with an interest in property being foreclosed:

- You have the right to redeem this parcel from the foreclosure process by payment of all forfeited unpaid taxes, interest, penalties, and fees prior to the expiration of the redemption period. You should contact the Charlevoix County Treasurer for the amount required to redeem.
- You may lose your interest in the property as a result of the foreclosure proceeding.
- You have until March 31, 2005, to pay the delinquent taxes, penalties, interest and fees to redeem the property or, unless otherwise ordered by the Court, you will permanently lose your interest in the property.

PLEASE NOTE:

The following list represents parties that appear to have title, lien, or other apparent rights to the parcels being foreclosed by the Foreclosing Governmental Unit.

This notice is required to be given by law, even if the party no longer claims or desires an interest if it appears they hold any undischarged, apparent, or potential title or lien right to the property.

Listing of a party does NOT necessarily indicate that they are the owner of a parcel, or that they are liable for the property taxes.

This list is NOT an offering of property for sale. These parcels are NOT being sold, auctioned, or otherwise made available by virtue of this notice.

There is no procedure for purchasing these parcels from the Foreclosing Governmental Unit at this point in the foreclosure proceedings. Those parcels that are foreclosed and not redeemed may become available at public auction on July, September, and November of 2005. These parcels remain the property of their current owner until redemption rights have expired. No party should make any attempt to inspect or enter upon these parcels assuming them to be for sale. This may constitute trespassing and subject the offender to criminal prosecution. The street address of the parcels listed is based on local records and is not guaranteed to be the actual location of the property.

The amount due listed indicates the balance which was due as of forfeiture on March 1, 2004. The current amount required to redeem must be obtained from the Charlevoix County Treasurer, as additional penalties, fees, and interest have accrued since forfeiture.

Outdoor themed artwork to be featured at center

Crooked Tree Arts Center invites you to enter into the woods during the months of January and February.

In two separate shows dedicated to the beauty of trees, the West Gallery will house the woven forest of Saginaw artist Roz Berlin while the Edith Gilbert Gallery will showcase the work of Kalamazoo artist Ladislav Hanka and the Legend of the Crooked Tree.

For the first two weeks in January, Berlin, with the help of the visual arts committee at Crooked Tree Arts Center, will transform the West Gallery into a forest of woven color and light. Hundreds of trees rising as high as fifteen feet into the air will fill the gallery. Visitors will experience a different world when they enter the Fantasy Forest.

Berlin, having received bachelors and masters degrees in art from Michigan State University, has been "growing" her colorful forest for over 30 years. Employing a four harness floor loom, she has woven her trees using a blend of natural and synthetic fibers. Just like a real forest, her "new growth" has changed and evolved over the years to shape a deep, dense grove for wandering.

The Edith Gilbert Gallery will feature the etchings and drawings of Ladislav Hanka. In the fall of 2004, Hanka began a quest to research the "Crooked Tree" and create new works dedicated to this theme. After several lengthy conversations with the local Ottawa elders, Hanka has traveled the backwoods of the northern Michigan in search of specific tree formations. Hanka has graduate degrees in art and zoology, having studied at Colorado State University, Kalamazoo College and Western Michigan University as well as in Bonn, Vienna and Prague.

The opening reception for both exhibitions is scheduled from 4 to 6 p.m. Jan. 16.

"Crooked Tree will be alive with an interdisciplinary celebration of the arts" Gail Lambert, Visual Arts / Education Director at Crooked Tree Arts Center said.

There will be original music composed by Leif Kolt, original dance performances, choreographed by Jody Adgate of Concord Academy Antrim and Sylvia Jania of Concord Petoskey, original costumes designed by Jan Hoffman and food served by woodland characters.

Crooked Tree Arts Center is located at 461 East Mitchell Street in Petoskey. Hours of operation are Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. and Saturdays from 10 until 4 p.m.

For information please contact the center at (231) 347-4337.

Eagle scout honored

The rank of Eagle Scout in the Boy Scouts of America was officially awarded to Thomas Castiglione at the Eagle Scout Court of Honor Ceremony on Dec. 19. This achievement was recognized at the Norwood Township Board during its monthly meeting on Thursday, Dec. 20. By resolution, the township board members extended best wishes to Castiglione for future success and happiness on the behalf of the community.

The Castiglione benefited greatly by the completion of the approved Eagle Project performed by Thomas and some of his fellow scouts. This project resulted in the cleanup and renovation of the township park grounds, the outcome which can be enjoyed by many this upcoming spring and summer.

Antrim County Prosecutor warns about check scam

The Michigan State Police, Kalkaska Post, in conjunction with other local police agencies and the Antrim County Prosecuting Attorney's Office are currently investigating a fraudulent check writing scheme involving a fictitious business in the area.

On Dec. 28, some suspects opened a business checking account under the name of Torch Lake Landscaping. The individuals involved have been targeting local merchants, especially grocery stores and are either purchasing items from local merchants or are having local merchants cash checks that are made to appear to be payroll checks.

The checking account has been closed.

The individuals involved have been very active in the Northwestern area of the lower peninsula of Michigan, including the counties of Antrim, Grand Traverse, Charlevoix, Emmet and Kalkaska.

The Antrim County Prosecuting Attorney Charles H. Koop is providing this information to warn local merchants not to accept any check from Torch Lake Landscaping and to immediately report to their local police agency any individual attempting to pass checks written on the account of Torch Lake Landscaping.

If a merchant has been a victim of this scheme, or if a person has any knowledge of the persons who may be involved, they should contact the Michigan State Police Post in their area or their local police agency.

This is an ongoing criminal investigation.

Army frustrates family in emergency

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The one man in Charlevoix who can bring soldiers home in the event of a family emergency was denied the right to have his own son come home for his own family emergency.

Troy Drebenstedt

home to attend his grandmother's funeral.

"I am very disappointed and upset over the lack of concern," he said.

Drebenstedt, who is retired from the Army, said he went through all the right channels and was still denied the right to have Troy come home.

"Veteran's Affairs can bring home other service people, but I can't bring home my own son for an immediate family emergency," he said.

He sent a request through the American Red Cross in Petoskey on Dec. 21 and within two hours the Army had Troy on the phone.

Drebenstedt said he told Troy that his grandmother was dying, who is someone Troy had lived with for five years and was very close to.

Upon hearing this, Drebenstedt said Troy asked if he should come home. Drebenstedt said not yet as it was uncertain when she would die, but it would be in the next five or six days.

Drebenstedt said the Army gave Troy permission to leave, but he didn't take it and told them he was on standby until further notice.

However, when Drebenstedt learned it would take his son three days to come home he immediately called the Red Cross again.

This time, Drebenstedt said it took 14 hours before his son was notified by the Army. When Troy asked for permission to leave, Drebenstedt said the Army told Troy he couldn't since he passed up the first opportunity.

Drebenstedt said when he heard the Army denied his son the right to come home, he called the Red Cross for a third request. This time, however, it took the Army 24 hours to notify Troy.

Betsy Hanson, executive director of the American Red Cross in Petoskey, said the service they feature is called the Armed Forces Emergency Services, which features communications as part of the services available.

"All we can do is deliver the message and make verifications," she said. "The military decides yes or no."

Hanson said the proper procedure starts by a family member calling because of an emergency, that the military person needs to know about.

The American Red Cross takes down the information about the soldier and the message to be conveyed. They then call the hospital or place where the person in the emergency is located and verify the information with a doctor or other medical personnel.

The American Red Cross then contacts the Armed Forces Emergency Center, who verifies the information. A message is then sent to the military service person. Hanson said the Red Cross then waits for confirmation that the message was delivered, which can take anywhere from six hours to a few days. Hanson said this all depends on the difficulty in locating a specific service person.

"We generally hear back within 12 hours," she said.

The commanding officer and the service person then make the decision to come home or stay and the Red Cross gets a message back to the family.

"With cell phones and the Internet, most people know what's going on," Hanson said.

For the most part, Hanson said the relationship between the Red Cross and the military runs smoothly.

"Families are pleased there's this message," she said. "It's been used for years and it's a nice service we can provide the community."

Despite all of his efforts and

Public Notice?

Without it in your newspaper, you're left guessing what the government's doing in your community.

Public notice is the people's right to know the issues that affect them directly, and people know the place to find public and legal notices is in the newspaper. What you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. Public notices have been posted here since the days of colonial America. In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. Why guess? That is why you have, and read, your newspaper... where your right to know is already being served.

Father upset with army

that of the American Red Cross. Drebenstedt said the Army denied Troy any leave since he had turned down the previous offer.

Drebenstedt said they also treated his son rudely instead of focusing on the person requesting his leave.

After talking to Troy for the third time on Dec. 26, Drebenstedt said his grandmother died an hour later.

"Troy was extremely upset," he said.

Drebenstedt said he saw his son go from a gung-ho young soldier to having hardly any morale at all.

"I believed in the country to the point that my son had my blessing," he said.

Despite all his sadness, Drebenstedt said his son has continued with his obligations to the Army.

Drebenstedt has written letters expressing his anger over how the Army handled the situation to United States Senators Debbie Stabenow and Carl Levin of Michigan, President George W. Bush, Congressman Bart Stupak of Michigan's 1st Congressional District and Congresswoman Candice Miller of Michigan's 10th District.

"This is a poor way to keep moral up with the troops by saying no," he wrote in the letter to President Bush.

"I am mad that no one can write either the Red Cross or me."

The Army is supposed to write a letter granting permission for leave or denying it to the Red Cross or the individual soldier's family.

However, Drebenstedt said he has yet to receive such a letter despite being told he would twice.

"They never wrote anything," he said.

"After I told Troy, his Battalion Commander said he can go home days after he heard that I would be telling the newspaper."

Drebenstedt said his hope is that this doesn't happen to other soldiers in the future.

Quilting not just for older women

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Quilting isn't just women's work, it's an art that requires dedication, precision and a good eye and several Charlevoix residents are skilled with a needle.

Cynthia Garland, a member of the Charlevoix Historical Society, has been quilting for about 12 years. Despite the numerous ways to construct a quilt, Garland prefers the more traditional patterns that women have been quilting throughout the years.

"I'm a mathematician," she said. "I like the symmetry and preciseness of old patterns. It's geometry and algebra all wrapped into one."

Garland's interest in quilting comes from her mother, who quilted until she died. Garland said she started quilting soon after and has been doing it ever since.

To get started she used some of her mother's left over fabric and took a few classes. She has since helped make about 250 quilts in the last two years for the pediatric unit at Northern Michigan Hospital.

Judith Ivan, a professional hand quilter, is currently working on a commissioned quilt for her business Joy of Stitching. The quilt is a 12-month quilt and Ivan has created the first six months. Ivan is using someone else's pattern, but has created some unique squares to accommodate her customer's taste.

Quilting has a rich history behind its art

tal as a part of the Little Traverse Bay Quilt Guild.

For about a year, Garland made quilts strictly by hand, which is how she learned. But over the years she has done more and more with the assistance of a sewing machine.

"I make whatever I'd like to make and what looks good to me at the time," she said.

Two of the quilts in Garland's possession were made by her great-great grandmother when she lived in Charlevoix.

"I admired those," she said. "Back in that time, quilting wasn't necessarily a choice."

Garland said young women used to either knit or quilt in the evening and not just sit around, especially since there wasn't any television.

This gradually lent itself to the social circle of quilting bees, which can still be enjoyed today.

Garland herself said she enjoys the fun of getting together with other people and sharing in the craft.

Quilts were not only functional, they were also used to teach. Garland said a lot of the old, traditional quilting patterns come from the Underground Railroad quilts.

Since a lot of slaves were illiterate, quilts were used to instruct them on how to pass safely through the Underground Railroad and what to watch out for along the way.

Several patterns used then are still around today. The star pattern taught slaves to look for the North Star in order to find their way. Garland said the bear paw pattern instructed them to follow the bear's trail through the woods.

The quilts also were used as a sign of a safe house slaves could find refuge in while using the Underground Railroad. Garland said the log cabin quilt features a pattern that has a square center. If this center was red slaves keep walking, but if it was black they knew they would be safe there.

Her interest in the history of quilts has enabled her to be able to closely tell the age of a quilt by looking at the fabric that was used.

"I am strictly self taught," she said.

Garland has read several books and attended lectures and usually is close if not exact about the age of a quilt. However, this can be tricky as old quilts sometimes have new threads in them.

People sometimes inherit a quilt top, but it's not completed and so they add the back and a border. This, Garland said, causes some quilts to have two different dates.

"You really have to go by the latest fabric," she said.

Another local quilter, Kathie Briggs, not only enjoys quilting but had some of her work displayed at the International Quilting Festival in Houston.

Briggs took part in an Internet quilting group, A Page From My Book: Journal Quilt Project 2004, and created several small quilts per month along with the other women. Five of her quilts were displayed at the festival.

She said she enjoyed experimenting with new ideas on a smaller scale that she could reproduce on a larger scale.

Briggs has been quilting on and off for about 10 years but has been the most active the past three years. However, she has been sewing all her life.

As such, Briggs prefers to create picture or art quilts instead of the traditional patchwork quilts, which she also admires.

Fabric is her medium of choice, which she also uses to create her art dolls. Her dolls and quilts are interrelated as she said one inspires the creation of the other.

She loves fabric as it is a tactile medium and something one can actually manipulate while using.

"You actually feel the essence of the material," she said.

Judith Ivan, a professional hand quilter, has created a business out of her passion for quilting.

Joy of Stitching has been in business since June 2002. When she started out she quilted all of her commissions by hand, but found that this wasn't financially beneficial. She now quilts with the aid of a sewing machine and saves hand quilting for her own creations.

"I always had an interest in quilting," she said.

Ivan began sewing when she was 14 years old and has continued to do so for 35 years. However, quilting has been an evolution for her as she first began with garment sewing.

As a theater major she chose to help costume the actors, which allowed her to utilize her sewing skills and create an eye for color combinations.

A quilt isn't limited to one type or style and that's one aspect that keeps Ivan creating.

"It's brand new everytime you do it in terms of creativity," she said.

Choosing the color is the best part for Ivan. She said she loves to play with color schemes and try different combinations. Personally, she likes to use a lot of greens and blues.

Ivan enjoys creating utilitarian or functional quilts while others enjoy creating heirloom quilts.

Ivan has several antique utilitarian quilts from her great grandmother and her grandmother. Her grandmother's passion was singing, but at the turn of the century all young girls had to learn how to sew.

Ivan said she doesn't understand why needle and fabric art hasn't been considered fine art sooner.

"There are some phenomenal art quilters out there," she said.

Her theory, is that fiber art isn't considered fine art because it doesn't last as long as a sculpture or an oil painting. A painting by Leonardo DaVinci can be touched up every 500 years, Ivan said, but a quilt would be rotten in 500 years.

Stitching of any kind isn't just for older women as Ivan said many younger women are coming back to the art. Part of the history of women and quilting is the social aspect, which Ivan said can be like support groups.

"It's very helpful to get someone else's eye," she said.

The art of quilting is something Ivan wants to see continue to grow in the years to come.

"It's a connection for women through the centuries," she said. "Young women find a great deal of satisfaction in the creativity of it."

Snowfall doesn't mean fun is over and hemlocks, but then they become hardwoods including sugar maple, beech and ash.

Adams said the land was donated in 1980 by an anonymous donor.

For those on Beaver Island, Adams said the Little Sand Bay Nature Preserve provides land for snowshoeing on 60 acres.

However, while the land is provided, people must already have snowshoes or rent them. Adams said snowshoes can be rented from Bahnhof Sports in Charlevoix or at Jordan Valley Outfitters in East Jordan.

If snowshoeing isn't the ideal way to spend a winter afternoon, one can cross country ski on those nature preserves as well or go to the many local ski hills including Mount McSaubia.

Ice skating is also another winter sport that is great exercise and a fun way to spend the day. The ice skating rink in Charlevoix is located across from Charlevoix Middle School.

If speed is what one desires, then snowmobiling is the winter sport of choice.

With a snowmobile, one can cover more distance and see more land than by snowshoeing or cross country skiing.

Bruce Wood, president of the Charlevoix Snowmobile Club, said he loves all winter sports but snowmobiling is a great way to spend time with one's family.

"You get to be outdoors and enjoy the winter," he said.

As their main activity, the Charlevoix Snowmobile Club keeps the trails groomed between Charlevoix and East Jordan.

Also, as a member of the Jordan Valley Trails Council along with the Antrim County Snowmobile Club and the East Jordan Snowmobilers Inc., the trails between Charlevoix and M-72 are kept well groomed.

"Last year, we (Jordan Valley Trails Council) groomed the most miles than anyone in the lower peninsula," he said.

If snowmobiling is something of interest, Wood said the Charlevoix Snowmobile Club is going to have a ride-in from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Jan. 29.

Snowmobilers will ride into Charlevoix and meet in East Park, snow permitting.

Wood said if there isn't enough snow, then the group will meet at Ferry Beach.

"Club members put it on to try and get people to come to Charlevoix," he said.

The club has been hosting the ride-in for the past five years and last year they had an excess of 100 people attend and it was the first time the event occurred in East Park.

Wood said this year there will probably be over 100 that attend, snow permitting.

The club is also a member of the Michigan Snowmobile Association and does various activities as such.

Wood said the club will also go on destination or saddle bag trips that involve riding 100 to 200 miles to a certain destination and spending the night.

That is repeated for two to five nights before heading back to the trailers.

Wood does warn that those who are interested in snowmobiling and want to give it a try should buy the proper clothing.

Woods has been snowmobiling since 1968 and said the clothing has become so technologically advanced that one stays extremely warm.

"It's very comfortable," he said.

Boss boys open modular home dealership

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Wayne, Jeremy and Jon Boss are teaming up to bring more housing options to Charlevoix residents.

This branch of the Boss family have joined together this month in the creation of Boss Building Company as a local retailer of General Housing Corporation customized modular homes. Additionally, it gives the family a chance to go into business in Charlevoix together and do something they are known for — home construction. Wayne has been building homes and other developments in the Charlevoix area since the 1980s.

"This is to continue a long-standing family commitment to improving the Charlevoix area by providing quality built affordable homes," co-owner Jeremy Boss said. "We have the ability to provide quality custom homes built for everyone and to provide a friendly, helpful environment."

Boss said Boss Building has four housing plans for customers to pick from. Once a plan is chosen, the customer can pick the size of their kitchen, living room or bedrooms, the layout of the home and many other customizations.

Once the choices are made, the order is sent to General Housing Corporation and the customer's home is stick-built at its Bay City factory, where it is then shipped to Charlevoix. Once Boss Building receives the home, they install it on your property and finish it to your liking. The homes also feature brand-name items like Pella Windows, Delta Faucets, Kenmore Appliances and Congoleum Flooring.

But, Boss Building does not stop at helping you design your home. Boss said the company can also do site work, such as building basements, cement work, excavation and surveying.

As for affordability of the homes, Boss said many stick built homes cost around $125 a square foot. However, Boss Building can do the work for $80 to $85 a square foot.

Boss said the idea for creating Boss Building came out of his desire to come back to Charlevoix and work with his family. Currently, Boss works in Attended as an industrial adhesive salesman, but was raised in Charlevoix.

"I was looking for an opportunity to get back up here," he said.

Now he has that chance and the chance to join his brother and father, Wayne, to help Charlevoix people find that

Volleyball team improving its skills

By B. JON GOHS
Sports writer

With a blowout against the Ramblers leading to a total of eight of the last 11 matches won, the Rayders varsity volleyball team is showing marked improvement.

Charlevoix defeated Boyne City three games to nothing at home Thursday in anything but close competition with scores of 25-10, 25-15 and 25-11.

"It was nice to come out sweeping the match for our first conference opener," coach Liz Grunch said.

Emily Heffling led the team with four aces while Kari Way had 14 kills and Teresa Martin had nine kills, four digs and two aces.

Winning more matches than they lost wasn't enough to advance them Saturday as the Rayders lost to Petoskey 13-25 and 22-25.

They followed that with a loss of 17-25 to Harbor Springs.

"We were third in our pool so we didn't make it out of pool play," she said. "We really didn't get things going early against Petoskey."

She added, "We were dead offensively; we just didn't get going until the fourth game and by that time it was too late."

Despite a shaky start, the girls managed to end the day on a positive note as the fourth game resulted in a win against Harbor Springs of 25-15.

It was the turnaround they needed as they went on to win every other game at Saturday's conference.

Their late arriving winning streak consisted of 25-16 and 25-19 over St. Ignace, and 25-10 and 25-19 over Grayling.

Zita Anderson had 57 assists, Teresa Martin had nine digs, 23 kills and six aces, Betsey Dennis had six aces, 10 kills and for her hustle she was named team MVP. Way had 22 kills and four aces.

The girls are now 2-1-1 in the conference and 9-3-3 overall.

"Right now it's the consistency that's killing us," she said. "It's hard when we practice so hard and it doesn't translate when they come out and play. Hopefully in time we'll get that all together."

The lady Rayders seem to shine at times holding the first eight or nine points of a game.

But, Grunch said, "We haven't been able to keep that up the whole match. Communication is still our problem."

She added, "We've done a little better on defense, but our communication is what will hold us together."

Grunch is confident the communication issues will resolve themselves with more practice in game situations.

"We have two short practices and one long practice, hopefully we'll keep them (the girls) sharp," she said.

The Rayders' next game is against East Jordan, who they played early in the season.

"We split with them," Grunch said. "They have an excellent coach. He's working really hard to get the team turned around."

The Rayders have two conference games this week at 6 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 13 in East Jordan and 6 p.m., Monday, Jan. 17 at home against Harbor Springs and Grayling.

Despite injuries, grapplers do well in tourney

The Rayders' wrestling team traveled to Frankfort's tournament Jan. 8.

Charlevoix took fourth out of 10 teams.

"The team did well considering we went into the tournament short our 125 and 135 weight classes due to injuries and after pinning his opponent in the first round Nick Gottshall had to forfeit the rest of his matches due to an injury."

Coach Craig Golovich said,

"We had three top wrestlers of the day."

Spencer Hankins, who was seeded seventh in a 10 man bracket, finished an impressive second. Jaimen Waha wrestled hard all day to take the championship in the 171 weight class. Jed Damian finished first in the 140 weight class and is holding an undefeated record this year at 17-0.

Other places for the team were second place for Shannon Gillespie and fourth place for Drew Klooster, Jeff Golovich and Woody Nitchman.

The Rayders are headed to Kalkaska Monday evening and Kingsley next Saturday.

Area hockey playing well

Boyne Area Hockey's Paul Bunyan Lanes Midget team played in Gaylord on Jan. 9 and decisively took both games.

In the first game, aggressive offense, tenacious defense by blueliners Matt Kopke, Isaac Krey, Will Brown, Darren Looze and Evan Keller, and rock solid goaltending by Charlie Courtright earned the team an 8-0 win and Courtright the shutout.

Troy Scarbrough opened the scoring midway through the first period with an assist from Nick Dunwoody, then Ryan Hennessy put away a breakaway goal unassisted.

Russell Williams executed a pretty wraparound goal with assists from Eli Bارسy and Ryan Pardee. Pardee took passes from Bارسy and Williams and bounced one off the goalie's legboard and in over his shoulder.

Looze slammed home a one-timer from the blue line from a JP Fiedorek pass. Williams popped two more in earning a hat trick, with assists from Kopke, Pardee and Bارسy.

John Miller backhanded in the topper with a Gear Robinson pass. Bارسy earned a playmaker with three assists in the game.

The second game was marked by balanced scoring, great passing and a total team effort. Britt King, Bارسy and Hennessy each scored twice. Pardee, Gabe Korthase, Looze, Scarbrough and Chris Loyselle all found the net as well.

Bارسy, Looze and Scarbrough each gave an assist; Brown, Matt Kopke, Keller and Dunwoody tallied two apiece. Courtright was between the pipes, and the score stood at 11-4 at the ending buzzer.

Basketball team wins close game against Harbor

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The night started off on the wrong foot so, to speak for Charlevoix's Jared Hunt as he twisted his ankle on the opening tip of the Rayders' game against Harbor Springs.

Hunt recovered to score 35 points in one of the best performances in recent Charlevoix bas-kethall history, leading the Rayders to a thrilling 83-81 overtime win over rival Harbor Springs. Jake Teuscher's tip-in as time expired won the game for Charlevoix.

The undefeated Rayders, ranked third in Class C by the Associated Press, also defeated Petoskey last week, 65-41.

Ski teams have slow start to season

The Charlevoix/East Jordan High School boys' and girls' ski teams started off their seasons Jan. 4 at the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Invitational.

The boys finished thirteenth in the meet, out of 15, with Harbor Springs A team finishing first. The girls finished seventh, out of 14, with Marquette finishing first.

"We got the first race jitters out of the way," coach Sue Miller said. "The girls had good results considering we had some crashes and errors which cost us in the results. The boys also had some mistakes and crashes. We can only improve and move forward from here."

In the individual races, the boys finished twelfth in the giant slalom and fourteenth in the slalom. The girls finished fourth in the giant slalom and ninth in the slalom.

Individual results for the girls in the giant slalom were: Katherine Rowley in ninth, with a total time of 1 minute, percent of the total number of voters registered to vote in the last city election to sign it.

Mayor: Petition talk on park is premature

Then a referendum petition is filed with the clerk within 30 days after the ordinance in question was adopted. The clerk then checks the petitions, and if the petition is valid, the council determines whether it will reconsider the ordinance.

Council has 30 days to reconsider. If it fails to act or decides to stick with its decision, then it must be put to the voters of the city.

Carlson said he is confident a compromise can be reached before it comes to this point. He said when it comes time for the city council to decide on a final plan for East Park, if a majority of the residents tell him that they dislike plans to tear down the current band shell, he said he would support them.

Carlson added he is not against the community taking a vote on the East Park matter, especially if everything is taken care of on the marina side of the project.

"That is not necessarily a bad idea," he said.

What Carlson is concerned about is this latest issue is if it would hold up the marina side of the project. He said if the marina side is delayed any longer, then the city could lose its funding from the Waterway's Commission.

Carlson said he would like to see these two matters split.

However, at this time, Carlson does not seem to be in favor of keeping the current band shell. He said when it was built, it was in a great location because the Parkside and Wharfside buildings were still standing behind it. However, those buildings have been torn down to make way for new park land and if the current band shell stays, it will be located in the middle of the park.

And since it is in the middle of the park, he said there will be access issues for bands and no room for dressing or storage rooms.

Picha said this matter is really only related to the band shell. She said, while she thinks the dock plan is too big on the marina side of the project, she is not trying to get that project stalled and does feel the sea wall at the Charlevoix Municipal Marina needs to be replaced.

The band shell Picha is referring to is located in the center of East Park. It was built using donations and named for former band director Clarence Odmark. Since renovation plans became public showing the band shell would be torn down in the park, many people have come forward voicing their disapproval.

At a recent Downtown Development Meeting, Charlevoix Planning Commissioner John Hess said he was part of a committee that was soliciting funds to build the band shell. Now only a few years later, he said, the city is considering tearing down that very band shell that he helped raise money to build.

"In my opinion, we are misusing public and private funds," he said.

He added, "I feel I have somewhat broken a promise (to those who donated)."

However, those in favor of plans to tear down the current band shell say it is needed. They say the current band shell does not have good acoustics and it will be out of place in the middle of the park. Proposed designs for East Park show a band shell being constructed on the southern boundary of the park, near Antrim Street.

But, Hess pointed out the current band shell was built using advice from an acoustical engineer.

The current band shell was constructed in 1992. At the time, plans to tear down the previous band shell to build the current one faced much criticism. The design for the current band shell was changed twice.

However, the community came to a consensus on the design and raised private money combined with Downtown Development Authority money to fund the project.

To contact Picha with your thoughts on a petition and East Park, call 547-4169.

SCRAPBOOK

Yearbooks bring back many memories

Marilyn Boss
'Days gone by'

This week, Louie Dixon, who now lives in Massachusetts, gave me a picture of his class in the school year of 1949, 1950.

He also had a copy of the Charlevoix High School Chanticleer, the school annual of 1924. His sister, Louise, let me use the information to write an article. The picture of Louie's class is first, and the children are listed as follows: (front row, from left) Melvin Blane, Al Towsley, Robert Sharrow, Bobby Balch, unknown, Jim VerWys, (second row) Charles Alexander, Steve Wells, Joe Battle, Joe Schultz, Doug Smith, Don Sutton, Robert Harrington, (third row) Judy Ingalls, Helen Schwab, Charlene Novotny, Carol Belfy, Cynthia Curtis, Gail Curtis, Sandra Ulrich, Ms. Arnold, Wilma Johnson (back) Jill Davis, Tom Lakies, Don Beeman, Mike Geneit, unknown, John Bingham and Louie Dixon.

I remember most of these Charlevoix kids, and I appreciate seeing a class picture of them.

Louie's mother, Elizabeth, also had a 1924 Charlevoix High School year book, which was given to her by Mutt Vosburg. It is called The Chanticleer. In the forward it says, "To the students of Charlevoix High, and the townsmen of Charlevoix." Rolfe

L. Lewis, a local attorney, was chairman of the Board of Education. The other board members were Mrs. Lisle Shanahan, Lee R. Smith, Mrs. Arthur Bergeon and Dr. Frank M. Wilkinson.

They had a list of their high school spring elections, and the most popular boy was Albert E. Widdifield. The handsomest was Gordon Todd. The laziest was Norman Shanahan, the worst line of bunk was Albert Widdifield. They elected Norman Shanahan to be the biggest liar and Thomas Neilson to be the biggest hayseed. Among the girls, the most popular and most studious was Peggy Drulik; the prettiest, Margaret Fitch; most bashful, Lottie Ager and Vera Belding. The girl with the worst line of bunk and the biggest liar was Anne McCann.

In the junior class, the most popular boy was Charles Dagwell, and the most popular girls were Thelma Ranney and Doris Hammond. In the sophomore class, the most popular boy was Gilbert Sultonstall and popular girl was Henrietta Baldwin. The most popular boy in the freshman class was William Fessenden, and popular girls, Virginia Parker and Gwen Geneit.

In the junior high, the popular boy was Lye Beaudoin and the popular girl was Doris Krulik. I was surprised at some of the categories.

Some of the advertisers were The Charlevoix County Bank, with 40 years of service. The owners were Nicholls, Butters and Bridge, (the bank on the corner). The Charlevoix State Savings Bank, had $600,000 in assets. There was George Priest, photographer, located in the old Parkside building. There was Bergeon's Dry Goods, and men's and boy's wear. The Argo Milling Co., located where the Weathervane restaurant is today, advertised White Rose Flour. Charlevoix Abstract and Engineering sold insurance, and had a $5 special automobile accident policy. M.A. Levinson advertised that they had all the new spring shades in silk hosiery. Fred Cartier, a tailor and cleaner, had the latest styles in fabrics for suits, and said that he was using odorless Energine for cleaning.

This picture from the 1949-1950 school year is talked about in more detail in Marilyn Boss' accompanying column this week.

cils for 75 cents to $5.00, and fountain pens for $1 to $5. Charlevoix Lumber Co., at the bridge, had a complete line of building materials. Their phone number was 22. Benjamin Brown Auto Sales was the agent for Star, Durant and Overland cars. H.R. Fowler operated the Charlevoix-Petoskey bus lines, and it was only a 50 minute ride to Petoskey. The Sugar Bowl at 218 Bridge, was owned by George Glados. They had homemade candy, fancy box candy and soft drinks of all kinds. Fessenden the Druggist, located where Subway is today, was the agency for Whitman's Chocolates.

The Hallett Hotel for tourists, located where Oleson's is today, advertised handy garages on M-11, which was the main highway into town, and is now Antrim Street.

That is the reason for the boulevard lights which run the full length of Antrim, as that was the main road into Charlevoix from the south.

It wasn't until 1932 that the main highway came into town, and is now called US-31. The deteriorated curbing from Carpenter north to Hurlbut Street, is the 1932 vintage, and is the reason the street is so narrow.

I enjoy receiving these bits of the past, and appreciate being able to use them to let you also remember the old days.

which ended in a 16-16 tie, Harbor Springs took the lead at 20-18 at the 6:37 mark of the second quarter. The Rams would keep that lead until there was 5:14 left in the game.

Harbor Springs led by as many six in the first half and by five, 36-31 at intermission.

In the third quarter, the Rams extended the lead to 12 at 43-31 before Eddie Waldron scored four points in a run that cut the advantage to 44-37 with 3:20 left in the third period.

Hunt, who had scored eight points in the game's first 21 minutes, scored eight points in the last three minutes of the third quarter, including a three at the buzzer to cut the Ram lead to eight at 54-46.

In the fourth quarter, Hunt took over, scoring Charlevoix's first 14 points of the quarter in just three minutes of play. Hunt traded baskets with the Rams, hitting three three-pointers in the run, including one from beyond NBA three-point range that brought the Charlevoix crowd to its collective feet and cut the lead to 61-59 with 5:45 to go.

Harbor called timeout and extended their defense on Hunt to cover him belly to belly the length of the court but he still escaped to get open for a three-point shot. When the Rams ran to cover him, they committed a foul. Hunt calmly sank all three free throws to give the Rayders the lead, 62-61 with 5:14 remaining.

against the extended Harbor defense gave Charlevoix a 70-67 advantage with two minutes to play. The Rayders called timeout and went into a four corners offense designed to run time off the clock. The strategy failed though when Charlevoix was fouled and couldn't convert at the free throw line.

The Rams hit one of two free throws with 57 seconds left in regulation to tie the game. Hunt then drove and when the defense collapsed against him, he dishd to Jake Teuscher for a layup.

Harbor tied the game on free throws with 40 seconds left and appeared to take the lead on a steal and dunk with 20 seconds left but the Ram player was called for traveling. The noise of the gym was so deafening that most did not hear the referee's whistle stopping play.

Neither team scored again in regulation. In overtime the teams traded baskets with Hunt and Phil Steen scoring for Charlevoix. Harbor Springs hit a three-pointer to go up 79-76 with 2:45 to play but Jake Teuscher answered with a putback off an offensive rebound to cut the lead to one.

Waldron then scored off a feed from Hunt to give Charlevoix a 80-79 lead with 1:28 to play. The Rams scored on a putback to retake the lead seconds later. Hunt then sank one of two free throws with 57 seconds left to tie the game, 81-81.

For the last possession of the game, the Rayders put the ball again into the hands of Hunt who drove and dishd to Cody Crain in the corner. Crain shot with only seconds to go and his shot bounced long. Jake Teuscher timed his jump perfectly tipping the ball in as time expired.

Hunt had six assists to go with his 35 points on the night. He made five three-pointers. Waldron had 13 points, nine rebounds and five assists off the bench.

Jake Teuscher had 10 points and nine rebounds. Matt Kautz had seven rebounds.

Against Petoskey, Hunt led the way with 13 points. Waldron and Steen each scored eight points. Waldron grabbed six rebounds. Crain had five rebounds and four assists.

Charlevoix hosts Traverse City St. Francis on Friday, Jan. 14 in Lake Michigan Conference play. They hosted Grayling earlier in the week, but results were unavailable at press time.

LaBlance honored

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

This year's recipient of the Outstanding Citizen Award isn't afraid to sing to her own tune.

Charlevoix resident Marina LaBlance received the honor on Jan. 13 during the 47th Annual Meeting of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

"I am truly surprised, shocked and speechless," she said.

The Outstanding Citizen Award is given to someone who has surpassed any expectations of them and has served the community.

John Sturock, superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools, said LaBlance has helped create programs the schools wouldn't otherwise have.

"She couldn't be a more deserving person to receive the award," he said. "She does so much for our communities and schools."

LaBlance, a music educator at Charlevoix Elementary School, has been teaching for 32 years and believes strongly in the benefit of the arts in a child's education and development.

She moved to Charlevoix in 1972 and since then has helped area children form an appreciation for the arts.

Her dedication to education earned her the Outstanding Elementary Teacher of America Award in 1973 during her first year of teaching. Then, in 1996, her colleagues and peers nomi-

At the Annual Meeting of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, three citizens were honored for their contributions to the community and chamber. John M. Frey received the Ambassador Award, but was out of the country so Robert Tambellini, president of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation (left), accepted the award on his behalf. nated and voted for LaBlance to receive the Outstanding Person of Education Award.

LaBlance has also received the E. Dale Kennedy Award for excellence in promoting education and in 2004 received an eddi Award for her dedication to the arts and education during the Fourth Annual eddi Awards on Sept. 17.

The eddi Award not only recognized LaBlance's dedication, but also her role in promoting the arts in Emmet and Charlevoix counties.

Ledahl, Frey receive awards for work

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

James R. Ledahl and John M. Frey were recognized for their efforts and contributions to the community during the 47th Annual Meeting of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

The meeting was Thursday, Jan. 13 at the Charlevoix Country Club. Ledahl was recognized with the Chairman's Award and Frey received the Ambassador Award.

"There are so many of you here who are more deserving of this than I am and I thank you very much," Ledahl said.

The Chairman's Award is given to someone who has gone above and beyond what was required of them in helping the chamber service the greater Charlevoix area through various projects and events.

Ledahl started working at the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce in 1999 and dedicated his time and efforts to improving the organization.

Even though he is retired, Ledahl continues to volunteer his time to the chamber including the new event, the Taste of Charlevoix.

"It's both overwhelming and humbling," he said of receiving the award.

Ledahl was born in Frankfort and moved to Charlevoix 23 years ago. He and Inge, his wife of 35 years, currently live in Horton Bay in the house Ledahl built. Ledahl thanked his wife and said she has always been his best friend.

"I'm relieved that I'm not keeping a secret anymore," Inge said.

"I'm very proud of him."

He has one child and two grandchildren and is dedicated to his family.

Both Ledahl and Inge served in the United States Air Force. Ledahl served as a navigator on bombers and was also part of the Air Force Logistics Command. He completed two tours in Vietnam and retired as a major after 20 years of service.

He has served his country and continues to serve his local community.

Web site features men wanted for child support

Sheriff George T. Lasater, in conjunction with Charlevoix County Friend of the Court Office, will feature a subject wanted from the sheriff's office for failure to pay child support when warrants to arrest are authorized by the circuit court judge.

The sheriff will feature one circuit court subject each month on the web site with a photograph, description, information and amount of arrears. This effort is being promoted to expedite Friend of the Court matters for financial support of children in Charlevoix County.

The sheriff's office will offer a reward of $50 to the citizen who submits information that leads to the arrest of the featured subject. If the wanted subject is arrested before the month is over a replacement wanted person will be placed on the web site.

To access the sheriff's office web site go to www.charlevoix-county.org/sheriff.asp.

Correction

In a picture outline for a boy scout that was honored at the Norwood Township meeting on page 14 of last week's edition of the Charlevoix Courier, it should have said the township benefited greatly by Thomas Castiglione's project.

Also, in the scrapbook section of last week's edition of the Courier, in a list of the children pictured on the page, it should have included George Schultz and Eric Arvilla.

Commission to have public hearing on building sizes

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Related story on page 16

The city of Charlevoix Planning Commission will be having a public hearing at 6 p.m., Feb. 14 to consider an ordinance limiting the size of retail stores.

The ordinance is targeted at "big box" stores, such as Wal-Mart, which are known for very large, boxy retail buildings, surrounded by big parking lots. These stores are blamed for causing the decline of downtown areas.

Charlevoix planner Gerry Harsch said, "There are a number of communities around the country that have enacted limitations on the size of these stores."

The proposed ordinance that the commission is looking at would limit retailers having a gross leasable area of greater than 15,000 square feet to not exceed a gross leasable area of 45,000 square feet.

Harsch said, for the purpose of comparison, the Glen's Market at the corner of M-66 and Bridge Street is 40,700 square feet and the Rite-Aid drugstore is 13,000 square feet.

He said the ordinance that would limit the size of the retail stores to 45,000 square feet appealed to him as cannot OK something that may change."

While the commissioners voted unanimously to send the matter to a public hearing, in discussing the ordinance, some did have concerns about it.

Commissioner John Hess questioned if a developer could just build several 45,000 square foot buildings next to each other to get around the ordinance.

Harsch said a developer could do that under this ordinance, but he added, "We simply do not have land where you could do three 45,000 square foot stores."

Commissioner June Cross questioned if the ordinance was strong enough to hold up in court.

Harsch answered it does, according to city attorney Jim Young and many other communities in the nation have ordinances just like this. In fact, Charlevoix Township is considering a retail building size cap similar to this one.

Water solutions and band shell compromises

Jeremy McBain

'Just a thought'

I just have a few thoughts this week on a couple of subjects.

School water

I was a little concerned recently when reading a story written by staff writer Courtney Pace on the water runoff situation at Charlevoix High School.

According to some of the neighbors of that school, one who has owned land in that area for 60 years, and the former Charlevoix County Drain Commissioner, there is a problem with water running off of the high school property and onto neighboring properties. This water runoff makes the neighbor's property very wet and causing some problems for the farmers. But the school board and Charlevoix School's superintendent John Sturock dismiss all claims pointing to an environmental study that seems to show there is less runoff now.

I question the claims that there are no water problems in that area. It is plain to see, at least to me, that there is a water runoff issue there. Every time I drive by the high school, I can see a pond that seemed to appear on the south-eastern portion of the school's property, near Veenstra Road, after the construction of the high school. From looking at the various other pockets of water on the school property, I believe there is an issue with water runoff.

Now, is it worse than before? I can't answer that. But, I still believe it is a problem.

What also concerns me is that when the idea of a problem with water runoff came up at a recent school board meeting, the school board and Sturock seemed to almost laugh it off and belittle the messenger, who was Beemon. Beemon had simply come to the board to present some plans to alleviate the water issue in that area. It was a friendly gesture, with no ill-will meant, and was intended to help both the school and local property owners.

But, they dismissed her ideas outright.

I think that is wrong. Our school board needs to be open minded to people who come to speak at its meetings, especially when it is to point out solutions to problems that the school board should address, instead of insist it doesn't exist.

It would benefit the school board to actually hear out Beemon and their neighbors on this issue, realize that there is a water problem — even if it is less than before the school was built — and look at the appropriate ways to solve it. That would be the neighborly thing to do.

If the school board is concerned about getting money to pay for finding a solution to the water issue, I don't think that should be a worry. After all, this is the same board that in the midst of cutting staffing positions and funding for programs due to budget constraints, was able to fund the construction of a new weightlifting room at the high school.

It would seem to me that money — not have good acoustics and will stick out if left in the middle of the park.

Band shell
Lately there has been some controversy stirring about the hand shell in East Park.

It seems some of the preliminary plans for East Park show the current band shell being torn down and a new, bigger one being built in the southern corner of the park. However, there are many people in town who are upset with this plan, saying the current hand shell was built, in large part, with the help of funds donated by residents of this community in the early 90s.

In fact, one resident, Jill Picha, has expressed interest in stopping any changes to East Park in order to save the hand shell by starting a petition to get any future ordinances approving the destruction of the hand shell on the ballot as a referendum.

But, those who support the removal of the current hand shell say the current one is too small, does not have good acoustics and will stick out if left in the middle of the park.

Before this gets blown up any more than it already has, and the community begins to argue bitterly — as has been the case many times in the past — let's find a compromise.

Let's get the groups who want the hand shell left alone together with the groups who want it to be torn down to come up with a solution before we have another issue that tears us apart. How about moving the current hand shell to the southside of the park and expanding it to include space for equipment storage and the such? Or using pieces of the current hand shell in the design and construction of the new shell?

There has to be a compromise here. Let's nip this argument now before it flourishes into a weed that will be hard to eradicate.

He had a lot of nicknames as did we all. He went by Harry (his dad's name), Jimmy-John. Karl, a nick name he and I came up with; I was Earl. I am not really sure where all of these names came from but back then they meant something. Most of the people outside our fraternity called him Jim, but they didn't know Jim like we did. My cousin Doug Bergmann called to give me the news that Jim had lost his battle with cancer. While I was saddened by the news, I was grateful to Doug for letting me know.

The distance and my job would not allow me to attend the service although I really wanted to, but on Dec. 9 I was there in spirit. As I look at the picture of the 1960 Rayders number 11 is still sitting on the first row the first player from the left. While I know that he is gone physically, what will never leave me will be the memories we shared on and off the basketball court and the friendship we developed over the years.

Thanks Jim for sharing part of your life with me as a classmate, a teammate and most of all as a friend.

Editor:
Because we bottle and sell maple syrup, the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club has been called "the sweetest club in Michigan." But our club is just a little "nutty" too and we want to take this opportunity to thank everyone that purchased the Kiwanis nuts during our recent sale, helping to make this the best nut sale ever. We sold out in record time. Thank you all.

What you many not know is that proceeds from our nut sales and from our other fund-raising projects during the year (rose sales, maple syrup, installation of 911 signs and kielbasa sales) all benefit Charlevoix. While a small portion of our funds leave the area in support of the Kiwanis International projects, the bulk of our money stays right here in Charlevoix.

For 70 years Kiwanis has been an important part of this community. For 65-plus years we have supported Boy Scout Troop 11. We sponsor the Northwest Academy Key Club for high school students, two Builder's Clubs at Charlevoix Middle School and the Charlevoix Elementary K-Kids Club. We also sponsor and work with the Aktion Club at the Bergmann Center.

Another group of Kiwanis members goes once each week and reads to children at Head Start. (By the way, we're always looking for new members and especially members who might like to participate as Head Start readers or in any of our projects to benefit children.) We also support Camp Daggett, BASES, Camp Quality, Charlevoix Area Community Pool and Exceptional Riders (just to mention a few).

Thank you again, to all those who supported our nut sales. As the oldest service club in Charlevoix, we look forward to supporting Charlevoix for another 70 years.

Seminar class raises money

As their community outreach project, Dawn Hovie's seminar class from Charlevoix High School had a Christmas Santa Gram sale to raise money for supplies to be used in Kelly Wood's kindergarten class. The idea stemmed from a flyer that was sent out requesting items to get the new kindergarten class up and running. The seminar sold, assembled, sorted, and distributed the candy grams before Christmas break. The money earned was used to purchase a gift certificate to The School Store in Harbor Springs. Josh Paul, along with the rest of his seminar classmates are pictured here presenting Mrs. Wood with the gift certificate.

12,000 toys donated in area

The Northern Michigan Detachment of the Marine Corps League is pleased to announce that more than 12,000 new toys were donated for youngsters in the three counties of Charlevoix, Emmet and Cheboygan this past Christmas season.

The toys were distributed to nearly 2,500 needy children in the same counties.

Much of the generous support should be attributed to the following organizations: The Salvation Army of Emmet County, the Salvation Army of Cheboygan County, the Boyne Area Community Christmas and Care and Share of East Jordan.

Also contributing greatly were the Charlevoix Christmas Program, the Atanson Project Rudolph, Char-Em Intermediate School District and several churches. Several schools also participated by sponsoring special projects by school children.

Individuals made huge contributions of time and toys. Grateful appreciation goes to the many business and community organizations who offered assistance by allowing Collection Boxes to be placed in their establishments (some 40 stores and retail businesses in nine cities).

The Toys for Tots program, originated in 1947 by a USMC Reserve Major, of Los Angeles, and has grown to be a nationwide program involving 13 millions of donors, toys and children annually.

Petition talk prompts two new amendments by city

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

According to Charlevoix City Manager Mike Wiesner, the city is taking steps to insure any petition drives over preliminary plans to tear down the band shell in East Park does not harm funding for the marina renovations.

"I think it was said, 'We don't want to hurt the marina.' This gives them the option not to," Wiesner said.

In last week's edition of the Charlevoix Courier, Charlevoix resident Jill Picha said she was seeking information on if and how a petition drive could be started to protect the East Park band shell. Picha and others like her are upset over preliminary East Park renovation plans that show the current band shell being torn down and a new, bigger, one being built on the southern corner of the park.

Picha said the current band shell was built using a lot of money from a fund-raiser and was named in honor of Charlevoix band director Clarence Odmark. However, those who support the renovation plans, say a new band shell is needed because the current one is out of place, does not have enough storage room and has poor acoustics.

However, to start a petition and have a referendum on the ballot about the band shell, the city council must pass an ordinance.

At this time no ordinances

"If a vote took place on the entire project, we would very likely lose the Waterways Commission funding and the ability to complete the project."

Mike Wiesner,
Charlevoix City Manager

have been passed. But, the city council is working on an amendment to the Downtown Development Authority plan that would expand the DDA's life and add the marina and park plan to its project list, thus allowing the DDA to fund it.

This amendment, which must go through a public hearing to be adopted, originally included the entire marina and park plan in it. Since it was an amendment, that means once it was passed it could be open to a petition and referendum.

Since this original amendment included both the marina and park in it, if a petition was started on it and it went to referendum, city officials are concerned that the Waterways Commission would take back the money it has said it would pay — the Waterways Commission has said it would pay about 75 percent of the total project cost.

In a memo on the matter to city council, Wiesner wrote, "If a vote took place on the entire project, we would very likely lose the Waterways Commission funding and the ability to complete the project."

Therefore, Wiesner has asked Charlevoix City Attorney Jim

Young to draft two amendments to the DDA plan to avoid this. In the first amendment, the DDA project list would include the marina and park plan, as presented, but specifically exclude the relocation of the band shell. In the second amendment, the DDA project list would include the marina and park plan, as presented, but allow for the relocation of the band shell.

It is Wiesner's hope that if a petition drive is started, it will be for the second amendment.

In the memo to council, he wrote, "If the second amendment were petitioned, it would cause some real difficulties in planning construction in the park and increase the final cost of the band shell if the vote would fail, but the basic marina plan could proceed."

Wiesner said Young will have drafts of these amendments completed very soon and he is expecting to ask for a joint meeting of the DDA and city council this week or early next week to approve it and set dates for a public hearing.

If neither amendment is petitioned, Wiesner said the order of the amendments will allow for a new band shell to be built on the southern side of the park.

Aren't you a little early?

A robin was spotted last week sitting in a tree in Charlevoix. The bird was a surprise to some who consider it a sign of spring. However, this week's near-zero temperatures tell a different story.

Youth Foundation gives grants to many groups

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation's Youth Advisory Committee recommended awards totaling nearly $22,000 to benefit young people, from establishing mentors for court referred youth, to support for a variety of enrichment opportunities including snowboarding, dance instruction and drama classes, an art illustration workshop, live music performances and ukulele lessons.

There were 13 non-profit organizations receiving Youth Advisory Committee money for programs within this funding cycle. The organizations, the successful projects and amount of the grant awards are as follows:

- Bliss Fest Music Organization — $700 to provide baritone ukulele lessons for fourth and fifth graders in the Boyne City/Boyne Falls area.

- Challenge Mountain — $2,400 to expand the snowboarding program for physically impaired youth.

- Charlevoix County Probate Court partnering with Big Brothers Big Sisters — $3,000 to provide mentors for court referred youth.

- Child and Family Services — $1,720 to continue to provide materials and instruction for foster parents to prepare a scrapbook style record of the life of the child in their care.

- City of Boyne City — $1,540 to help construct a pavilion in Rotary Park for the Boyne City Rotary centennial project. It includes restrooms, concessions stand and a covered picnic pavilion.

• Harbor Springs Public Schools — $750 to expand the "Girls on the Run" program into Charlevoix County, targeting girls ages 8 to 13 years old. The program prepares girls for a lifetime of self-respect and education on how to make healthy lifestyle choices, as well as training for running.

- Jordan River Arts Council — $1,000 for live music performances in schools and for the public.
- Jordan River Arts Council — $2,000 towards an art illustration project, "From Pencils to Pixels" including guest artist appearances, workshops for school children and a public exhibit.
- Lake Charlevoix Mariners — $1,700 to purchase a boat for the youth sailing program.
- MSU Extension, Charlevoix County — $2,000 to provide stipends for low-income, high-risk youth to participate in 4-H programs.
- MSU Extension, Charlevoix County partnering with the American Red Cross — $1,200 to support the babysitting instruction program.
- Emerald Isle Repertory Theatre — $1,720 to support the Christmas Variety program, as well as dance and dramatic instruction and theater productions on Beaver Island throughout the winter months.
- Raven Hill Discovery Center — $2,000 to support the Ancient Science outreach program for Middle schoolers throughout Charlevoix County.

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation's Youth Advisory Committee has now distributed more than $436,000 to programs benefiting young people since the group started making grants in 1994. Money for grant making comes from a special endowment called the Charlevoix County Youth Fund held by the Community Foundation. The fund was spearheaded with financial support from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation and has assets of more than $1 million.

Members of the Community Foundation Youth Advisory Committee are Brittany Crandall, Danielle Cary and Brenna Green from Beaver Island; Erin Moriarity, Reed Ameel and Cory Mills from Boyne City; Terra Wasylewski, Ashley Mauchmar and Darryl Kowalski from Boyne Falls; Zita Anderson, Dustin Dibble and Matt Teuscher from Charlevoix; and Paul Schneider, Tabitha Grover and Sierra Roberts from East Jordan.

The next deadline for submitting a grant request to the Foundation for youth related projects is April 1, 2005. For more information about grant making opportunities, or the Community Foundation, call (231) 536-2440.

Free throw contest Jan. 29

The Charlevoix Knights of Columbus is sponsoring a youth free throw contest.

All boys and girls ages 10 to 14 are invited to participate in the local level of competition for the Knights of Columbus Free Throw Championship. The local competition will be at 3 p.m., Jan. 22 at the Charlevoix Middle School gym.

The championship is sponsored annually with winners progressing through local, district and state competition. All boys and girls 10 to 14 years old are eligible and will compete in respective age divisions.

Participants are required to furnish proof of age and written parental consent. For entry forms or information contact Shawn McDonough at 547-5437.

There is no charge to enter and winners all receive trophies.

Martin Luther King Jr. Day is about the Civil Rights Movement and equality for all, but while it is being celebrated throughout the nation not much is being done in Charlevoix to commemorate the occasion outside of the schools.

City Manager Michael Wiesner said Martin Luther King Jr. Day is a federal holiday and something most cities don't acknowledge. City Hall was open on Jan. 17.

"Historically we haven't," he said about the city's participation in commemorating King.

He said he couldn't answer why, but said the city doesn't acknowledge other federal holidays such as Veteran's Day, Christmas and Thanksgiving through City Council action.

"We certainly don't mean any disrespect to anyone," he said.

Charlevoix isn't alone, however, as five random cities were called and only one closed on Jan. 17 to commemorate King.

Boyer City, Alpena, Clare and Hillsdale all remained open and so did their public schools except Alpena Public Schools. The schools in Alpena were closed to students due to a record day for teachers, but not to commemorate King.

However, the city of Benton Harbor closed along with all the public schools in the district.

Charlevoix Public Schools as a whole did not do anything to honor Martin Luther King Jr. Day and were open on Jan. 17. However, Northwest Academy was closed for the holiday.

"It's just something we never really recognized," Charlevoix Superintendent John Sturck said.

He said the schools honor King's legacy by incorporating black studies

City, schools remain open on holiday

into the student's curriculum.

Despite being open for school, there are individual Charlevoix teachers who reached out and shared information about King's life and legacy with their students.

Bryan Hawkins, a United States history teacher at Charlevoix High School, decorated his classroom and quizzed his students on their knowledge of King and the Civil Rights Movement.

"Even though Charlevoix isn't the most ethnically diverse place, there are black students," he said. "The privileges that the majority status have were fought for by the non majority status."

Hawkins said by not honoring Martin Luther King Jr. Day, it would be short shifting the topic.

In the past, Hawkins has typically selected notable quotes to be read to the entire school over the speaker system. He also talked about the life of King and reflected upon the efforts of those involved with the Civil Rights Movement. This year, the students read the passages.

Hawkins said the commemoration occurred in the morning as the rest of the day was dedicated to the beginning of midterms.

Several teachers at Charlevoix Elementary School commemorated King by incorporating his life and what he stood for into their lessons.

Principal Richard Swenor said the first grade teachers talked about core, democratic values of liberty and justice. They also talked to the students about what is fair.

Swenor said the students then wrote a story about how they could make the world a better place and starting off with King's phrase, "I have a dream..."

The multiage classes read a story and then talked about the non-violent ways King made changes in the world.

Northwest Academy closed, but incorporated King's legacy into the classroom.

Administrator Cindy Romero said this is the first year the school had recognized the holiday.

Several students at Northwest Academy are of African American heritage and Romero said it's important to show support for their heritage and the community as well.

"I think it's important for students of African American heritage that they see us recognize a part of our history and not putting it under the rug," she said.

Also, Romero said it's important for all students to recognize that Martin Luther King Jr. is important in not just African American history, but the history of the nation.

"It's not that he's African American, but a significant person in our history for our rights," Romero said.

Karl Redmer and Sarah Ross, two teachers at Northwest Academy, are making an effort to create an awareness amongst their students.

Redmer, a government and art teacher, had his students create a project about King that required writing a paper and creating visuals.

"They looked at his impact on society, what shaped his views up to the point of him becoming involved in the Civil Rights Movement," Redmer said.

He also had his students look into how King's death impacted the Civil Rights Movement and what it would have been like without him.

Many of his government students didn't understand how King related.

"A lot of issues were put forth in legislation because of King's civil rights for all and not just blacks," he said.

Redmer said he tried to relate to his students what occurred before, during and after the Civil Rights Movement and what the outcome was of the movement that King started.

Redmer, who attended the University of Michigan in Flint, said he was around the inner city and saw how important many issues were to those affected by them.

"Up here, a lot of students aren't exposed to inner city issues," Redmer said, which is why he wants students to know why Martin Luther King Jr. Day is observed.

Ross, a social studies and English teacher, said she focuses on the non-white version of history that most textbooks don't document.

To commemorate King, Ross said she will probably have her students read something written by King and others at that time.

One activity Ross did last year she will also do this year, which required having her students undergo a simulation of what African American's faced.

Students are segregated according to some feature such as sex, eye color or hair color and then bathrooms and other places will be marked for certain features.

"It puts them into it and not just talking about it," she said. "Just using those real ideas to try and bring it out."

Since there is not a large group of different ethnicities in northern Michigan such as in larger cities, Ross said students should be made more aware.

"Making them aware is a step in the right direction because you can't expose them to people of that culture," she said.

Ross also said she doesn't think people are necessarily prejudiced up here, but that they are uneducated on other cultures.

"I think if everyone in the world was more educated on different people's walks of life it would be better," she said.

Student trying to help tsunami victims

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

A few Charlevoix individuals and organizations are trying to ease the suffering of the survivors of a tsunami in Southeast Asia.

Jessica Gauthier, a Charlevoix High School freshman, is spearheading a relief effort to help the tsunami victims.

"It's our responsibility as human beings to help out others," she said.

Gauthier, along with friends and members of the prayer group that meets before school want to try and raise $5,000 that will be given to the American Red Cross International Tsunami Relief Effort.

Ross also said she doesn't think people are necessarily prejudiced up here, but that they are uneducated on other cultures.

"I think if everyone in the world was more educated on different people's walks of life it would be better," she said.

available to anyone that asks.

For more information or to make a donation to help raise the money necessary to cover costs of purchasing the bracelets call Gauthier at 547-6273.

CEMEX in Charlevoix is also helping out with tsunami relief efforts.

Bud McCormick, plant manager of the Charlevoix plant cement division, said CEMEX will match employee donations two-for-one, with a minimum of $2 million in corporate donations.

"It's been a good campaign," McCormick said of the information from CEMEX's headquarters in Mexico.

The funds will go to the United Nations where it will be used in areas of great need.

McCormick said several employees were asking management if there were any programs going on they could support that helped with tsunami relief efforts.

"It's heart warming to know that people are concerned about people on the other side of the world to get together on this type of effort," he said.

CEMEX has cement plants in Indonesia, which McCormick said weren't damaged. However, a plant in Aceh owned by Lafarge was destroyed, which was equal in size to the one in Charlevoix.

Of the 625 Lafarge employees, 362 are safe, eight are injured, three are dead and 252 are still missing, according to information provided on Lafarge's web site.

McCormick said CEMEX is donating money to the Lafarge plant in order to help their cement-making brothers.

CEMEX also has a cement plant in the Philippines, which McCormick said sent employees four hours away to help clear debris.

The American Red Cross of Northern Lower Michigan in Petoskey is currently taking donations for the American Red Cross International Tsunami Relief Effort.

Betsy Hanson, executive director of the Petoskey chapter of the American Red Cross of Northern Lower Michigan, said in a statement that the American Red Cross has received more than $185 million through pledges from individuals, corporations and philanthropic supporters.

"To date, we have received $27,755 in donations to aid the victims of the earthquake disaster and tsunami relief efforts in Southeast Asia," Hanson said in a statement. "One hundred percent of these funds have been forwarded on to the Red Cross International Relief effort, and no administrative fees or expenses were deducted before these funds were sent along."

Hanson said in a statement that the American Red Cross will partner with the International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies and other global partners in order to provide short and long-term relief.

"There is no question that assistance will get to those who need it," Hanson wrote. "That's our commitment. We are concerned about how quickly we can get the aid to 12 different countries, each with their own needs and philosophies about outside assistance."

In order to provide this aid, the American Red Cross has committed to $134 million for the initial phase of relief efforts for survivors of the tsunami, Hanson said in a statement.

The aid includes $55 million for emergency and supplemental food aid, $10 million for water and sanitation support, $36 million for vaccination and health support, $20 million for immediate family support, $2 million for psychological assistance, $3 million for emergency response staffing and deployment and $8 million for direct support costs.

Those who would like to support the American Red Cross International Tsunami Relief Effort can call the Petoskey chapter office at 348-7666 or can send a tax-deductible donation to the American Red Cross, P.O. Box 2478, Petoskey, MI 49770 and International Relief or Tsunami Relief should be written on all checks.

Donations can also be made by calling the American Red Cross at (800) HELP-NOW or going online to www.redcross.org.

Charlevoix Public Schools as a whole are not doing anything to help the victims of the tsunami. However, individual teachers are.

Carol Madison, a fifth grade teacher at Charlevoix Middle School, had connections to an orphanage in Sri Lanka that she had her second grade class write to last year.

After the tsunami hit, the orphanage was destroyed and nothing is known about what happened to the kids.

"It's so weird to me because these nameless, faceless children we had original contact with," she said.

Madison's contact from Rotary International in Traverse City is currently overseas trying to find out what happened to the orphans. Once he returns with more information, Madison said she wants to organize something to help.

Jessica Gauthier, a freshman at Charlevoix High School, is spearheading a fundraising effort to help the victims of the tsunami in Southeast Asia.

Gary Grundman said some of the seminar teachers are organizing a tsunami fund-raiser of some sort, but he hasn't gotten any paperwork back yet.

Richard Swenor, principal of Charlevoix Elementary School, said the only fund-raiser the school is currently participating in is for the Charlevoix County Humane Society.

Northwest Academy is also not making a school-wide effort to help in Southeast Asia.

Charlevoix Children's House Montessori School personnel are currently in the process of creating a fund-raiser to help the tsunami effort.

Anna Kuebler honored

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Anna Kuebler was acknowledged for her 50 years of service as an election worker for Hayes Township with an appreciation plaque during the Jan. 10 township meeting.

"I was really very impressed," she said. "I feel it was a great honor."

Kuebler said she has always enjoyed working with people and out in the community, which kept her coming back year after year.

Having been raised in northern Michigan, Kuebler chose to stay in order to raise her family. This fall, she will have lived in Hayes Township for close to 55 years.

When she and her husband, Lloyd, were new to the township, Kuebler said she remembers registering to vote and being asked if she would join the election board.

Kuebler said she was approached by Frank Burnett, former township clerk and Hazel Evers, former township treasurer.

Meeting the people was one of her favorite aspects because she was new to the area and it allowed her to get to know those in the community.

"I like meeting people and doing something I hope to better the community," she said.

Throughout her 50 years as an election worker, Kuebler said she has seen changes in regards to the community and voting.

When she first started out, Kuebler said there were about 400 registered voters in the township.

"I got to where I knew everybody," she said.

However, over time the township has grown to have a few thousand registered voters.

"It was interesting to watch the area change," she said.

The most surprising change Kuebler saw was in regards to voting regulations. She said in the beginning the election process required the election workers to count the ballots by hand. Now, there are voting machines that do all the work.

"There's hardly any comparison," she said. "It's so modernized compared to what it was."

Kuebler said she doesn't have any plans to stop now and will continue serving the community as an election worker as long as she can.

Frozen for the winter

On Jan. 10 the weather was cold enough that ice and snow covered the land, but warm enough that it started to melt. These icicles clung delicately to a cedar bush as some water ran off of them.

Women's ski tour returns

Celebrate women, winter and chocolate on Feb. 27.

Active Women Now, Inc., a non-profit organization will host The Second Annual Charlevoix Ladies Tour, a weekend of fun and activities that will take the winter blues out of northern Michigan.

Active Women Now, Inc. has ski tours in Michigan and the United States, celebrating the camaraderie that women hold in empowering one another while giving back to their community. This non-competitive winter event for women will be at the Charlevoix Elementary School and the trails will weave through Mount McSausba.

Novice winter activists are encouraged to attend.

Ski clinics will be given on Feb. 26 for beginners and those who are looking to cultivate their skills.

A wine and cheese event will be at Castle Farms as a prelude to the Charlevoix Ladies Tour. Log onto the Women's Ski Tour web site for more information.

Tickets in advance are $35 and include all the chocolate, goodies and fun you can hold in one day. Proceeds from the Charlevoix Ladies Tour benefits BASES and the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan.

Please log onto www.womensskitour.com for more information on corporate sponsorship opportunities and purchasing event tickets. E-mail Courtney Miles, regional event manager at Courtney@womensskitour.com with further questions.

Sheriff Lasater gives ATM safety tips

Charlevoix Courier Wednesday, January 19, 2005 - PAGE 13

There have been new developments in the area of bank ATM machine fraud, some of them quite successful when it comes to separating the average citizen from their funds.

Accordingly, Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater highly recommends taking the following precautions when using an ATM machine. Many of these precautions also apply to transactions on pinpad terminals in retail stores or restaurants, conducting business online, doing business over the phone and writing checks.

• Where possible, use ATM machines that you are familiar with, that are well lit, where you are comfortable.

• Scan the whole ATM area before you approach it. Avoid using the ATM altogether if there are any suspicious-looking individuals around or if it looks too isolated or unsafe.

• Notice if anything looks unusual or suspicious about the ATM indicating it might have been altered. If the ATM appears to have any attachments to the card slot or key pad, do not use it. Check for unusual instructions on the display screen and for suspicious blank screens. If you suspect that the ATM has been interfered with, proceed to another ATM and inform the bank.

• Avoid ATM machines that have messages or signs fixed to them indicating that the screen directions have been changed, especially if the message is posted over the card reader. Banks and other ATM owners will not put up messages directing you to specific ATM machines, nor would they direct you to use an ATM machine that has been altered.

• Be especially cautious when strangers offer to help you at an ATM machine, even if your card is stuck or you are experiencing difficulty with the transaction. You should not allow anyone to distract you while you are at the ATM.

• Check that other individuals waiting to use the machine keep an acceptable distance from you. Be on the lookout for individuals who might be watching you enter your PIN number.

• Stand close to the ATM and shield the keypad with your hand when keying in your PIN (you may wish to use the knuckle of your middle finger to key in the PIN).

• Follow the instructions on the display screen. Do not key in your PIN until the ATM requests you to do so.

• If you feel the ATM is not working normally, press the cancel key and withdraw your card and then proceed to another ATM machine, reporting the matter to your financial institution.

• Never force your card into the card slot.

• Keep your printed transaction record so that you can compare your ATM receipts to your monthly statement.

• If your card gets jammed, retained or lost, or if your are interfered with at an ATM machine, report this immediately to the bank and/or police using the help line provided or the nearest phone.

• Do not be in a hurry during the transaction and carefully secure your card and cash in your wallet, handbag or pocket before leaving the ATM.

• Memorize your PIN number. If you must write it down, do so in a disguised manner and never carry it with your card.

• Never disclose your PIN number to anyone, whether to family members, bank staff or police.

• Do not use obvious numbers for your PIN number, like your date of birth.

• Change your PIN periodically and if you think it may have been compromised, change it immediately.

• Set your daily ATM withdrawal limit at your branch at levels you consider reasonable.

• Regularly check your account balance and bank statements and report any discrepancies to your bank immediately.

Being vigilant and using these suggestions will assist you in preventing the kind of theft that has become all too common in recent years.

Charlevoix Red Hat Society celebrates birthday

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

One group of Charlevoix women are all about friendship, color and a whole lot of fun.

The Red Hat Society "Ladies of the Nite" celebrated their one year anniversary on Jan. 14.

Queen Mom Vivian Mettler and several other members celebrated in having fun for one year and enjoying each other's company.

Mettler, Lorene Sakamoto and Maryann Beaumont founded the "Ladies of the Nite" because most of the women worked during the day and couldn't attend the other Red Hat Society group's functions.

The group isn't a service organization, but rather a gathering of women who want to have fun after volunteering in various capacities. Some continue to volunteer their time.

"We just have fun," Mettler said. The "Ladies of the Nite" support local businesses as they mostly eat at restaurants in town.

To celebrate being together for one year, the group met at the Edgewater Inn to share in a few laughs before heading to Stafford's Weathervane for dinner where they met up with members of the Pink Hat Society "Ladies of the Nite."

The Pink Hat Society members are women under the age of 50. However, Mettler said when they turn 50 they "redate" into a member of the Red Hat Society.

Currently, there are about 30 members of the "Ladies of the Nite" and Sakamoto said the group is a great one to be a part of.

"We're old, we wear red hats and we can do whatever we want," she said.

Charlevoix music teacher named citizen of the year

During a previous interview with the Charlevoix Courier, LaBlance said it's her passion for what she does and her love for the children that has kept her teaching music all these years. Being a music educator isn't just a job, she said, but it is a part of who she is.

LaBlance teaches kindergarten through fourth grade. She said, in a previous interview, that she truly believes that art and music bring together the whole child and enables them to connect what they learn in other academic areas because music involves math, geometry, science and reading.

"A lot of the time people think it's a frill or an extra thing, but really it's an intricate part of the curriculum," LaBlance said in a previous interview.

Her love for teaching goes beyond the classroom as she founded the Annual Spring Musical. The event enabled the public to view art through area students and it has remained a tradition for 32 years.

LaBlance also gave the commencement address to the Charlevoix High School graduating class of 2002.

Her love for art led her to be-

"I am truly surprised, shocked and speechless."

Marina LaBlance,
Charlevoix Citizen of the Year

come one of the original founders of the Charlevoix Council for the Arts. She currently serves on the executive board and also that of the Waterfront Art Fair.

She is currently working on behalf of the Charlevoix Public Library and Crooked Tree Farm Center to present a program on March 24 about the opera "Carmen." The lecture will help people prepare to view the opera that will be performed on March 25 at Charlevoix High School's auditorium.

Aside from education and the arts, LaBlance has played the organ for weddings and funerals at St. Mary's Parish. She has also organized singing groups for the Salvation Army, Charlevoix Area Hospital, local nursing homes and during the Community Christmas Tree Lighting.

LaBlance has been an active member of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce by having owned an art gallery downtown and served as the chairman of the Venetian Festival Street Parade for several years.

The look of the Venetian Festival Street Parade became more colorful and fun due to LaBlance. She not only added more clowns, but also required all parade participants to decorate their cars and floats.

LaBlance also restricted the participation of political candidates to only state and federal elected representatives.

She has also served as chairman of the Dress-Up, Doll and Pet Parade, a Venetian Festival event. Due to an accident in which a dog killed a rabbit, LaBlance changed the parade to the Dress-Up and Doll Parade.

On a personal note, LaBlance shared her experience of surviving cancer with other women currently dealing with it.

When accepting her Outstanding Citizen Award, LaBlance said she is glad for having chosen Charlevoix to live and raise her two children, Maro, her daughter, and her son, George.

"I feel it's important for all of us to be a part of the community," she said.

Township to have hearing on limit to building sizes

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The Charlevoix Township Planning Commission will be having a public hearing on amendments to the zoning ordinance in order to hear what the people have to say at 7:30 p.m. on Jan. 26 at the Charlevoix Township Hall at 12491 Waller Road.

The proposed amendments to the zoning ordinance includes limiting the size of large buildings to 90,000 square feet.

The size of 90,000 square feet was voted by the commission at the Nov. 17 meeting.

Nancy E. Rajewski, chairman of the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission, said in a previous interview that 90,000 square feet is the size most people could live with.

During a previous meeting, the commission voted for a cap size of 80,000 square feet. The vote resulted in a tie with Rajewski and John Dixon supporting the size and Dave Christiansen and Stanley Martin voting against it.

Robert Hoffman, head of This Is Our Town, which fought Wal-Mart, said in a previous interview that the cap size is just another tool to help guide the community.

"That's what the zoning ordinance is," Hoffman said in a previous interview. "A tool the planning commission uses to assure that the township and the community are following what the community wants for the master plan."

Al Wojan also attended the meeting and said at the meeting that a zoning ordinance isn't a tool for growth, but is something that limits free enterprise.

The proposed amendments to the zoning ordinance also include changing the size of large buildings from 2,000 to 20,000 square feet. This change will also require a special-use permit.

Another proposed amendment includes requiring any projects that are 50,000 square feet to have a market feasibility study, traffic study and adaptability for reuse plan submitted with their application to build.

The proposed zoning ordinance will also require all builders to adhere to keeping their building in line with the look of the community.

nity. Fedahl has served in a leadership position at Horton Bay United Methodist Church and is the leader of the Charlevoix County Jail Ministry. Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater is a good friend of Ledahl's and the two men share fond memories over a mistaken donation.

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club has had Ledahl as a member since 1989 and he is also a member of the Charlevoix Men's Chorus.

Ledahl has also volunteered his time to the local Boy Scout troops where he has been a leader for several years. He is even a Vigil Member of the Order of the Arrow. This honor is only given by special selection and acknowledges a person's contributions to the scouts, one's lodge and community.

Frey received the Ambassador Award, which is given in recognition of someone who promotes the spirit of the community.

In 1975, Frey and his wife moved to Charlevoix and they currently live on a farm.

Frey, who is protective of the environment, is involved with the EARTH University Foundation and is also interested in issues regarding the Great Lakes watershed and upland habitat issues.

He used to serve on the board of directors for the Little Traverse Conservancy.

Frey has dedicated his time to serving the Charlevoix community by being involved with the Charlevoix Area Hospital Development Council and was on the Board of Directors of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce from 1983 to 1985.

He helped form the Charlevoix County Community Foundation and served on the board of directors.

Since the foundation helps everyone in Charlevoix County, Frey chose to have it be located in East Jordan.

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation was formed with a donation from the Frey Foundation, which is one of the largest family foundations in Michigan.

Frey is currently a trustee of the Frey Foundation in Grand Rapids, which helped start two Michigan community foundations and has provided almost $100 million in grants to Michigan families, communities and individuals.

Aside from environmental issues, Frey is interested in the performing arts and was a classical actor with a regional theater on the East Coast when he was younger.

He also carves wood and creates bowls, pens and other items by woodturning.

The arts have benefited from Frey as he has been a part of the board of regents for the University of Hartford and has served on the advisory board of The Hart School of the University of Hartford that features music, dance and theater.

He has also been a part of the Grand Rapids Civic Theatre Endowment Fund and also served as a part of the John D. Voelker or Robert Travers Foundation.

Frey was out of the country and unable to attend the meeting, but Robert Tambellini, president of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, accepted the award on his behalf.

"He can't think of a better gift than to be recognized this way," he said. "And he hopes that after he lives here another 30 years he can be considered a native."

Boyne Area Hockey team outshoots all opponents

Boyne Area Hockey's Paul Bunyan Lanes Midget team was one of 16 teams playing in the Grand Traverse Invitational Tournament this past weekend, and went 2-1.

Boyne outshot all three of its opponents.

On Jan. 14 the team played Traverse City's North Bay to a 8-1 win.

Darren Looze tallied a hat trick with three goals. Russell Williams hit the netting twice; Ryan Pardee, Troy Scarbrough, and Ryan Hennessy each added a goal.

Assists came from Nick Dunwoody, Looze, and Scarbrough. Josh Aown, Hennessy, and Williams all contributed two. Eli Barys gave three assists earning a playmaker. Goalies Charlie Courtright and Nick Ferree shared netminding.

Looze was awarded MVP.

On Jan. 15 the team fell to Mt. Clemens 1-3. Two of the Mount Clemens' goals were scored on power plays and the last on an empty net.

Boyne's goal was scored by Barys with assists from Scarbrough and Pardee. Charlie Courtright was between the pipes. Williams was named MVP.

Their last match was a 3-0 win over Ice Mountain.

Hennessy put the first score on the board with a Scarbrough assist. Pardee notched the second with passes from Looze and Barys, and Hennessy scored a short handed breakaway goal after receiving an nice pass from Looze.

Goal tender Ferree earned the shutout and the MVP trophy for the game.

Snowmobile ride-in to be Jan. 29

The Charlevoix Snowmobile Club will be hosting its annual ride-in from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Jan. 29. Snowmobilers will ride into Charlevoix and meet in East Park, snow permitting. If there isn't enough snow then the group will meet at Ferry Beach.

Volleyball, basketball teams thrill on island

By FRANK SOLLE
Special to the Courier

The Beaver Island sports teams made the most of their first home series of the winter as both the volleyball and basketball teams swept a pair of contests from the Hannahville Soaring Eagles.

Each of the Islander teams improved to 6-0 on the season with the wins and each are in first place in the Northern Lights League standings.

The teams travel to Paradise this coming weekend before hosting Grand Marais Jan. 28-29 for homecoming.

The volleyball team opened the weekend action Friday with a hard-fought, four-game match, winning 25-14, 19-25, 25-14, 25-17 as they introduced a large home crowd to the new rally scoring format.

The Eagles proved to be a scrappy bunch and never let the Island girls' feel comfortable. The large crowd and first home appearance didn't help the locals' comfort level either said coach Connie Boyle.

"We played better in our first two matches than we did tonight. Perhaps a little bit of home crowd excitement and jitters went with finally playing in front of everyone," she said.

Hannahville held early leads of 5-1 and 7-4 in the first game before the Islanders rallied. A four-point service run by Emily Gray lifted the Islanders to a 13-8 lead. Solid serving from there carried them to the win. Bailey McDonough served the final four points with Danielle Cary contributing two powerful kills.

The Eagles flew ahead early again in game two. Despite a big service run by Cary that brought the Islanders back to a 15-15 tie, the Eagles maintained momentum and went on for the win.

The win by Hannahville motivated the Islanders over the final two games of the match and they did not trail again. Krystle Timsak served up eight points in game three while Cary and Andrea Moore each sent "over a number of aces."

Saturday's battle lasted the minimum of three games, but still the win didn't come easy. The Islanders claimed the 25-19, 25-19, 25-20 win despite a poor effort from the service line.

"It shouldn't have been that hard," Boyle said. "I can't begin to explain why so many couldn't get their serves in. And that's the difference in rally scoring, your serves better go in because fifty percent doesn't do you any good."

Once again Hannahville grabbed the early lead in game one, but the Islanders battled back. A service run by Melissa Bailey led to an 18-10 Islander lead. From there the Islanders held off the Eagles despite a late five-point rally.

Game two was pivotal as the Islander serves went astray. Holding a 12-7 lead the Islanders missed seven straight offerings from the line as the Eagles closed to 19-18. Eighth-grader Caitlin Boyle finally stopped the bleeding and senior Cary closed out the win.

The third game outcome was decided on a 9-3 run bolstered by two aces off the serve of Christine McDonough, another from Brenna Green, and three more kills by Cary. When the dust settled, the Islanders were up 16-10 and went on to claim the match.

The Islander basketball team also battled some first-home-game jitters on Friday, but after a 13-13 first quarter they sailed past the Eagles to an easy 59-44 win.

The turning point came in the second quarter as the Islanders picked up their defensive effort, holding the Eagles to just five points.

Meanwhile the Green and White uncashed junior Brett Maudrie who scored 10 of his game-high 24 points in the quarter.

Crashing the boards and creating numerous Eagle turnovers, the Islanders dominated the final five minutes of the half, keeping the Eagles scoreless while putting up 14 points en route to a commanding 33-18 lead.

The Islanders continued their strong play in the third quarter, pushing the lead to 45-25.

A late 10-0 run in the fourth quarter sent the lead to 59-28 and the Island starters to the bench for the final few minutes of play. The Eagles took advantage by scoring the final 16 points of the game, but it was by far too few, too late.

"Hannahville is a much quicker team than we played last weekend," said Islander coach Mike Myers. "But we adapted well. We had some nerves with the first home game, but overall did a good job."

Joining Maudrie in double figures were Jared Wojan and John Alhin with 14 apiece. Jimmy Gillespie added five and Keith Szczepanski two. The Islanders out-rebounded the Eagles 41-31, pulling down an impressive 29 offensive boards.

Saturday's game proved to be a closer contest as the Islanders held off a late Eagle rally for a 56-49 win. Junior John Alhin led the Islanders out of a slow start, scoring twice off offensive rebounds and with a soft jumper as the locals took a 12-10 edge after the first quarter.

Alhin scored six straight points midway through the second period, showing his versatility by hitting from the top of the key and with a soft hook from the wing, as the Islanders extended their margin to 29-23 at the half.

Albin and Gillespie each knocked down three-pointers in the third quarter as the Islander lead grew to double digits. Gillespie and Szczepanski hit back-to-back buckets to give the home boys their largest lead, 45-32.

Hannahville's Ogeema Anziano, who led all scorers with 26, scored twice in the closing seconds to close the gap to 45-36 going into the final frame.

The Eagles closed within four midway through the quarter, but a 6-0 Islander run pushed the lead back to 10. The final two points of the run came as Wojan stole an Eagle inbound pass at midcourt and hit Maudrie with a pass near the basket for an easy layin.

Albin and Maudrie each finished with 15 points, Gillespie netted 14. Wojan added seven, Eric Alhin three and Szczepanski two.

Girls' team does great in ski meet

The Charlevoix/East Jordan high school girls' ski team finished in second place in a league meet Jan. 13 out of six teams, while the boys' took last in the same meet.

"The girls really skied well together as a team. To have four girls in the top 15 is a great accomplishment. They all have been working hard," coach Sue Miller.

However, she added, the boys' team skied OK and were hampered by a few errors that hurt them in their final results.

"We will only learn from these and move forward," she said. The girls' team finished second with a score of 73. Traverse City St. Francis was in first with a score of 36. The team finished second in the giant slalom and slalom, as well. Sarah Lorne, Stephanie Poindexter, Kristen Kovel, Tricia McClung, of the Rayders' team, were in the top five for the giant slalom in the "B" team. Elizabeth Hazeld, Jennifer Rich, Poindexter and Kovel were in the top five for the slalom in the "B" team.

The boys' team finished sixth, with a score of 166. Harbor Springs was in first, with a score of 24. The team finished sixth in the giant slalom and slalom, as well.

Individual results for the girls' team in the giant slalom were: Michelle Fritsch in second with a total time of 54.12 seconds; Katherine Rowley in fifth, with a total time of 54.66 seconds; Katie Diller in eleventh, with a total time of 57.45; Kelsey Poincau in fifteenth, with a total time of 59.49 seconds; Kristen Dupuis in twenty-first, with a total time of 1 minute, 4 seconds and Jennifer Rich in twenty-sixth, with a total time of 1 minute, 12.10 seconds.

Individual results for the girls' team in the slalom were: Rowley in fourth, with a time of 57.74 seconds; Fritsch in ninth, with a time of 1 minute, 1.44 seconds; Diller in twelfth, with a time of 1 minute, 3.05 seconds; Dupuis in fifteenth, with a time of 1 minute, 9.87 seconds and Lorne in nineteenth.

Individual results for the boys' team in the giant slalom were: Mac Brennan in thirteenth, with a time of 52.96 seconds; Andrew Mallory in fourteenth, with a time of 53.14 seconds; Billy Broden in twenty-sixth, with a time of 58.03 seconds; Nic Williams in thirtieth, with a time of 58.78 seconds; Nick Heid in thirty-fourth with a time of 1 minute, 3.16 seconds and Sean Thomas in thirty-fifth, with a time of 1 minute, 8.99 seconds.

Individual results for the boys' team in the slalom were: Brennan in eleventh, with a time of 55.24 seconds; Mallory in fifteenth, with a time of 59.54 seconds and Geoff Baier in twentieth, with a time of 1 minute, 3.91 seconds.

Charlevoix volleyball takes all six matches

By B. JON GOHS
Sports writer

Good things may come in threes, but for the Rayder's varsity volleyball team, six was the magic number.

As if one clean sweep the week before wasn't enough, Charlevoix captured all six of last week's matches putting them at 11-3-3 overall and 3-0 in the conference.

Play opened last Monday against Elk Rapids with the lady Rayders taking solid leads for three wins with scores of 25-12, 25-6, 25-18.

Kari Way had nine kills and three aces, Teresa Martin had four kills and eight digs, Beth Pearson had six kills and Zita Anderson had 23 assists.

"I think we were playing pretty good," said coach Liz Grunch. "We're ready to step up our level of play."

True to her words, coach Grunch and the girls went on to defeat East Jordan three games to nothing on Thursday with scores of 25-11, 25-15 and 25-18.

Teresa Martin had 11 kills and three aces. Kari Way had perfect serve-receives for the day with 18 of 18, plus seven kills and three aces. And Zita Anderson rounded out players of mention with 24 assists.

According to Grunch, solid practices and hard work propelled the girls through a week of tremendous wins.

"We're working on more sophisticated plays," she said. "We just have to keep building and add to our foundation."

Stressing the basics and sticking to their game plan are key to maintaining the Rayders new-found momentum.

"I think we're always working to be more consistent — every team does," Grunch said.

She added, "Practicing properly is going to help us improve that." The Rayders seem to be in good shape as they near the close of first round conference play.

And as long as they continue to improve on passing and communication they have a good chance of coming out on top.

According to Grunch, there is always something the girls can improve upon.

"It's frustrating for the players when they don't pass how they want," Grunch said. "Passing and communication are not consistent, so we need to keep working. But I think we'll get there. We have a lot of great athletes and the desire."

Next in conference play the Rayders are pitted against Traverse City St. Francis, to whom they suffered a loss at the end of last season.

"Traverse City is a hard place to play," Grunch said.

According to Grunch, the long bus ride to Traverse City during exam time is hard on the girls.

She added, "We have to be on top of our game. If we do that, everything will take care of itself."

Charlevoix prepares to meet Traverse City at 4:30 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 20 in Traverse City.

The girls then travel to Grandville for non-conference tournament play against as of yet unspecified teams. Game time is 9 a.m., Saturday, Jan. 22 in Grandville.

Local health department offering free pap smears

Free Pap smears are available at health department offices in Bellaire, Charlevoix, Petoskey and Gaylord for women over 40 who meet certain income guidelines during January, National Cervical Cancer Month. A Pap smear is a simple test that detects changes in the cervix that can lead to cancer.

For details, or to schedule an appointment, call (800) 432-4121 during regular business hours. The income guidelines are generous, according to Teresa Sington, who coordinates breast and cervical cancer screening programs for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, the health department that serves Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties. For example, a woman from a family of four can have an annual income up to $47,125 and participate, she said. "Our goal is for every woman, especially those over 40, to get an annual Pap smear. Cervical cancer is preventable if caught early, with curability and survival rates nearly 100 percent," Sington said. All women who are, or who have been, sexually active or who have reached the age of 18 should have an annual Pap test. Pap tests can detect pre-cancerous lesions, which if untreated can lead to cancer.

For additional information about preventing cervical cancer, contact Teresa Sington at (231) 547-7659 or visit www.cervicalcancercampaign.org. For questions about free Pap smear eligibility or to schedule an appointment, call toll-free (800) 432-4121 during regular business hours.

Who will be king and queen?

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The 2005 Winterfest-Court candidates are seniors who have many fond memories of their time at Charlevoix High School but are looking forward to what the future holds.

The candidates are: Mallory Mahoney, Ezra Bakker, Sarah Cross, Jake Teuscher, Liz Madison, Michael Wojan, Sonya Plude, Jaimen Waha, Grace Farrell and Taylor Martin.

Mahoney is the daughter of Keith and Connie Mahoney. She is a member of the National Honor Society and is a cross-country and track runner. She has also spent time on the soccer field and has been a member of the ski patrol at Nub's Nob. Mahoney is currently researching what colleges she'd like to attend and wants to become a physician.

Depot eyed as first historical district in city

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

A committee formed to study how to create historical districts in Charlevoix has concluded its research and been reformed to begin work on getting the Depot Museum designated as the city's first district.

The move has the support of the Charlevoix Historical Society, according to committee chair Bob Heath. Plus, the Depot is already registered as a national historic site.

"The advantage is that we are dealing with a resource already on our national and state registry with the support of the (historical) organizations," he told Charlevoix City Council at its Jan. 17 meeting.

Once the Depot is turned into a historic district, Heath said, this will pave the way for more historic districts in Charlevoix — such as the churches, Earl Young Homes or even downtown — by making it easier for the group to apply for grants. These grants would allow the group to do further studies on more historic districts.

But, the path to this goal is not going to be quick or free of complications.

Sheriff offers winter safety tips

With severe winter storms pounding most of the country, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office is advising residents living in regions susceptible to flooding to be vigilant in order to protect both life and property.

The best advice for the protection of life during severe winter weather is to stay inside and out of harm's way. Specifically, Sheriff George T. Lasater encourages citizens to:

- Be prepared to improvise and use what you have on hand to make it on your own for at least three days. While there are many things that might make you more comfortable, your priority should be fresh water, food, prescription medicine and clean air.

- Put together multiple disaster supply kits. One for your home should include everything needed to stay where you are and make it on your own. Keep a smaller disaster supplies kit in the trunk of each car. If you become stranded or are not able to return home, having some items will help you to be more comfortable until help arrives. Keep items in airtight plastic bags. This will help protect them from damage or spoiling.

- Gather basic emergency supplies — a flashlight, a battery-powered radio, extra batteries, extra blankets, a first aid kit, toilet articles, prescription medicines and other special things your family may need.

- While in your vehicle, try to steer clear of streams and washes, particularly during threatening conditions. Flood waters can rise quickly and carry you or your belongings away.

- If you live in a flood-prone area and have been advised of a flood warning, evacuate immediately. Move quickly to higher ground. Save yourself, not your belongings. The most important thing is your safety.

Sheriff Lasater hopes that by following these tips and exercising proper precautions, all residents of Charlevoix County will stay safe this winter.

Local teen leads police on three-county chase

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

A 19-year-old Charlevoix man was arrested following a three-county chase that started in Charlevoix Township Sunday morning.

According to Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater, someone called 9-1-1 to report that Chad Johnson, of Loeb Road in Marion Township, was seen leaving a business in downtown Charlevoix intoxicated.

Lasater said the investigation is still trying to determine which business Johnson left. He added, officers are trying to determine if Johnson was the person that called in to report the drunk driver.

Johnson's vehicle was stopped around 2:30 a.m. by a Charlevoix County Sheriff Deputy on US-31 South in Charlevoix Township, when Johnson decided to drive away from the officer.

Lasater said Johnson led officers from the sheriff's office, East Jordan Police Department, Michigan State Police Petoskey Post, Antrim County Sheriff's Office, Emmet County Sheriff's Office, the Petoskey DPS and the Gaylord Police Department on a three county chase through Antrim, Charlevoix and Otsego counties for almost an hour. Johnson was in contact with 9-1-1 Central Dispatch and his father during the chase.

During the chase, several patrol vehicles were damaged when Johnson allegedly struck them with his vehicle. These included two Charlevoix County vehicles an East Jordan police vehicle and a state police vehicle. Lasater said an Antrim County Deputy was also struck by Johnson's vehicle, but he was only slightly injured. The officer was treated and released at the hospital.

Police used "spike sticks" on two occasions to try to stop Johnson's vehicle. The first spike stick was deployed by a Emmet County Sheriff Deputy, but Johnson continued to drive the disabled vehicle until a second set of stop sticks were used by the Gaylord Police Department.

Johnson is lodged in the Charlevoix County Jail and was arraigned Monday on five counts of attempting to flee and elude police, drunk driving, driving on a suspended license and assault with a dangerous weapon (vehicle).

His bond was increased from $100,000 to $500,000 at the request of Charlevoix County Prosecutor John Jarema.

Lasater said he wanted to recognize the "professional and common sense response to this pursuit by all police officers involved and the stalwart efforts of 9-1-1 Central Dispatch."

He added, while there are situations when police officers must pull off of a chase, this was not one of them.

"He (Johnson) was a drunk driver. We had to get him off the road before he hit someone," Lasater said. "Drunk driving is a serious offense. Plus you never know why they are running. There might be reasons other than the drunk driving."

Lasater added, if officers had not went to the lengths they did to stop Johnson, what would happen if he had continued down the road, struck a civilian and killed them? "We would be negligent," he said.

OPINIONS

The First Amendment
Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

Have we held everyone accountable in the city?

Accountability. Any more this word has become just that — a word. It seems every day we hear of people who should be taking some accountability for things happening under their watch not doing so.

Politicians are getting away with using incorrect information to put our nation at war. Parents are getting out of their duties of raising their children by blaming their children's problems on the media. The list goes on and on, including businesses, police and many other groups.

Is Charlevoix a part of this list? You see, last year was not a good year for the city. Its wastewater treatment plant was investigated by the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality, two city employees were arrested over the matter, a check for over $220,000 was written wrongly which the an insurance company to sue the city, the marina plan keeps getting pushed back and many others.

In the wastewater treatment issue, we find problems at the plant dating back three years. In addition to falsified reports and the pumping of too much chlorine into Lake Michigan from the plant, we also find equipment that was broken and leaking — basically problems that should have been noticed by someone in charge by simply visiting the plant sometime in the last three years. The city called in the MDEQ last winter on the falsified documents and chlorine and has also taken steps to clean up the site.

But, the question is, who was supposed to be keeping an eye on that plant and why did conditions get so bad? Was it just the plant superintendent Sam Creswell or were more people responsible for keeping the plant in tip-top shape?

The same goes for all the other issues mentioned above. Who was supposed to be on guard? Some would say that duty falls to the city manager Mike Wiesner. Isn't Wiesner ultimately responsible for the errors made by his employees? In many companies, if the CEO had suffered as many problems as Wiesner has with the city in one year, the board of that company would want that CEO's head on a platter.

It is hoped the city and Wiesner have learned from the errors last year. Perhaps the city will have the proper checks and balances in place to ensure that these errors will never be made again. That remains to be seen.

In the meantime, we have to ask ourselves, has the community held everyone accountable for the problems we faced?

Cheap spices were not always the case

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

The history of spices is the history of European wealth, just as the history of petroleum is mostly the history of Middle Eastern wealth.

The difference is that spices enriched only the Europeans who bought, transported and traded them, while petroleum has vastly enriched both the countries that produced it and the countries that bought, traded and transported it.

It is difficult to imagine that spices which we now purchase in any grocery for a pittance could have held such economic power over much of the world for centuries. To see how, it is necessary to go back about a thousand years in human history.

Before the years surrounding the first millennium, if you were a northern European and you wanted your food to have a more exciting taste, there were few choices. Mustard was available as was horseradish root ground with vinegar. Other taste enhancers included onions and leeks, or were mild herbs like basil, rosemary, sage, marjoram and thyme. Black pepper, now the most widely used of all spices, was only available to the extraordinarily wealthy or the very lucky, and cloves and cinnamon were the stuff of legends.

Pepper and other exceedingly valuable spices had to come overland from India, on caravans that were slow, dangerous and sporadic. The money made in the spice trade before 1500 wound up in Venice, Italy, where the ships of the Mediterranean brought spices from Arabian ports at the end of the caravan routes. The art and architecture of Venice is a monument to the value of the spices traded there.

Much of that changed around the time Columbus was sailing to the New World. Columbus was looking for spices and hoped to get to India. What he found in the West Indies was chili peppers and tobacco, which have their own story. Portuguese navigators at the same time were gradually finding their way around the southern tip of Africa into the Indian Ocean and on to the Spice Coast of India.

Until 1961, when it became part of India, Goa, a Portuguese settlement established in the early 1500s, was still on maps of that country's west coast, which was the center of the pepper trade. A single shipload of pepper could be the source of a family's wealth for generations. Monopoly control of pepper meant that Portugal could keep prices very high. The Dutch, British and French knew a good thing when they saw it and began to establish their own colonies and spice trade. The Dutch and British fought to control the spice economy for almost two centuries, and both countries firmly and militarily established trade outposts from India to what is today Indonesia, making their own contributions to ethnic conflicts that persist in the twenty-first century. The French came late to the spice trade, but managed to control what is now Vietnam and a number of Indian Ocean islands.

The result of all that conflict and economic adventurism is that today, black pepper is cheap and available everywhere. Cloves, nutmeg, cardamom, cinnamon, turmeric and a dozen more spices from the once distant East are a part of our daily lives. The only remnants of their rarity and price persist in old recipes.

Christmas cookie recipes from Scandinavia often have just a little bit of cardamom, which must at one time have been quite expensive. By comparison, the curry powders of India have an abundance of what Europeans centuries ago would have been prohibitively costly.

My favorite is what travels under the name of Vindaloo seasoning, which is a mixture of coriander, garlic, cumin, ginger, cinnamon, mustard, cayenne, cardamom, turmeric, black pepper and cloves. Vindaloo comes from Goa, and combines the best of both European and Indian spices and can now be bought for a few dollars a pound.

Let us hope that petroleum prices will one day follow the pattern set by the once rare and costly spices of the Far East.

Wrestling team doing well

Editor: Thank you for attending Charlevoix High School's wrestling Take Down Tournament this past Saturday and taking pictures. As a parent of a wrestler, I appreciate your newspaper's interest and coverage especially since our sport is not typically in the limelight like basketball and others.

The 2004-2005 Rayder wrestlers have been competing very well this season under the leadership of Coach Craig Golovich and Assistant Coach Nick Gould. These coaches have been laboring for years, recruiting and training young wrestlers at the elementary/middle school level, with the long term vision of re-building a successful high school program.

Often other students join the wrestling program during their high school years. No matter the individual skill level, each student athlete is encouraged, trained and given every opportunity to attain his/her best in the sport.

Not only is the team doing well this season, but Jed Daman (135 pounds) is undefeated with a 27-0 record to date. Jed also won the "Outstanding Wrestler" award on Saturday, Jan. 22nd at the Take Down Tournament. Jed is like many others on the team: a young man who models the mindset of strict competition and hard work, while mentoring teammates less experienced.

This sport is very unique in its intensity, risk of injury and the fact that at each meet the athlete is competing both as an individual and as a team. This sport teaches good character in the form of physical and mental discipline, goal setting, healthy training, perseverance, anger management and gentlemanly sportsmanship in the midst of pain and blood.

Each match these athletes compete in gives them a life learning experience like none other.

We are grateful we live in a community that embraces its young people, their academic education, their spiritual and moral development, their civic endeavors, their trade choices and their athletic accomplishments! At a time when communities are concerned about drug abuse, addictions and immoral behavior, when the articles reporting court appearances and sentencing often take up more print space than the sports page, it is refreshing to remember and honor the young people in our community who are making right choices.

Politics of fear

Editor: As the Bush Administration begins its second term we are again being fed another diet of fear. The newest "crisis" is Social Security. George W. is telling us that we need to "save" social security by establishing private retirement accounts. As the president who has gone from a budget surplus to the largest deficit in history, he now proposes borrowing another $2 trillion so that individuals can put their retirement money into the stock market. If that is such a good idea, why hasn't the government been investing social security in the stock market?

First of all, there is no crisis. There is enough money to completely fund the program until 2042. After that, the solution is to raise the tax by 1 percent or fund 80 percent of the benefits. That is a 1 percent solution, not a crisis. Yes we need to plan for more retirees living longer with fewer workers to support them, but there is time to plan, not panic.

How can it become a crisis? Carl Rove and the Bush administration has proved if you say something over and over again, people will believe you. They took us to war in Iraq and now we know there was no truth to their arguments. Iraq did not support Al Qaeda and there were no weapons of mass destruction. For that we are spending a billion dollars a day for a war that has been terribly mismanaged and suffers from the exact problems that George W.'s father warned of when he did not go on to Baghdad in the Gulf War.

In the past, Republicans preached fiscal responsibility and smaller government. In the name of fear and terrorism George W. has made government bigger and created enormous debt. Now he wants to create even more debt to give his buddies on Wall Street a windfall under the guise of "fixing" social security.

Social Security is not welfare. Workers have been contributing 6.2 percent of their earnings for Social Security and their employers have been contributing another 6.2 percent. That money has not been in the stock market because the stock market represents risk. Yes, people can make money, but people can also lose money. What happens if they lose their retirement money? Social Security should stay in the low risk category.

Unfortunately, we no longer have a free press to challenge false assertions. The press is owned by mega media companies whose bottom line is profit over truth, sensationalism over reality and fear equals sensationalism. The Bush administration supports their greed and the media supports the Bush administration.

As Americans we want to be optimistic. Even though we may be cynical about politicians, we do not want to believe we are being used and manipulated. We want to believe our leaders. Thanks to Carl Rove and the current administration, we must begin to question their politics of fear before we make another big mistake.

Whooping cough found in Emmet

A school-age child from Emmet County has been diagnosed with pertussis, or whooping cough, according to officials at the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, the health department that serves Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties.

People with pertussis should be treated with certain antibiotics, both to help modify the course of the illness, if given early enough, and to limit the spread of disease to others. In addition, a course of preventive antibiotic therapy is recommended for household and other close contacts of a case.

"Anyone diagnosed with pertussis should stay home and away from public activities — including school, childcare and the workplace — to avoid exposing others until appropriately treated with antibiotics," said Joshua Meyerson, MD, medical director for the health department.

Pertussis affects the air passages and lungs, making breathing difficult and it can lead to coughing spasms.

Pertussis infections tend to be more severe in infants and young children, who are at an increased risk of complications associated with the disease, such as pneumonia and seizures.

Pertussis can occasionally cause death. The disease tends to be less severe in adolescents and adults, often going undiagnosed in these groups. However, even in older people, pertussis can cause prolonged coughing and illness lasting several weeks.

Health experts believe that adolescents and adults with unrecognized, undiagnosed pertussis can often be the source of infections in small infants and children.

Early in the twentieth century, pertussis was one of the most common childhood diseases and a major cause of death for children. Since the widespread use of vaccines, the incidence of pertussis has decreased significantly, but Michigan has seen an increase in the number of reported cases of pertussis this year.

Pertussis is a vaccine preventable disease. A series of immunizations are given in the infant and childhood years. The routine schedule calls for a primary series of four doses, given at two, four, six, and fifteen to eighteen months of age. A booster dose is given at four to six years of age.

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is the local health department serving Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego Counties. Its staff is dedicated to preventing disease and injury and promoting healthy communities. For more information about pertussis or the DTaP vaccine, contact your physician, or visit www.nwhealth.org or telephone the health department at (800) 432-4121 during regular business hours.

Avoid being scammed when giving

Sheriff George T. Lasater and the Better Business Bureau remind citizens: Beware of phony charitable appeals.

It is as regular as clockwork. Within days of any large-scale tragedy, the Better Business Bureau (BBB) and your local sheriff hear reports of people who want to take advantage of Americans' eagerness to provide relief to the victims.

While contributions to helpful causes are strongly encouraged, donors should make certain the charity is properly registered with appropriate state and/or government agencies, that it describes exactly what it will do to address the needs of victims and that it is willing to provide written information about its finances and programs.

In addition to checking with the Better Business Bureau, donors should consider the following tips when giving in the wake of a tragedy or disaster:

- Be wary of appeals that are long on emotion, but short on facts describing what the charity will do to address the needs of victims and their families.

- If you contribute, do not give cash. Make a check or money order out to the name of the charitable organization, not to the individual collecting the donation.

- If you decide to contribute online, find out more about the charity before making a contribution and be aware of red flags. For example, some charities imitate the name and style of a well-known organization in order to confuse people. Also, when clicking on the link to "donate," look at the organization's URL in the browser window. Exercise caution if the domain name is hidden, is not familiar to you, or is not the same as the one stated in the text of the link.

- Watch out for excessive pressure for on-the-spot donations. Be wary of any request to send a "runner" to pick up your contribution.

- Do not give your credit card number or other personal information to a telephone solicitor or in response to an e-mail solicitation. Ask the caller or sender to provide you with written information on the charity's programs and finances.

- Do not hesitate to ask for written information that describes the charity's program(s) and finances such as the charity's latest annual report and financial statements. Even newly created organizations should have some basic information available.

- Be wary of charities that are reluctant to answer reasonable questions about their operations, finances and programs. Ask how much of your gift will be used for the activity mentioned in the appeal and how much will go toward other programs and administrative and fund raising costs.

- See if the charity's appeal explains what the charity intends to do with any excess contributions remaining after they have fully funded the disaster relief activities mentioned in solicitations.

You can obtain further advice on giving, as well as access reports on national charities, by visiting www.give.org, the web site of the BBB Wise Giving Alliance, the national charity watchdog affiliated with the Better Business Bureau system. Reports on local charities are available through your local BBB office at www.lookup.bbb.org.

If you believe you have been the victim of a questionable charitable appeal, report the crime to your local police or sheriff's office immediately.

Charlevoix County Republicans had their county convention Thursday, Jan. 13. The following were elected as delegates and alternates to the state convention to be held in Grand Rapids Feb. 4 and 5, 2005:

Delegates are Josh Barnes, Phyllis Elzinga, Phyllis Haggard, Diane Gustin, Dennis Kusina, John Ramsey all of Charlevoix and Bill McDonough of Beaver Island.

Alternates are John Elzinga, John Haggard, Kevin Kusina, Patsy Ramsey, Bob and Marlys Drehsedt all of Charlevoix and Tamara McDonough of Beaver Island.

Wine, cheese, chocolate and a heart discussion

A special program just for women will be given at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 2, at Charlevoix Area Hospital featuring wine, cheese, chocolate and a discussion about women's heart health.

The program, being given in the large conference room at the hospital, will help women recognize the symptoms of a heart attack that are specific to a woman and how to describe those symptoms to your physician. Reservations are required and may be made by calling 547-8651.

Tina Foltz, RN and Monica Speigl, ACSM exercise specialist, with the Cardiac Rehab Center at Charlevoix Area Hospital will talk about healthy hearts, exercise, and symptoms that every woman should know in the event of a heart attack.

"While more and more women are discovering that heart disease can be a killer, not enough women know the symptoms that can help them determine they could be having a heart attack," said Kathy Johnson, Foundation Director with the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation. "Reservations are required because our space is limited to just 50 women. We anticipate having a full house."

This special program is being sponsored by the Community Relations Committee of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation, Don's Markets of Harbor Springs and Charlevoix and Kilwin's of Charlevoix. Cost for the event is $8 per person, $5 for members of the Foundation's Lighthouse Club, Boyne Harbor Masters, Bridge Builders and Great Lakes Society.

Statistics show that heart disease is the number one killer of women in America. The American Heart Association says that women can combat those numbers by increasing their consumption of fruits, vegetables and whole grains; decreased consumption of saturated fats and trans fatty acids; choosing foods full of nutrients; controlling their calorie intake and regular physical activity.

James J. Stankevich, 67, of Charlevoix and Indian River, died Sunday, Jan. 23, 2005 at his Charlevoix home.

Funeral service will be held at 11 a.m., Thursday, Jan. 27, 2005 at Lintz Funeral Home in Indian River. The Rev. Gary Step will officiate. A chapel service will be given at 1 p.m., Friday, Jan. 28, 2005 at White Chapel Cemetery in Troy.

Jim was born on Jan. 2, 1938 in Oakland County, the son of John and Elizabeth Stankevich. He grew up in Berkley and graduated from the Shrine High School in Royal Oak. He was a veteran of the U.S. Marines enlisting in 1959.

In 1983 he married the former Thorp in Charlevoix.

Shirley owned and operated Thorp's Antiques in Charlevoix for many years. Prior to Ed's death on Aug. 6, 1988, they farmed and raised beef cattle in Ellsworth. In 1990, Shirley moved to Ogilville, Ind. to live near her daughter, then returned to Ellsworth in 1995. She has lived the past five years in Charlevoix where she could be close to all of her friends and family.

She was a member of the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix. Shirley was a loving, caring mom, sister and friend to many.

She is survived by her daughter, Susan Thorp Manturuk of Ellsworth; sons, Joseph W. (Paulette) Thorp of Charlevoix; Michael E. (Marcie) Thorp of Central Lake; grandchildren, Tim, Eric and Chris Manturuk; Joseph and Rachel Thorp, Sara Kluth, Brodin picked as new shift commander

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

A longtime volunteer, Bill Brodin, is now the Charlevoix City Fire Department's new shift commander.

Brodin replaced Lyle Gennett as shift commander, which took effect early this year.

"I just really feel I'm right in my element," he said.

Brodin has been with the fire department since 1994 and served as a paid, on-call volunteer.

Charlevoix Fire Chief Paul Ivan said Brodin went through the same application process as everyone else and the department felt comfortable choosing him as he competed well with others from outside the area.

Brodin said there were 15 applicants and all had to go through state testing and an interview process.

"The nice thing about choosing me is that I didn't really need a lot of training," he said.

During his time with the department, Brodin has continued to expand his career and being shift commander is one more step.

"Everything I got involved with I wanted to keep excellent," he said.

Even though he has been with the department for 11 years, Brodin didn't start out wanting to fight fires.

Brodin used to sell insurance and dealt with investments, but a personal acquaintance of his got him interested in fire fighting. Brodin said when he expressed an interest in fire fighting, Charlevoix Township Fire Chief Curt Thompson encouraged him to give it a try.

Not one to sit through long meetings, Brodin stopped what he was doing and pursued his new line of work. He also wanted to become more involved with the community and volunteering at the fire department gave him that luxury, along with coaching youth softball.

During his time as a volunteer, Brodin kept applying himself and qualifying for higher positions. Aside from being the shift commander, he is currently an Emergency Medical Services (EMS) specialist and a certified diver with the department's dive and rescue team.

He's not stopping there as he has future plans to become a paramedic, which is the next step above specialist, and to also become a dive master.

So far, Brodin said the job is going great as it allows him to combine his current schooling in business management with his background in automotive repair and knowledge he gained from being a volunteer.

"It's right up my alley," he said. "I really like it."

Brodin said his responsibility as shift commander combines his previous work as a volunteer such as responding to emergencies with all the behind the scenes work. This extra work includes administrative responsibilities such as filing reports, training volunteers and doing mechanical work such as repairing the trucks.

As one of three full-time firefighters, Brodin works along side Joseph Schwartzfisher, shift commander, and Bob Roloff, shift commander and emergency medical services coordinator. The three men worked along side one another while Brodin was still a volunteer.

"We've got along great," he said.

Congratulations!

Council nixes proposal for new city police car

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Due to budget concerns, Charlevoix's police department will have to go without a new cruiser this year.

At the Jan. 17, city council meeting, a request to purchase a new police cruiser for $20,133 was turned down by a 3-2 vote. Council members Bob Timms, Shirley Gibson and Karen Campbell voted against the request, while council members Bill Haggard and Sherm Chamberlain voted for it.

"I don't want to raise taxes to buy a new police cruiser. If we don't cut back on what we are spending that is what is going to happen," Timms said. "They will get along fine on two cars instead of three."

Police Chief Dennis Halverson brought the matter to the commissioners during the meeting saying the city traditionally purchases two new cars every three years. The last new car the police department received was in the spring of 2004.

He said he was bringing this request for a new car to the council now in order to get it in a timely fashion.

Halverson said the department currently has three police vehicles

"They will get along just fine on two cars instead of three."

Bob Timms,

from the years 2000, 2002 and 2004. The year 2000 vehicle would have been replaced by the 2005 if council had voted to approve it. Currently, the 2000 vehicle has 113,000 miles on it.

Timms, who lead the vote against the request, said the denial of the police car could be viewed as petty by some, but he believes the city should not be spending so much right now. The reason for this, he said, are plans to create a citizens committee that will review current city services and revenue "enhancements," which Timms believes is being done to find services to cut and taxes to raise.

However, in past stories in the Courier, the architect of this committee, Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson, said it would not be used necessarily to find ways to cut spending. Instead, he insisted the committee would be used to just look over city services to determine if we need less in one area or more in another.

But, Timms is not convinced, which lead to his vote — and others — against Halverson's request. Timms said he believes the police department can get by with the vehicles it has if it keeps the cruisers properly maintained. He said he is not worried about a cruiser breaking down during an emergency call if they are maintained as they should be.

"I'm not one to replace things all the time," he said. Gibson, who also voted against the request, said she is extremely pro-law enforcement, but she was concerned over the lack of information Halverson had given her at the meeting. When asked at the meeting, Halverson could not tell council members the years of the other vehicles his department uses or the miles on them.

"I am not going to make snap decisions about money without the proper information," Gibson said. Halverson said he is not sure how the vote would impact the department's schedule for police cruisers.

"Time will tell," he said.

Read to your child at the Charlevoix library

It's never too early to read to your baby.

The Charlevoix Public Library is offering a opportunity for you and your small child: Lap Sit at the library is a way to introduce your child to the world of books, reading and the library.

Lap Sit is a program designed for children 18 months to 35 months old. The Lap Sit program brings parent and child to the library to enjoy 20 minutes of a mixture of stories, songs and poems.

The different types of literature are introduced through a variety of media including traditional books, storyboards, flannel boards, puppets and music.

"Researchers have shown that reading is an excellent way to foster language development," Val Meyerson, library director, said.

Lap Sit is at 10:05 a.m. every Thursday and follows the same schedule as the Charlevoix Public Schools. If there is an older sibling, bring him/her along as well, because traditional story hour is from 10:30 - 11:15 a.m.

Consolidation of school election almost final

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Abiding by election consolidation laws, the regulations for school board elections are currently being finalized.

The decisions came during a meeting on Jan. 13 when County Clerk Jane Brannon met with the city and township clerks and school board officials to determine how things would be run.

"We came up with a pretty reasonable plan," she said.

The school board elections will take place on May 3 this year and will not occur at Charlevoix Elementary School as they did in the past.

Chief Deputy County Clerk Cherie Browe said the law states that there can't be more than 2,999 people in one precinct, so several precincts were created in each school district to accommodate the changes.

Browe said the changes were made in the best interest of the schools and the county tried to make it cost effective.

"The schools have been real agreeable to it," Browe said.

The Charlevoix Public School Board voted to change the regular election date from June to May in both the odd and even years during the Nov. 8 meeting.

Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent John Sturock said in a previous interview that new legislation was passed last year that intends to try and consolidate elections around the national November elections.

Sturock said part of the reasoning behind the election consolidation bills is that people could get elected to positions without a large voter turnout. He said in a previous interview that unless there was a money issue on the ballot, very few people turned out to vote.

Sturock said it was a concern in other parts of the state, but not so much in Charlevoix.

Sturock said schools were given the choice to have their elections in November or May. If schools didn't choose, the elections date would have automatically been November. He said that would have caused the school board terms to become six year terms instead of four year terms.

In a previous interview, he said that choosing to move the election up one month was the best choice in order to keep everything flowing nicely.

Nothing much has changed except that the elections will be a month earlier and Charlevoix County is now in charge of overseeing the election process. That process includes having the county handle everything, leaving only the city and township clerks to run the election.

However, those clerks on Beaver Island will handle everything themselves as Browe said it's easier than having their clerks come to Charlevoix to file.

"All the clerks are real good at cooperating and helping with everything," she said.

There are three proposed Charlevoix school precincts and 7,435 registered voters in the Charlevoix School District. Precinct One includes Marion, Norwood and Banks townships. Voting will take place in Marion Township.

Precinct Two includes both Charlevoix and Hayes townships and voting will occur in Hayes Township.

Precinct Three includes the City of Charlevoix and Eveline Township, with voting occurring in the City of Charlevoix.

There are also three proposed Boyne City school precincts and there are 6,197 registered voters in Boyne City School District. Precinct One covers the City of Boyne City.

Precinct Two covers Wilson, Boyne Valley, Jordan and Warner townships with voting occurring in Wilson Township.

Precinct Three covers Bay, Evangeline, Eveline, Hayes and Melrose townships with voting occurring in Bay Township.

There are two proposed East Jordan school precincts and there are 4,799 registered voters in the East Jordan School District. Precinct One includes the City of East Jordan and Jordan, Echo and

Wilson townships. Voting will occur in the City of East Jordan.

Precinct Two consists of South Arm and Eveline township with voting occurring in South Arm Township.

There is only one proposed Boyne Falls school precinct that includes Boyne Valley, Hudson, Melrose and Warner townships. Voting will occur in Boyne Valley Township. There are 1,338 registered voters in Boyne Falls School District.

There is also only one proposed Beaver Island school precinct that includes both St. James and Peaine townships with voting occurring in St. James Township. There are 540 registered voters in Beaver Island Community School District.

Browe said the county will notify all the voters where they will vote in the new precincts. Some of the townships overlap in precincts as the lines were drawn according to the school districts and not just the township borders.

County to consider workplace smoking ban

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The Charlevoix County Commission will be considering whether to adopt the Public Health Clean Indoor Air Regulation during their regular meeting at 7 p.m. on Jan. 26.

The regulation aims to ban smoking from public and private places and businesses where harmful second-hand smoke could be inhaled by those who do not smoke.

County Commissioner Valerie Snyder is against the regulation as she doesn't understand why it's not being applied to bars and restaurants where people are confronted with smoke.

She said the regulation was put into action to help factory workers. However, the regulation will affect almost all employers in town.

"If you feel strongly about making your business non-smoking then do it," she said.

The regulation is being proposed by the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency that covers Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties.

Snyder said so far every county has passed the regulation except Charlevoix. The regulation will become effective 90 days after the last county approves the regulation.

The purpose of banning smoking in public and private work places is to protect the public's health and welfare.

The regulation will ban smoking in several places including all enclosed areas of worksites and public places that are owned, rented, leased or otherwise under control of a participating county. This also includes motor vehicles.

Other places where a participating county will ban smoking is restrooms, lobbies, reception areas, hallways and other commons areas.

Public transportation, service lines, retail stores, public places used by the general public, galleries, libraries, museums, theaters, cinemas, sports arenas, convention halls, both public and private meeting facilities and school buildings also have to ban smoking on their facilities.

Hospitals, professional offices, motels, hotels and places where bingo is played will also have to comply.

Restaurants, bars, casinos and tobacco specialty stores will not have to adhere to the ban.

Any violations of the regulation once put in place will be a warning for the first violation. However, there will be a $50 fine for a second violation, $100 fine for a third violation and a $500 fine for each additional violation within the one year from the first violation.

For more information and to read the entire regulation go to the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency's web site at www.nwhealth.org

PUBLIC NOTICE

If it's not in the newspaper, how will the public notice?

Zoning changes. Tax increases. Legislative proposals. These are just a few topics where government actions can affect your life and community. Imagine if government no longer had the legal obligation to publish this information in your newspaper. How would public notices get noticed? In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. It should not be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, when to look or even to know what you're looking for to be informed. City council continues to debate blight

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

A blight ordinance focused on getting rid of abandoned and unsafe buildings in Charlevoix continues to be debated by city officials.

"It seems like every time we discuss this, there is less and less of it," Council member Shirley Gibson said.

The ordinance, proposed by Gibson in December, was in response to complaints Gibson has received from residents in her ward. Charlevoix City Attorney Jim Young wrote up a proposed ordinance for her and said it was an excellent idea.

However, some council members had concerns about the ordinance, saying it was too restrictive. They pointed out portions of the ordinance that stated you could not have unpainted siding on your house.

When it was proposed at the December council meeting, council member Bill Bellows pointed to that section, saying some people like the weathered look on their house.

"I feel the ordinance we have in place now is fine," said council member Bill Bellows.

Bellow was referring to a city blight ordinance that deals with trash, not structures. The proposed new ordinance deals strictly with structures, according to attorney Jim Young.

Due to some of the council members concerns that it was too restrictive at the December meeting, it was decided to send the ordinance back to city staff for rewording.

Then, at the Jan. 17 meeting, the ordinance came up again, this time being criticized by Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson.

Halverson said he and city planner Gerry Harsch met and discussed this proposed ordinance. He said they decided most of the issues it deals with are already covered by city ordinance and he questioned how enforceable it was.

Halverson wrote in a memo to council that he does not know who would determine if a structure is structurally sound, weather-tight or waterproof. The proposed ordinance dealt with issues such as this.

However, Gibson questioned if Halverson had talked to the city zoning administrator, Diane Manore, about this. She said Manore would be the one to deal with enforcing this ordinance, not Halverson.

Halverson said Manore was a part of some of the meetings between him and Harsch. In an interview after the meeting, Halverson said Manore is just the first level of enforcement when it comes to zoning issues and his officers are the next level.

But Gibson said she wanted

Manore's thoughts on this ordinance. She added she was tired of the proposed ordinance being stripped of its power.

"I know Mr. (Jim) Young put a lot of time in on this and he said it was a good idea. Now it looks like it was used for target practice," she said.

But other council members still questioned the need for this ordinance.

Council member Sherm Chamberlain said, "I think you are getting into some very subjective situations. Not all people can constantly maintain their houses the way I would like."

Council member Boh Timms said, "Sometimes things take care of themselves over time."

Attorney Young suggested council focus the ordinance on the blighted structures and determine what it wants the ordinance to say specifically. He said council should have staff come up with some specific recommendations to the ordinance which are, "a) clear and b) reasonable to enforcement."

Gibson said she wants the ordinance to deal with vacant "no-one-could-live-there" structures that have been in that sort of condition for years.

Charlevoix City Manager Mike Wiesner said he would talk to Manore about this ordinance and get some examples from her on what types of structures it would deal with. He added he would have her take pictures if necessary.

Shull named temporary airport manager

Brooks resigns from post as manager

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

City worker Jim Shull replaced Karyn Brooks as airport manager on Jan. 14 after Brooks resigned.

Brooks said she resigned due to the amount of work to be done with only a part-time status. When she started at the airport, the airport received $150,000 a year in May 2001 from the state and then in October 2001 the airport qualified to receive $1 million a year in funding. Immediately with the new status more work was to be done and the time required increased.

"I could not achieve that on a part-time basis," she said.

Brooks said she talked to her immediate supervisor over the last two and a half years concerning changes in her part-time status. However, she only received small changes and stayed part-time.

Other fully operational airports have a full-time manager, Brooks said, and other airports that have scheduled operations such as Traverse City and Pellston have a full support staff that works with the manager.

"I have to do it all," she said. "I can't do less than I think needs to be done."

Since the time required to get the job done wasn't there, Brooks said she felt her time at the airport had come to an end.

"I like to see things grow and develop and I don't like to sit still," she said.

Another aspect that caused her to resign was that she was constantly told to re-do projects that were already done, which is something she didn't have time for while running a fully operational airport on part time status.

"A lot is due to the current political climate that exists in the community between council and staff and I'm not a political person," she said.

Brooks said the decision was hard, but said she doesn't regret it. However, she will miss the people she worked with and the area.

Brooks said for now she will watch the growth at the airport and in Charlevoix as a member of the community.

"I'm looking forward to seeing what else the community will do," she said of the many projects and challenges ahead.

Shull was asked to take on the responsibility until a permanent replacement can be found.

City Manager Michael Wiesner said it is undetermined how long Shull will act as manager of the airport, but it could be until early or mid summer.

However, Shull doesn't have any prior experience running an airport.

"Whenever we've looked in the past we haven't felt airport experience was necessary," Wiesner said. "We need a problem solver, someone used to dealing with people."

Wiesner said the last two individuals who managed the airport didn't have prior experience when they began.

"We think he'll work out well," he said.

Shull may not have airport experience, but he has managerial experience.

For 20 years, Shull was in charge of the United States Coast Guard Station in Charlevoix. Before his time in Charlevoix, Shull ran another station.

"I like the challenge of solving problems," he said, which is one of the things that draws him toward management.

Shull has lived in Charlevoix for about seven years and has worked for the city as the project manager for City Hall renovations for the past three years.

Standing in as airport manager is just an additional duty as Shull will continue with his work on City Hall.

"I'm looking forward to the challenge of learning how the airport operates," he said.

Shull said he has been involved with federal government and government projects before, which will help him carry out his duties at the airport.

Also, Wiesner said there is a lot of support the manager receives from engineers, the Michigan Bureau of Aeronautics and the Federal Aviation Administration.

Shull said he has been so busy getting the airport budget ready to present to Wiesner that he hasn't really gotten a chance to take everything in yet.

"I'll get my bearings and figure out where the horizon is," he said.

Recycler of the year named

The Charlevoix County Recycling Committee has named Jim Slough of East Jordan Auto Parts as their First Annual Recycler of the Year for his outstanding recycling efforts.

Committee Chair, Shirley Roloff, presented Slough with the award at a recent meeting of the county's recycling committee.

"Jim has done a wonderful job in recycling foundry grade materials, aluminum, copper, stainless steel, brass, lead, and other materials," said Shirley Roloff, Committee Chair. "He probably does more for recycling than any business or organization this side of Emmet County's Transfer Station."

During the past year East Jordan Auto Parts has recycled over 3 million pounds of materials including approximately 2 million pounds of foundry grade material, along with copper, stainless steel, junk cars, underground oil tanks, cast iron radiators, aluminum products and other materials.

Scrap materials recycled by Slough come from a wide variety of sources including appliance stores, auto repair shops, contractors, businesses, other salvage yards, transfer stations, community clean up projects, farms, individual consumers, public works and others.

Many items are cleaned by first removing any non-ferrous metals, then the metal is sorted, graded and packaged for shipment to appropriate markets. Many items are used

Library honors two for 20 years of service

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Charlevoix Public Library employees Jeanne McGhee and Shirley Kemp received recognition for their 20 years of service to the public recently.

Both McGhee and Kemp began working at the library and assisting patrons when the current building was not even 20 years old. Valerie Meyerson, director of the Charlevoix Public Library, said both women were honored with a clock and a plaque.

"It was a lovely token and I think they appreciate it," she said.

McGhee has been at the library for 20 years this past November and Kemp will have served the library for 20 years in March.

Both McGhee and Kemp said the recognition they received was unexpected as they were simply enjoying a staff Christmas party when they were recognized.

"It was quite a surprise," McGhee said.

Kemp agreed. "I thought it was really nice," she said of the recognition.

McGhee, a Michigan native, has lived in Charlevoix since about 1982 and has fully enjoyed her time at the library.

"I love it," she said. "You get all the front page headlines and it's a nice group of people."

McGhee said one of her favorite aspects to working at the library is watching the children grow up before her eyes. She also enjoys those she works with.

"We have a really good team and that makes it better," she said.

McGhee began working at the library after former library director, Marybeth Wallick, asked her to learn the ropes of running the library. Since McGhee lived close to the library, Wallick trained her in case she was snowed in and couldn't get to the library.

"People depend on the library," McGhee said. "They count on a lot of the women."

During her 20 years of service at the library, McGhee said she has witnessed several changes including management and technology.

"We couldn't have had better people to get us going," she said.

One of those people is Meyerson, the current director.

"It's all around fun," McGhee said of working with Meyerson.

McGhee said Meyerson started meeting with the staff once a month and is always willing to listen to her staff.

The technology change from typing card catalogues to new computer systems has been something both McGhee and Kemp have had to adjust to.

Kemp said she was at first leery of using the computers, but is now constantly relearning systems as the computers are upgraded.

Kemp is a Michigan native and has lived in Charlevoix since the early 1970s. She enjoys reading mysteries, which she said her father did as well.

Kemp said her time at the library has been a positive one and she has enjoyed seeing the regular patrons each year.

"You get to meet a lot of nice people," she said.

Snyder to vacate seat, move to Vegas

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

County Commissioner Valerie Snyder will soon be resigning as she is moving with her family to an area outside of Las Vegas, Nev. sometime in February.

Valerie Snyder

Snyder, who just started her second term, said she will miss the area and her colleagues the most. "Probably the people I was working with," she said. "I really have a lot of respect for the commissioners."

Snyder said she has enjoyed her time serving as a commissioner.

"I think it's important if people have any inclination to be involved in local politics," she said.

Snyder and her husband, Mark, and two sons Jacob, 2, and Luke, 1, will be leaving for Henderson just outside of Las Vegas, Nev. Mark recently took a job offer there.

Snyder grew up in Charlevoix and left to attend college, but has been back in the area for almost 10 years.

Her main reason for choosing to live here is that her family is in the area. Even though she's leaving, Snyder said her family will come back in the summer.

"It's a great place in the summer," she said. "You can't beat it."

Despite moving from people she knows and place she grew up in, Snyder said she is looking forward to devoting her time to staying home with her sons. She said her desire is what motivated her husband to take the job.

When she relocates to Henderson, Snyder said she is unsure if she will pursue local politics there.

"I'd definitely be interested if I got to know people," she said. "It's hard to get elected if you don't know people."

Charlevoix County Clerk Jane Brannon said the commission will have to appoint someone within 30 days. But, because of the length of time before the term expires there will have to be a special election to permanently fill the empty seat.

Brannon said the law does not specify when the election will be. Snyder's term expires in two years on Dec. 31, 2006.

Crooked Tree brings art to the woods

Crooked Tree Arts Center invites you to enter into the woods during the months of January and February.

In two separate shows dedicated to the beauty of trees, the West Gallery will house the woven forest of Saginaw artist Roz Berlin while the Edith Gilbert Gallery will showcase the work of Kalamazoo artist Ladislav Hanka and the Legend of the Crooked Tree.

For the first two weeks in January, Berlin, with the help of the visual arts committee at Crooked Tree Arts Center, will transform the West Gallery into a forest of woven color and light. Hundreds of trees rising as high as fifteen feet into the air will fill the gallery. Visitors will experience a different world when they enter the Fantasy Forest.

Berlin, having received bachelors and masters degrees in art from Michigan State University, has been "growing" her colorful forest for over 30 years. Employing a four harness floor loom, she has woven her trees using a blend of natural and synthetic fibers. Just like a real forest, her "new growth" has changed and evolved over the years to shape a deep, dense grove for wandering.

The Edith Gilbert Gallery will feature the etchings and drawings of Ladislav Hanka. In the fall of 2004, Hanka began a quest to research the "Crooked Tree" and create new works dedicated to this theme. After several lengthy conversations with the local Ottawa elders, Hanka has traveled the backwoods of the northern Michigan in search of specific tree formations. Hanka has graduate degrees in art and zoology, having studied at Colorado State University.

Kalamazoo College and Western Michigan University as well as in Bonn, Vienna and Prague.

Crooked Tree Arts Center is located at 461 East Mitchell Street in Petoskey. Hours of operation are Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. and Saturdays from 10 until 4 p.m.

For information please contact the center at (231) 347-4337.

Woman's ski tour coming back to Charlevoix

Celebrate women, winter and chocolate on Feb. 27.

Active Women Now, Inc. a non-profit organization will host The Second Annual Charlevoix Ladies Tour, a weekend of fun and activities that will take the winter blues out of northern Michigan.

Active Women Now, Inc.

has ski tours in Michigan and the United States, celebrating the camaraderie that women hold in empowering one another while giving back to their community. This non-competitive winter event for women will be at the Charlevoix Elementary School and the trails will weave through Mount Me-

Sauga.

Novice winter activists are encouraged to attend.

Ski clinics will be given on Feb. 26 for beginners and those who are looking to cultivate their skills.

A wine and cheese event will be at Castle Farms as a prelude to the Charlevoix Ladies Tour.

Log onto the Women's Ski Tour web site for more information.

Tickets in advance are $35 and include all the chocolate, goodies and fun you can hold in one day. Proceeds from the Charlevoix Ladies Tour benefits BASES and the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan.

Please log onto www.womenskitour.com for more information on corporate sponsorship opportunities and purchasing event tickets. E-mail Courtney Miles, regional event manager at Courtney@womenskitour.com with further questions.

Rep can be reached at Lansing number

Residents of Antrim, Charlevoix, Otsego and most of Cheboygan counties with questions, concerns or needing assistance with state programs can contact newly-elected state Rep. Kevin Elsenheimer at his Lansing office.

"I'm looking forward to making a seamless transition from Ken Bradstreet's term to mine for the people of the 105th District," said Elsenheimer. R-Bellaire. "I'm keeping Brian Mills and Dan Dundas as my office staff, and I'm using as much of the previous office contact information as I can to make it easy for everyone."

The office mailing address and toll free, main office and fax telephone number remain the same.

U.S. mail can be addressed to Elsenheimer at the State Capitol, P.O. Box 30014, Lansing, MI 48909-7514; the toll free Lansing office telephone number is (877) 536-4105; the direct phone line is (517) 373-0829 and faxes may be sent to (517) 373-1841.

E-mail can be sent to kevinelsenheimer@house.mi.gov and residents may also contact Elsenheimer and access valuable government information via the lawmaker's online office web site.

Former assistant prosecutor opens own office

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Former assistant prosecutor for Charlevoix County Kerry Zahner has joined the private field with her new Charlevoix law office.

Zahner, of Charlevoix, opened her new law office on Jan. 1, 2005, the day after her position at the prosecutor's office ended. In addition to being an assistant prosecutor, Zahner was a family support specialist with the county.

"I am a native of Charlevoix and recognized a market for a female attorney, who is also a sole practitioner with the trial experience to competently advocate on behalf of her client in court," Zahner said.

She added business has been good so far, with five clients in her first two weeks open.

"I am busy enough that I haven't even unpacked," she said.

Zahner said she can help her clients in all areas of the law. While she was a family support specialist, she said she can offer quality representation to criminal defendants in all felonies and misdemeanors, including drunk driving and traffic issues, juvenile delinquencies and child protection.

She can also help her clients with probate court matters, such as wills.

Zahner graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1989. She then received a bachelor of science in 1993 from Michigan State University and a Juris Doctor in 1996 from the Capital University Law School in Columbus, Ohio.

From 1996 to 1999, she was an associate attorney with LeFevre and LeFevre, PLLC in Saginaw and began working for the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office in 1999 until Dec. 31, 2004.

Zahner is a member of the State Bar of Michigan, Charlevoix/Emmett County Bar Association, Kiwanis Club, Chi-Omega Fraternity Alumnae and the Luther Social Services of Michigan Congregations Girls Committee.

She is also married to Peter Zahner and has two children.

Zahner's new office is located at 703 Bridge Street, Suite 1, in Charlevoix — near the Re/Max of Charlevoix's office at the corner of Bridge and Hurbut streets. She can be contacted by calling (231) 237-7777 or e-mailing kbzahner@yahoo.com.

Basketball team continues domination

"It was something to see," coach Keith Haske said. "I like to think of it as a coming out party for Phil and we'll see

"He changed their whole game," Haske said. "One of the keys was that Phil didn't just block shots out of bounds but blocked them to us and we turned them into points."

The Rayders pulled away in the third quarter, going on a 10-2 run to start the second half, ending with back-to-back baskets by Eddie Waldron, for a 44-28 advantage.

Kalkaska was outscored, 23-10 in the third stanza and "I was really pleased with the whole team effort," Haske said. "The team had more giddy up and go. Kalkaska has been a tough place for us to play in the past but the kids did a good job even though offen-

The junior varsity and freshman teams both won as well, upping their records to 10-0 and 8-1 respectively.

Charlevoix (10-0 overall, 6-0 conference) is still ranked second in Class C by the Associated Press. The Rayders hosted Elk Rapids on Tuesday, Jan. 25. Results were unavailable at press time. Charlevoix plays at East Jordan on Friday, Jan. 28.

"They had the momentum in the beginning, but we gained the lead," she said.

"The seniors showed great leadership," she said. "Their presence on the floor and their attitude on the court was positive. This was the their best mental game so far."

"They're a decent team. We just have to go in and play our game," she said.

"This next round, Harbor Springs and St. Francis are the teams that will really be out to beat us," she said.

Charlevoix meets Kalkaska at 6 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 27 at home. They host the Charlevoix Invitational 8:30 a.m., Saturday, Jan. 29 at home. They then travel to Boyne City at 6 p.m., Monday Jan. 31.

Culinary arts class returns to center

Back by popular demand after the great success of last year's culinary classes, Crooked Tree Arts Center announces a Culinary Arts Series with Chef Vincent De Paulis.

The first class is scheduled from 5:30 to 8 p.m. for Tuesday, Feb. 1, 2005 and will repeat every other Tuesday evening for a total of five classes. You are invited to register for any number of classes as each evening is booked individually.

The menu for Tuesday, Feb. 1 will be: smoked whitefish paté, caesar salad, Vince's Famous Braised Duck, oven roasted potatoes and focaccia bread. Students will explore cooking techniques, learn trade secrets, participate in hands-on learning and enjoy a five-course dinner.

"Each night will enrich your culinary arts skills," Chef De Paulis said. "We feature a different menu with a variety of seasonal ingredients."

Students are encouraged to bring a French knife, Boning Knife, Paring Knife, Apron and two hand towels and a beverage of choice.

The fee for the class is $40 per student and includes dinner. Class size is limited to 12 people. The class will meet in the Bob Forman Kitchen of the Crooked Tree Arts Center.

The arts center is located at 461 E. Mitchell Street, downtown Petoskey. For more information and to enroll, call the arts center at (231) 347-4337.

Chorale rehearsals resuming

The Northern Michigan Chorale is resuming rehearsals for its twenty-third Spring Concert.

Rehearsals are from 7 to 9:30 p.m. every Monday night at Parr Memorial Baptist Church, corner of Waukazo and Michigan Streets, in Petoskey.

Concert dates are May 7, 8, and 9 at Crooked Tree Arts Center.

The chorale welcomes Peter D. Sims as the new director. He performed piano accompaniment during the fall concert season with the chorale.

Sims serves as the music director at First Presbyterian Church in Harbor Springs.

His career includes 25 years as choral director at Plainfield High School in Indianapolis, Ind. as well as a professional singer.

He is a long-time Bay View summer resident and currently lives in Petoskey and maintains an active private voice and piano studio, along with his church responsibilities.

The Northern Michigan Chorale performs music on the lighter side, from favorites to pop melodies and musicals.

This spring, a patriotic segment will be featured. Singers of Northern Michigan are invited to join them.

Membership and music fees will be collected. For information, contact President Christine Brown at (231) 582-9337 or Music Librarian Janada Chingwa at (231) 347-1618.

Cool ducks

The weather may have been cold, but these ducks on Lake Michigan were right at home last week. What may have made the near zero temperatures bearable for these creatures could have been that the water was warmer than the air, creating a low fog over the lake.

Committee working on historic district for city

"It is something that is going to take time," Heath said.

It is also something that is going to take money to get going, Heath said the group will need a small budget to pay for some of the fees associated with getting a historic district up and running. He said he did not know exactly how much money the group would need at this time.

Heath added the committee is completely volunteer, so no one on the committee will be benefiting financially.

"Between the historical society and the city, we would want to minimize costs," he said.

Council member Shirley Gihson said she was happy with the work the group has done so far and suggested giving it a budget of $5,000.

"This is something that is needed in Charlevoix. It is too bad we did not start his 30 years ago," she said.

City Manager Mike Wiesner said it would be no problem for the city to set aside $5,000 in its budget for the group.

Council members voted unanimously to abolish the original group and create a standing committee that will work on making the Depot a historic district.

While the idea of creating historical districts was entertained in the past, it was brought to the forefront of community members' minds after citizens began showing concern about Earl Young's old office building being demolished in the summer of 2003.

Therefore an adhoc committee was formed to look into the matter, which led to the creation of the standing committee and plans to make the Depot Museum the city's first historical district.

The advantage of a historical district for a city is it puts code, procedure and policy in place at the time when historical buildings are sold so their protection would be guaranteed.

Work starts on library

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Demolition on the old middle school has begun in order to pave the way for construction of the new library.

Valerie Meyerson, director of Charlevoix Public Library, said everything is going great.

On Jan. 24, Pitsch Companies came to Charlevoix in order to complete interior demolition and that of the 1957 addition to the old middle school.

In a statement released by Meyerson, the old middle school will become a two-floor facility. However, Meyerson said the process will look bad before it begins to look good.

Duane Wixson, construction manager with Clark Construction, said in the statement that he is concerned the citizens of Charlevoix would be worried about what was going on at the middle school site.

He said in the statement that the community just needs to be patient as a secure plan is in place to transform the building from the old middle school into the new library.

Meyerson said construction documentation is in its final stages and will go out for bids at the beginning of April. The actual construction is set to begin in May and is slated to end 14 months later.

A fall 2006 opening is still scheduled.

Commission recommends cap

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

"I was happy that it passed," she said. "It's a step in the right direction."

Along with Rajewski, commissioners John Dixon and Stanley Martin also supported the recommendation as presented while Dave Christiansen and John Haggard voted against it.

The proposed amendments to the zoning ordinance includes limiting the size of large buildings to 90,000 square feet, which Rajewski said in a previous interview was the size most people could live with.

During a previous meeting, the commission voted for a cap size of 80,000 square feet. The vote resulted in a tie with Rajewski and Dixon supporting the size and Martin and Christiansen voting against it, which led to the compromise of 90,000 square feet.

The proposed amendments to the zoning ordinance also include changing the size of large buildings from 2,000 to 20,000 square feet. This change will require a special use permit.

Another proposed amendment includes requiring any project that is 50,000 square feet to have a market feasibility study, traffic study and adaptability for reuse plan submitted with their application to build.

Builders will also be required to adhere to keeping their building in line with the look of the community. Haggard said he was not in favor of the proposal as it stood.

"If we put restrictions on one zone class, I like to have them for all," he said.

By restricting all zoning classes, Haggard said it shows that the township isn't picking on one particular class such as commercial, residential and industrial.

He also said the recommendation to require a special use permit for an area over 20,000 square feet was too restrictive for a commercial district.

Haggard said it's hard to restrict now since no one knows who's going to build.

Marina, park amendments to go before public hearing

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

At a special meeting Jan. 24, the Charlevoix City Council voted to go forward with public hearings on two proposed amendments to the Downtown Development Authority's project plan regarding the marina and park projects.

"I imagine there will be pros and cons on all sides when it comes to a public hearing," Charlevoix Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson said. "All we are doing is voting on giving people the chance to come and speak."

At issue were two amendments to the project list of the Downtown Development Authority called "amendment four" and "amendment five." Both of them dealt with the construction of the marina project and portions of East Park, but only amendment five included the much debated East Park hand shell. The reason for these two amendments is due to a possible petition on plans to tear down the current band shell in East Park that may lead to a referendum.

According to Carlson, the city is afraid if it passes just one amendment to the DDA's project plan that includes the marina, East Park and the construction of a new band shell, citizens who are against the tearing down of the current band shell will start a petition to overturn that amendment. Carlson said this could put financing for the project from the state Waterways Commission in jeopardy — the Waterway's Commission has pledged to pay for 75 percent of the total project.

Therefore, the city has designed and will be hearing from the public on two proposed amendments to the DDA's plan, with the first — or as it is called in the overall plan "fourth" — specifically excluding the band shell.

It is hoped, if a petition is started over the band shell idea, it will be over the proposed amendment with the band shell included. This way, if the petitioners are successful and the amendment with the bandshell goes to referendum, the DDA still has another amendment with the marina project in its project plan, thus safeguarding its funding from the Waterways Commission.

Jill Picha, a Charlevoix resident who has expressed interest in starting a petition over the band shell proposal, said she will be interested in the amendment with the band shell in it.

Picha has not started a petition on the project yet, because council must first approve these two amendments to the DDA plan. A petition and referendum can only be brought forward on ordinances or amendments passed by city council.

"I can't do anything until council votes," she said.

Picha said she was also concerned with a decision to include a proposed ice rink in both the amendments. In addition to her opposition with a new band shell, Picha is also opposed to the construction of an ice rink in East Park.

Picha said due to the proximity of Round Lake, the rink will not be safe for children. She added she does not think it will get much use and said the current city rink — located by the Charlevoix Middle School — gets very little use during the winter.

The marina and East Park project must be amended into the DDA's project plan in order to receiving funding from the DDA. While the Waterways Commission is paying for 75 percent of the total project, which is estimated to be around $6 million, the DDA will be paying for the rest.

A motion to send the amendments to public hearing on March 7 was passed unanimously by the council. Council member Bill Bellows was the only member absent.

OPINIONS

Business owners should decide on smoking issue

EDITORIAL

Charlevoix County will soon be considering a ban on smoking in private businesses that was proposed by the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency.

This ban is admirable in its concept. The regulation is designed to help save the lives of non-smokers who are confronted with second-hand smoke.

Gerald Chase, health officer with Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, said statistics show that 26 to 27 people die each year in the Charlevoix, Otsego, Emmet and Antrim counties due to the effects of second-hand smoke.

Chase said only Otsego County has approved the regulation and meetings with Emmet, Antrim and Charlevoix counties are in the works. Each county has the right to choose not to participate in the regulation.

Public transportation, service lines, retail stores, public places used by the general public, galleries, libraries, museums, theaters, cinemas, sports arenas, convention halls, both public and private meeting facilities and school buildings would have to ban smoking in their facilities. Hospitals, professional offices, motels, hotels and places where bingo is played will also have to comply.

Restaurants, bars, casinos and tobacco specialty stores will not have to adhere to the ban.

While this ban is admirable for what it is trying to do — keep people healthy — it is concerning when a government body starts telling a private business owner if they can have smoking in their place of business or not. This is an issue that should be left up to the private business owner.

If the business owner wants to pollute the air inside their business with cigarette smoke, thus causing said business owner to possibly lose customers and good employees who want to keep their lungs cancer-free, then that is their choice. The same goes for the business owner's employees; if they want to work in that environment or move on to a smoke-free workplace that is their choice.

We don't need a government regulation to tell us what to do on this issue.

Charlevoix's band shell needs to be renovated

Edith Gilbert
'Behind the news'

Before you sign any petitions in the second ward please remember that nothing lasts forever.

Not the old Carnegie Library or even the lobby for the Charlevoix Hospital that my husband donated. After recent hospital remodeling — poof — no more lobby!

Yes, I know that the present band shell was built in 1992 from funds raised by local supporters of beloved Clarence Odmark. It was a big improvement over the old bandstand in East Park adjacent to the former Neff's Grocery Store.

But since the removal of that corner building, the present location is less than ideal. True, it is bigger than the old bandstand and has a roof to help improve acoustics as well as a ramp leading to storage for musical instruments. Still, it was not all we had hoped for!

The present hand shell is not big enough to host theatrical or dance performances. It has no dressing rooms or bathroom facilities for performers. Better lighting is now available, and there are special considerations that need to be addressed when choosing a location for a hand pavilion — musicians should not be facing into the sun, prevailing winds need to be considered as well as traffic noise from Bridge Street.

I asked band director Gary Stutzman, who started his musical career in the seventh grade under Clarence Odmark and has led his Northwest Academy School band to first division in state competitions, "What are your requirements for a band pavilion?" And he says, "Think Hollywood Bowl! The acoustical ideal is shaped like the inside of an egg that projects the sound forward without obstruction. A good example is the band pavilion on Mackinac Island."

Gary is unhappy with the poor acoustics at the current facility that has the fish pond blocking the audience from the band and the overhead support beams that hang from the ceiling. These two items cause the sound on the stage to swirl around and bounce rather than be projected out into the audience. Stutzman has met with the design firm, Pollack and Associates, to discuss options and together they agree that placing the new larger hand pavilion facing north at lake level on the south end of East Park near Antrim Street, would give very convenient access to the performers and their instruments.

The plan is for the new location to be rededicated to Clarence Odmark and all the past and present contributors would be listed by name.

For all these sound reasons, it's time to move forward and support the efforts of qualified people like Gary Stutzman and Pollack and Associates in their thoughtful decision making. The new location of the Clarence Odmark Pavilion will become a major attraction on the shores of scenic Round Lake.

Don't zone out Wal-Mart

I have been a Charlevoix Township resident for 56 years, including 37 as a tax-paying business and property owner. Thus, I protest and ask the Charlevoix Township Board to not approve the proposed Charlevoix Township Zoning amendments for the following reasons (I have given the Charlevoix Township Planning Commission more reasons but had to edit them down to four for brevity):

1) I think any observer can see the proposed amendments rig the rules against new "big box" stores, large and small developers, private commercial property owners and consumers who want and need the advantages of "big box" stores. The amendments also rig the rules favorably for special interest approved by the planners.

2) "Parking lots shall be located to the rear and side of buildings..." I don't think older shoppers will like having to park this way. I think most shoppers like parking in front of stores, the closer the better, as demonstrated by common usage.

3) It may be appropriate for township supervisors to say where a commercial business may be located, but it is highly inappropriate to say who can do business there by carefully crafting ordinance amendments that deny new "big box" stores the best tools of their trades, such as economies of volume and efficiency through the use of buildings greater than 90,000 square feet. One of the planners has stated the size limit is an arbitrary figure. I think it is wrong for township and city governments to attempt the regulation of commerce, at the expense of free enterprise, through the use of their police powers and zoning laws. I am suggesting this is what the planners are attempting. I am suggesting this because it is my heartfelt opinion.

4) The planners, no doubt, are comfortable they meet the provisions of the fifth and fourteenth amendments as to taking of private property for public use without just compensation. But what about the fourteenth amendment where it states, "No state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States." I do know the proposed amendments will take away my privilege and the privileges of six other commercial property owners.

We wanted, and had the right, to sell our land to Wal-Mart for their express purpose of building a super-center store of approximately 157,000 square feet. The proposed amendments, if passed, will take away this privilege. Clearly, the Founding Fathers didn't want private property owners forced to pay the cost of socially imposed goals, but rather all taxpayers should bear the burden equally.

Other governmental entities are starting to agree. For example, Oregon voters recently approved State Measure 37, which says governments must pay owners when certain Oregon land use restrictions reduce their property value or forgo enforcing the law. In Florida, the Bert Harris Act of 1995 requires compensation of property owners by local government if its regulatory actions reduce or erase the development potential of a property.

In conclusion, passage of these amendments will most probably lead to lawsuits and further costs for many, including the township. If, in the future, the courts find the township and/or the individual trustees have caused property and/or business owners damage, I feel sure the monetary costs would be substantial for taxpayers and trustees. Commerce Township has purchased approximately 373 acres and is planning its use for schools, libraries, homes, businesses and others.

I think, if Charlevoix Township's Board of Trustees respects our free enterprise system, they will regulate and "keep the small town character and others" by purchasing commercial property at current market prices. Then they can do whatever they want with it.

Postal driving problems

Editor:
Watch out for postal delivery trucks!

On Jan. 4 as I was turning onto Newman Street, I saw a postal delivery truck about three-quarters of the way down the block. As I proceeded down the street, the driver got back in his truck and started driving toward me. He drove right past an area where two vehicles could safely pass and kept right on coming. I did the only thing I could; I pulled as far over to the right as the trees would allow me to and came to a complete stop. As the postal truck started to pass me, the rear of his truck swung to his left, striking my truck on the driver's front.

The driver of the postal truck then put his truck in reverse and backed away. As I got out of my truck to check the damage, the postal truck driver came up to me and started yelling at me, "Why didn't you pull over sooner to let me pass?" There was no place I could have, short of backing all the way down the block. It was as if he felt like this whole incident was my entire fault, even though he had driven right past the only wide spot two vehicles could safely pass.

While the police were there the driver's supervisor showed up. After the officer wrote up his report, the supervisor made him (the driver of the postal truck) back up to the wider place (the one he had driven right past) so that I could now get safely past.

I met with the supervisor later that day to ask what, if anything the post office was going to do about the incident, the damage done and about the driver's attitude. I was told the driver would be talked to, but as far as the damage was concerned, that was my problem and what my insurance was for, even though I was stopped and he hit me. He did tell me if I wanted to pursue this, I could speak with the Postmaster the next day.

I did meet with the Postmaster the next day, only to be told, six days later that there was nothing the post office was going to do, other than maybe a letter in the man's file concerning his attitude, but as far as anything else, (such as my damage, repair and of course my insurance deductible), "Do what you have to do."

All I can say is if you see a postal truck on a street you are going down, it may be to your advantage to seek a different route.

Maybe the new postal slogan should be "Neither rain, snow, sleet, ice and/or other vehicles (even parked) shall deter us from our appointed rounds!"

New band shell needed

Editor:

I am writing this letter in support of the proposed plan for the East Park Band Pavilion, park and boat slips. As the director of the Charlevoix City Band, I was invited to several meetings to discuss the possibilities for East Park and the waterfront. I was accompanied by a representative group of players from the band and my assistant, Evelyn Wujcik. We discussed all the options with the representative from Pollack and Associates and came up with a consensus among us to support removing the existing Odmark Pavilion and moving the performance area to the southern end of the park, near Antrim Street.

When the Odmark Pavilion was built, the Wharfside building was present as was the Parkside building. Since they have been removed, the current band pavilion seems out

USDA having lamb checkoff this month

USDA's Farm Service Agency (FSA) will be conducting a referendum on the Lamb Checkoff Program that started Jan. 31 and continuing through Feb. 28.

The Lamb Checkoff Program is authorized by the Commodity Promotion, Research and Information Act of 1996. The program provides for assessments on the sale of lamb and lamb products.

These proceeds are then used by the sheep industry board to carry out promotion, research, and informational programs designed to increase the demand for lamb products. In order to renew the checkoff program a majority of the eligible voters represented by the referendum must vote for the lamb checkoff to be continued.

To be an eligible participant, farmers must certify and provide documentation, such as a sales receipt or a remittance form that shows they have been engaged in the production, feeding or slaughtering of lambs during the period of Jan. 1, 2004 through Dec. 31, 2004. Eligible persons may obtain form LS-86 to vote in the referendum from county FSA offices either in person, by mail, or by facsimile. Forms may also be obtained via the Internet at <http://www.ams.usda.gov/lsg/nipb/rp-lamb.htm>. Referendum form LS-86, and accompanying documentation returned in person or by facsimile, must be received in the appropriate FSA office prior to the close of business Feb. 28, 2005. Mailed returns must be postmarked no later than midnight Feb. 28, 2005, and received in the FSA office by March 7, 2005.

The lamb checkoff referendum is mandated by the 1996 Act, and requires the Secretary of Agriculture to conduct a referendum within three years after the assessments first begin under the order.

The lamb checkoff assessments recently began July 1, 2002. The Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) is in charge of the day to day activities associated with this checkoff program. The Farm Service Agency's county office network is facilitating the voting process for the lamb checkoff referendum.

FSA is glad to be of assistance to AMS in this effort to poll lamb producers about the continuation of the current lam checkoff program.

Middle school class, Montessori raising money

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Charlevoix Middle School and Charlevoix Children's House Montessori School are both putting an effort into helping the victims of the tsunami in South-east Asia.

Mark Drenth, a seventh grade social studies teacher at Charlevoix Middle School, and Doug Drenth, an eighth grade social studies teacher at Charlevoix Middle School, united to create a competitive drive to raise funds to be sent overseas to help in the relief effort.

Mark Drenth said the idea originated between the two classes and then became a project the entire seventh and eighth grade participated in.

The two grades raised $1,530.40 in just four days, which will be divided equally between Mercy Corps and the American Red Cross.

Drenth said the money given to the American Red Cross will be given to the International Red Cross without any administrative costs.

"It kind of just showed the heart of our middle school kids and their parents," he said. "It was just amazing."

The students, their parents and several staff members pitched in spare change and raised enough money to either feed 1,491 people, or give 15 families cooking supplies and bedding, or give 22 families temporary shelter or provide two water tanks to store clean, safe water in twenty devastated communities.

The total amount raised equals about $7.10 per person. The idea started back in December when Drenth brought in a Power Point slide show depicting the devastation in Southeast Asia.

He said one student brought in some change the next day and then the grades decided to challenge each other to see who could raise the most money toward the $1,000 goal.

"They just saw a need and the kids came," he said of the student participation.

Drenth became involved in international relief between the end of September and October 2005 when he went to South Africa on a mission trip.

During the trip he helped plant gardens along with 22 other people from North America as a part of the Never Ending Gardens Dream for Africa.

The desire to help the tsunami victims was passed by word of mouth and the students were promised a good show in the end if they reached the $1,000 goal.

Drenth said he promised them he would sing the "birdie song," which is something he did at the beginning of the year to introduce himself. He also had cookies for the students to celebrate in their achievement.

Charlevoix Children's House Montessori School is also helping raise funds by having students collect change in heart shaped containers.

The students will take their hearts to local businesses and will collect donations until Feb. 14.

Holly Anderson-Fuchs, who is heading up the fund-raiser, said that 100 percent of the money will be donated to UNICEF where it will go toward families and children in need.

UNICEF was chosen, Anderson-Fuchs said, because it is a children's based charity.

Fuchs said that there hasn't been any response from the Indonesian Montessori Schools when attempted contacts were made.

Aside from raising money, the children will also be making cards that will be sent to the Indonesian children. The cards will be written in the native Indonesian Bahasa.

Donations are accepted and checks can be made out directly to UNICEF.

For more information call Anderson-Fuchs at 237-0015.

Obituaries

Robert E. Kelley: Dec. 16, 1920 - Jan. 29, 2005

Robert E. Kelley, 84, of Charlevoix, died Saturday, Jan. 29, 2005, at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

A funeral service was Tuesday, Feb. 1, at the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Todd Thompson officiated and burial was in Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Robert E. Kelley

Bob was born Dec. 16, 1920, in Elk Horn, Wis., the son of Glenn and Ethel (Mills) Kelley.

In 1938, he graduated from Harlem High School in Rockford, Ill. Bob married the former Dorothea Taylor in Charlevoix on Sept. 23, 1944. During World War II, he served in the U.S. Coast Guard stateside, and with the Landing Craft Infantry during the Normandy Invasion.

He was honorably discharged in 1946. Bob worked on the construction of the Charlevoix drawbridge, and then moved to Bay City. He worked for the New York Central Railroad and retired from Amtrak after 35 years.

In 1983, the Kelleys returned to Charlevoix. Bob was an avid gardener, and for many years supervised the wedding of Charlevoix petunias. He was a member of the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix. He was past Master of Charlevoix Lodge 282, F&AM where Bob was secretary of the lodge, and of the Masonic Building Association.

He was also a member of the Consistory, and life member of the Commandry in Bay City. Bob was past Patron of Temple Chapter 125 of Bay City; and past Patron of Charlevoix Chapter 72, Order of the Eastern Star.

He was grand committeeman of the OES, and Dad advisor for De-MoLay of Bay City. Bob was involved in the reading program at the Charlevoix Elementary School. He was a member of the American Legion Leslie T. Shapton Post 226, and VFW Post 1153 in Charlevoix.

Bob was a member of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and was a third generation railroad man.

He is survived by his wife, Dorothea; son, Kim; grandson, Justin, all of Charlevoix; grandchildren, Melissa and Sean of Bay City; sisters, Vyvyan Kelley, and Maralyn Russell of Rockford, Ill.; sisters-in-law, Virginia Gebeau, and Elaine Martin of Charlevoix and their families.

Memorial contributions may be made to the United Methodist Church of Charlevoix, or to the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Leola Mae Henley Beacham: Dec. 24, 1919 - Jan. 26, 2005

Leola Mae Henley Beacham passed away peacefully on Jan. 26, 2005 at Borgess Hospital.

She was born in Phelps on Christmas Eve, 1919 and grew up in the Charlevoix area. She was united in marriage to James Robert Beacham, Feb. 16, 1946.

She was preceded in death by her husband James Beacham; her father and mother, Nellie and Walter Henley; and her brothers and their wives; Jack (Sylvia), Pete (Lena), Walter (Jean) and Bruce (Lil) Henley.

She is survived by her daughter Dr. Judith Kolva of Naples, Florida; step-son Chuck (Reba) Beacham, her granddaughter Erin Hoffmann, step-granddaughter Shari Eckhart, step-grandsons, Chuck (Robin) and Joe Beacham and many nieces and nephews, other family members and friends who loved her dearly.

Lea was a member of Lutheran Church of the Savior, where she actively helped to build community. She retired from Westside Medical Clinic where she worked as a medical office assistant and made many dear friends.

Her life was a living example of the power of love. She was open and loving to all she met thinking of others before herself, even in her illness.

A memorial service was on Saturday, Jan. 29, at 11 a.m. at the Lutheran Church of the Savior. In lieu of flowers please consider memorials to the church. Arrangements by Williams-Gores Funeral Home, Delton.

Marina, park funding still promised from Waterways

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

According to the Michigan Waterways Commission, Charlevoix will have 75 percent of the marina and East Park project paid for.

Vicki Anthes, chief of the planning section of the parks and recreation division of the Department of Natural Resources, said the commission already has $1 million set aside for the project in the 2005 capital outlay budget. The balance of the total $6,070,739 grant will be in the 2006 budget.

"It is allocated. Charlevoix is getting it," she said.

However, the budget still must be passed by the state legislature and the governor before Charlevoix receives its first check. But, Anthes is not worried.

"I feel fairly certain that it will happen. There has never been one that hasn't passed," she said.

There has been some concern expressed at Charlevoix City Council meetings by various citizens that Charlevoix might not get the money due to tight state budgets.

One of those concerned about the budget is council member Shirley Gibson. Upon hearing that the commission still plans on paying for 75 percent of the marina and East Park project, she said it does not alleviate her fears.

"The state is in a huge budget shortfall. The governor could take that money and use it for other purposes," she said.

Such a scenario has happened in the past. Before former Governor John Engler left office, he raided the Waterways Commission budget to help pay for other state projects. Some fear the Governor Jennifer Granholm will do the same thing.

But, Anthes said this scenario is unlikely and said there has been no indication that will happen this time.

Her feelings were shared by Waterways Commissioner and Charlevoix resident John Winn. Winn said Engler got a lot of bad press when he raided the fund before leaving office.

"I don't think they want to fight that battle again," he said.

Winn did say a bill is currently in the state house that would make it impossible for the state to grab funds from restricted budgets like the Waterways Commission. The Waterways Commission's funding comes from a tax on boat registrations, among others.

In addition to concerns that the money will not be available from the Waterways Commission when the city needs it for the marina and East Park project, there have also been concerns expressed that the cost of the project will be higher than estimated and the Waterways Commission will not give more money to address it.

In response, Winn said, "It always comes in higher. Those (projected costs) were 2002 and 2003 numbers. We are accustomed to that."

Winn said the Waterways Commission will deal with it. He added the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority, will also have to deal with higher costs by kicking in more funding as well. The DDA is expected to pay for the remaining 25 percent of the project's cost.

Anthes also said the Waterways Commission will deal with this problem when it comes. However, she said the approved budget for Charlevoix from the Waterways Commission is very specific.

"We would have to see what we could do with whatever funds are available," she said.

Gibson said she is still concerned the city will be left "holding the bag."

She said, "It is not a done deal until we have the money in the bank."

Dance Club forms at Charlevoix High School

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Charlevoix High School has a new club that dances to its own beat.

The Charlevoix High School Dance Club is comprised of six students who share a love for dance and aren't afraid to let their creative sides shine.

On Jan. 27, the club performed for the first time in front of the school during a pep assembly and all the members enjoyed the rush. The group formed in Nov. 2004, when Krystal Comber, 17, took charge and created the Dance Club after moving here from Gaylord.

The other members are Holly Fisher, Michelle Lemond, Andrew Leusink, Anam Minhas and Elena Strong.

Jill Tabaczka, a ninth- and twelfth grade English teacher at Charlevoix High School, thought the idea was great and agreed to be the faculty advisor after being asked by Comber.

"I was honored that they asked me," she said. "I like to get to know the kids outside the classroom."

She said any club has to have a faculty member who oversees operations who is there if the group needs them. However, all the dance instruction and choreography is given by Comber herself.

"Krystal does a wonderful job sharing her passion with the girls," she said.

Tabaczka said she would like to see more interest in the club by the student body.

"We certainly welcome new dancers at any point," she said.

The club doesn't require extensive knowledge in dance as Comber said the object is to have fun.

"It doesn't matter if you mess up," she said.

Since there aren't any dance studios in Charlevoix, or in close proximity to the city, Comber said the Dance Club is a place students can come and learn to dance.

Comber is a natural, as she leads the team and choreographs all the dances, but hasn't ever been formally trained. She also studies the techniques of Usher and Michael Jackson.

Comber said she likes dance for many reasons, but especially likes choreography.

Hip-hop is Comber's favorite style of dance, but she is also fond of break-dancing.

She also likes tap. In 2003, Comber entered and won a dance competition in Traverse City. With her prize she bought some tap shoes from the sponsoring dance apparel store and has been trying it out.

Performing for others isn't new to Comber as she and her friends have performed dance shows at her grandparents house on Torch Lake for the past six years.

Comber will be graduating at the end of the year and she hopes the rest of the group keeps the club going. She also said she would come back and teach the dances for the next group.

Stupak visits with Charlevoix area seniors

Congressman Bart Stupak met with Charlevoix residents on Jan. 27 at the Charlevoix Senior Center. Earl Muma, director of the senior center, said Stupak has helped pass a bill that will donate $49,000 over a five year period to help the senior center. Stupak came to see what the center was doing with their renovations and also to answer questions from the crowd.

THERE ARE GOOD REASONS WHY

PUBLIC NOTICE

APPEARS IN YOUR NEWSPAPER.

Currently, and historically, it is the responsibility of state and local government to publish public and legal notices here in Michigan's newspapers. This paper you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. And its pages hold your right to know what the government is doing in your community. In fact, it's law.

In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. That is why you have, and read, your newspaper, where public notices are published with accountable circulation and presented to you on these pages in clear black and white.

No more MEAP for Charlevoix students

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP) test will become obsolete in 2007 when a new form of testing will take its place.

John Sturock, superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools, said it is merely suggested that the MEAP will be replaced by the ACT or SAT.

"Legislation has determined that the MEAP will go in a different direction for high school," he said.

He said there are a lot of variables that need to be worked out before a final determination can be made.

The MEAP test, Sturock said, is a test used to measure the core curriculum at schools. He said it was never meant to be used as a benchmark for school districts.

He said more important than what the new test will do for the school as a whole, is what it will improve on a day-to-day basis such as student instruction.

"A lot of things can happen between now and 2007," he said.

Charlevoix High School Principal Gary Grundman, said the current MEAP test will be replaced by what the Michigan Department of Education described as being formatted after a major college testing organization.

It's too early to tell, but the organization could be formatted after the American College Test (ACT) or the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT).

"It's a more relevant exam because it is the test they take for college," he said.

Also, the MEAP test features one drawback, Grundman said, which is that most colleges never look at the writing portion. Thus, the new test will eliminate students from having to take the MEAP and then a college placement exam.

The new Michigan Merit Exam will be formatted after either test, but will include a work readiness and social studies portion, Grundman said.

With the new test, whatever the final format will be, the testing time will be cut. Currently, Grundman said it takes the school 16 hours to administer the MEAP and it will only take eight hours to administer the new test.

Grundman said the time cut also saves the state money since the testing time won't be as long.

"It's better for the kids and our regular curriculum because it will be a limited amount of hours versus what we're doing now," he said.

For the next two years, students will continue to take the MEAP test, but during the 2006 to 2007 school year, things will change.

The junior class will take the new test for the first time in the spring of 2007.

Grundman said the new test will result in curriculum adjustments. For the past 10 years, Grundman said all schools in Michigan have had to make their curriculum incorporate certain guidelines and benchmarks in reading, writing, mathematics and social studies.

These requirements won't go away, but the schools are looking into what may need to be adjusted in the current curriculum to make sure the students are prepared for the new test.

"We'll make sure everything the kids are tested on is in the curriculum," he said.

The MEAP Merit Award program will continue as is, Grundman said, and that what he's heard so far indicates that a merit program will continue once the testing changes.

Historical society to use school floor for Depot

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The Charlevoix Historical Society is going to use historic flooring from the classrooms of the old Charlevoix Middle School to refurbish the floor of the Depot.

Karen Pierce, a Charlevoix Historical Society board member, is spearheading the exchange and said the middle school flooring was chosen as it is made of Maple Tree and was milled in Charlevoix just like the flooring of the Depot.

"We wanted period, historical flooring to replace the floor in the Depot," she said.

The floor of the Depot dates back to June 1892 when it opened and the floor of the old middle school is from 1927, but they're the same type of wood and have a historical base in Charlevoix.

The flooring of the Depot is coming up in some areas, Pierce said, and, in others, is damaged from where freight was moved and stored.

"It's in very poor condition," she said.

One portion of the floor is made up of 40-year-old Maple that the Charlevoix Yacht Club put in to cover the pit where freight cars would dump their load, Pierce said.

The goal is to have the entire floor redone with the 1927 Maple wood from the old middle school so the floor is consistent and historical.

"There will be about a 30 year difference in the wood," she said of the middle school flooring and that of the Depot.

How to get your news into the Courier

If you have a news item you think would be perfect for the Charlevoix Courier, feel free to call 547-6558, e-mail news@charlevoixcourier.com or visit the Courier office located at 112 Mason Street in downtown Charlevoix.

News items include events sponsored by non-profit organizations. Please inform us of your event at least two weeks in advance.

Our coverage area is the city of Charlevoix and its immediately surrounding areas, including Beaver Island.

Because of space limitations in the newspaper, we generally try to avoid publishing "check-handing" pictures or "ribbon-cutting" pictures. However, we will work with your organization to get a picture that reflects the event and is visually interesting to our readers.

Due to time constraints on the staff, we cannot attend every event of which we are notified. If you have a picture of your event, we will gladly consider it for publication. But, please, contact us before your event.

It should be noted, each story and picture is dealt with on its individual merits. Any policies outlined above may be suspended by the editor or general manager of the Charlevoix Courier if necessary.

Candidates for board must file by Feb. 8

Terri Lynn Land, Michigan secretary of state, announced that candidates for local and intermediate school boards in districts that have an election this May must file by 4 p.m. on Feb. 8.

Charlevoix County Clerk Jane Brannon said two candidates from Charlevoix have filed and one candidate from Boyne City. They are incumbents Scott Boss and Barney Way.

Under the state's consolidated election law, local and intermediate school districts that have popular elections must conduct them annually in May or November or in May or November of an odd year as determined by the district.

"The consolidated election law limits the number of elections to four each year, which will make it easier for people to know when and where to vote," Land said, who is also Michigan's chief election officer. "Because this law is new, we are working hard to ensure that candidates, voters and election officials are aware of the changes."

School board candidates must file an affidavit of identity and either a nominating petition or a non-refundable $100 fee to run.

Candidates from school districts with a population of less than 10,000 who choose to submit a petition must gather a minimum of six signatures.

In school districts with populations of 10,000 or more, the minimum requirement is 40 signatures.

The filing must be submitted to the filing official established by the district's election coordinating committee. Parties looking for information on where to file are encouraged to contact their local county clerk.

The deadline for withdrawing is 4 p.m. on Feb. 11.

Other important dates for the May 3 election are 4 p.m. on March 7, which is the filing deadline for community college trustees and district library board candidates for those using the May 3 date. Candidates should check with their county clerks for petition requirements.

Also, April 4 is the last day to register to vote in the May 3 election and 4 p.m. on April 29 is the filing deadline for write-in candidates.

The deadline for applying for an absentee ballot by mail is 2 p.m. on April 30. The deadline for voters to vote an absentee ballot in person is 4 p.m. on May 2.

May 3 is election day and voters that qualify for an emergency absentee ballot may obtain one up to 4 p.m. that day.

Anyone with questions about filing requirements or procedures for obtaining an absentee ballot should contact their county clerk.

Brannon can be contacted by calling 547-7200.

Dental Screening might not take place

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Every year local dentists came together to provide free dental screening for children, but that seems to have ended this year.

The dentists who participated in the observance of National Children's Dental Health Month don't have a district nurse who coordinated the education and preventative dental activities. The school board made the decision to let go of the district nurse, Sue Dixon, and several aides due to budget concerns this year.

Dixon said she doubts the program will happen this year.

"There's no one there to coordinate it," she said.

Dixon said most of the work would have already been done, but the schools have enough to do without adding on that responsibility.

Dixon said the free dental screening program has gone on for at least the past 10 years and this would be the first year it hasn't occurred in a long time.

Paula Stcik, financial coordinator for local dentist Harry Suckert, who participated in the program before, said the office is unaware if the program is or isn't going to happen since no one has contacted them.

Stelk said the dentists do not coordinate the program themselves and that they are usually contacted by Dixon.

The event usually took place at Charlevoix Elementary School, but Principal Richard Swenor said he doesn't know if it will continue.

John Sturock, superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools, said all Michigan schools are in a financial crisis and some cuts were needed.

The first year, Sturock said the cuts didn't affect people, but last year they did and included Dixon and several aides.

The schools have gone without a nurse since the beginning of the year, but Sturock said this isn't abnormal since most schools in the state don't have a nurse.

Since this was a luxury the school had, Sturock said it was one position that was cut in order to keep teachers in the classroom.

"To maintain the integrity of the academic program," he said.

Sturock said the free dental screening and other activities were a program provided for the parents. However, he said the fate of children's teeth is up to their parents and not the school.

Bill Trubilowicz, vice president of the Charlevoix Public School Board, said the decision to release the nurse came down to that position or teachers.

"The main goal is to always maintain the core curriculum and teaching," he said.

Trubilowicz said the board liked having the nurse, but said in some cases it was a luxury.

"It's never simple when you have to cut people," he said.

Larry Levegood, secretary of the school board, said he personally wishes the schools had a nurse that is involved in the students' health.

Levegood said Charlevoix was one of the last districts left that had a nurse and the cut didn't eliminate something that other schools had.

Levegood said he had not heard that there wasn't going to be the free dental screening, which he said is important.

Dennis Halverson, president of the school board, said he also was not made aware if the program wasn't going to happen.

A break from the trail

Commissioners yet to decide on smoking ban

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

A proposed smoking ordinance isn't a hot topic for the Charlevoix County Commissioners.

Charlevoix County Commissioner Shirley J. Roloff said the topic was supposed to be discussed during the Jan. 26 meeting but it wasn't. The regulation may be discussed at the upcoming February meeting, but Roloff said there wasn't much support when it was first discussed.

"I don't think any one of us is much for it," she said.

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is proposing a smoking regulation that aims to help reduce the yearly death toll due to second-hand smoke.

Gerald Chase, health officer with Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, said the regulation came into being after a group came forward and asked to have the process started.

"It has nothing to do with smokers," Chase said.

The regulation is designed to help save the lives of non-smokers who are confronted second-hand.

Chase said statistics show that 26 to 27 people die each year in the Charlevoix, Otsego, Emmet and Antrim county area due to the effects of second-hand smoke.

He said this is more than the average of 17 people in the four-county area who die in traffic accidents each year.

Smokers themselves die at a rate five times that of non-smokers in the area.

"It's hard for me to envision that we know something and don't do anything about it," he said.

Most places in the four counties have filtration systems that recycle the air and do not have special rooms where tobacco smoke cannot reach that of other employees.

Before the regulation can take effect it has to be approved by the board of commissioners for each county.

"To have effect in any one county requires approval of all four," he said.

However, each county has the right to choose not to participate in the regulation.

Chase said only Otsego County has approved the regulation and meetings with Emmet, Antrim and Charlevoix counties are in the works.

The purpose of banning smoking in public and private work places is to protect the public's health and welfare.

The regulation will ban smoking in several places including all enclosed areas of worksites and public places that are owned, rented, leased or otherwise under control of a participating county. This also includes motor vehicles.

Other places where a participating county will ban smoking is restrooms, lobbies, reception areas, hallways and other common areas.

Public transportation, service lines, retail stores, public places used by the general public, galleries, libraries, museums, theaters, cinemas, sports arenas, convention halls, both public and private meeting facilities and school buildings also have to ban smoking on their facilities.

Hospitals, professional offices, motels, hotels and places where bingo is played will also have to comply.

Restaurants, bars, casinos and tobacco specialty stores will not have to adhere to the ban.

"I don't think any one of us is much for it."

Shirley Roloff,
Charlevoix County Commissioner

Any violations to the regulation once put in place will be a warning for the first violation. However, there will be a $50 fine for a second violation, $100 fine for a third violation and a $500 fine for each additional violation within the one year from the first violation.

For more information and to read the entire regulation go to the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency's web site at www.nwhealth.org.

Island teams continue getting wins

By FRANK SOLLE
Island sports writer

Following a pair of wins by both the Beaver Island volleyball and basketball teams at Paradise the weekend of Jan. 22-23, the Islanders returned home for a Friday-Saturday series against Grand Marais last weekend.

While both Island coaches said they expected a battle against the visiting Polar Bears, nothing of the kind developed as the Islanders rolled to four more victories as each team improved to 10-0 overall on the season and to 8-0 in Northern Lights League play.

This coming weekend the Islanders wrap up their home schedule by hosting rival Mackinac Island, a team the Islanders swept in December to open the season.

Island netters too much to handle

The volleyball team collected wins of 25-12, 25-9, 25-16 on Friday, and 25-19, 22-25, 25-10, 25-8 on Saturday. The second game loss on Saturday was only the second slip of the season for the Island girls. In all games played they are now 30-2.

With the return of sophomore Emma Adams to the Islander lineup following an early-season injury, the Islanders were at full-strength for the first time at home. That strength proved to be too much for a younger Grand Marais squad to handle as strong Island serves and a dominant presence at the net were the name of the game.

The Islanders combined to put 83 percent of their serves over the net led by senior Danielle Cary who pounded out 18 aces.

Cary led the Islanders at the net as well, collecting 29 kills. Adams was close behind with 22. Christine McDonough added four.

Senior Emily Gray was tops with 18 assists. Freshmen Leah Cary (16) and Andrea Moore (13) added to the Islander offensive effort.

"I've got no complaints," Islander coach Connie Boyle said following the Friday win. "Everybody did good from the eighth-graders to the seniors. They've been working hard in practice and went out and did what they are supposed to."

Polar Bears sent packing
The Islander basketball team jumped out to a big lead in their Friday game, outscoring Grand Marais 20-6 on their way to an impressive 71-43 victory. Saturday's game saw the Islanders finish in a strong manner, besting the Bears 63-45 behind a 15-3 run over the game's final 4 minutes.

Friday's game was never close as the Islanders put together a 13-2 run in the second quarter that extended their lead to 34-11. The Bears closed to 36-19 at the half, but never got closer than 15 points the rest of the game.

Fourth quarter triples by Jimmy Gillespie, Eric Albin, and Brenden Martin helped bury the Bears.

Junior John Albin led the Islanders with 16 points and 10 rebounds.

Jared Wojan added 15 points with Gillespie and Brett Maudrie each adding 11. John Runberg scored all eight of his points during the crucial first quarter surge, while Eric Albin finished with seven and Martin three.

Saturday saw Grand Marais regroup and put up a closer fight. The first quarter closed in a 10-10 draw before the Islanders opened the second period on a 17-2 run. The first half ended with the home boys leading 27-19.

Behind treys by Maudrie and Wojan at the end of the third quarter the Islanders held a 45-34 margin. But the Bears closed that gap to six points early in the fourth quarter before the Island defense stepped up to shut them down. The Bears went scoreless the final 3:25 of the game while the Islanders scored the final 10 points.

Maudrie led the way with 23 points. Wojan and John Albin each added 12 points and eight rebounds. Gillespie netted nine points with Eric Albin scoring five and scrapping for six rebounds. Runberg scored two.

Coach Mike Myers was pleased with his team's efforts at both ends of the court.

"We had four players in double figures Friday night and that's what a team is all about," he said. "We've been working on shooting drills and it showed."

The Islanders out-rebounded the Bears each night and created almost 50 turnovers over the weekend.

"I just can't say enough about our defense this year," Myers added.

Wrestling team doing well on in road meets

The Charlevoix Varsity wrestling team traveled to Gaylord last weekend to attend the Northern Michigan Champions Tournament.

The team competed better than they ever have before placing sixteenth out of 29 of the top Northern Michigan teams.

Matt Novotny and Shannon Gillespie tied for tenth with a record of 2-2 scoring one pin and one decision.

Jaime Waha also tied for tenth with a 1 and 2 record scoring a victory on an injury default; Jeff Golovich tied for tenth with a 1-2 record scoring a pin.

The day's top wrestler was Jed Daman. Daman placed second at the states largest single one day tournament of the year.

Daman had a record of 3-1 scoring three pins. His only loss was in the Championship match to Whitmore-Prescott's Josh Burthch with a match score of 6-3.

Coach Craig Golovich would like to congratulate all the wrestlers who wrestled in Gaylord. The team wrestled their hearts out and really did well.

Next weekend the team will be traveling to Rudyard on Thursday for a match and then to Houghton Lake on Sunday for their tournament.

Charlevoix Rayder wrestling team traveled to Grayling recently for a meet with Traverse City Saint Francis.

Charlevoix beat St. Francis 54-21.

Wins with pins went to Nick Gotshall, Jed Daman, and Jeff Golovich. Wins by decision went to Drew Klooster, Shannon Gillespie, Jaime Waha, Scott Sladek, Nate Triplehorn and Woody Nitchman.

Against Grayling Charlevoix lost 51-17. Spencer Hankins won with a pin and decisions went to Matt Novotny, Jeff Golovich and Jed Daman.

Lundteigen back into competitive racing

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

After taking time off to raise a family, Charlevoix resident Erik Lundteigen has returned to ski racing with force.

Lundteigen, who has not skied competitively since the early 1990s, qualified for the Master's Nationals in Big Sky, Mont. at the Midwest Qualifier Jan. 22 and 23 in Marquette. The nationals will be in late March, which just happens to be the very time and place that Lundteigen was planning on taking his family on vacation.

"I was really excited about doing a family ski trip. This works right into it," he said.

Lundteigen said he is also excited about skiing in the nationals in Montana.

"You get to compete against everybody from all over the nations. It's good fun too. You get longer runs and skiing on a mountain is just a blast," he said.

He added there is not much pressure at these big ski events either.

"You just see how you do against everyone else," he said.

At the qualifier, Lundteigen, 45, competed in the 45 to 50 age group. He received two first place finishes in the slalom and a second and third place finish in the giant slalom.

Lundteigen, who is the coach of the Charlevoix Middle School ski team, used to be the coach of the Charlevoix High School Varsity team and an active competitor on the slopes. However, he said he stopped taking part in the hard core races since 1996 when he decided to start having kids. On the national level, Lundteigen has not competed since 1991.

In 1991 he won the giant slalom in the Citizen National Race in Colorado and qualified for the Citizen's Team.

Just recently, though, he started getting back on the slopes as a competitor.

"It gets easier as the kids get older," he said. "Plus, skiing is a great family sport."

Lundteigen has two sons, Gunnar and Garrett. His wife is Michele.

He said his family is excited about his win and chance to ski at the nationals.

"They get to see me compete. I think they will enjoy it," he said.

Charlevoix resident and competitive racer Erik Lundteigen (second from the right) poses with some of the other skiers at the qualifying meet in Marquette.

Volleyball team suffers tough loss

By B. JON GOHS
Sports writer

Charlevoix's volleyball losses to Kalkaska last Thursday may have been a disappointment, but with them came a chance for reflection.

"I think they were pretty down about the loss, but I think it's going to light a little fire in them and get them mentally prepared for upcoming games," said coach Liz Grunch.

The Rayders won the first match with a score of 25-23, but lost the remaining three 23-25, 11-25 and 19-25.

According to Grunch, there was no single reason for the poor performance by the Rayders, but passing played a major role in their defeat.

"Everybody pretty much had an off night," she said. "It's difficult to play well when you can't pass."

Players of mention included Betsey Dennis with six kills, 11 digs and two aces, Zita Anderson had 24 assists, Kari Way had 9 kills and 16 digs, Bethany Pearson had three blocks and Teresa Martin had 12 kills, 22 digs, 3 blocks and 100 percent serve-receive for the day.

It was a whole other story come Saturday as Charlevoix hosted their second annual volleyball tournament. And with the home field advantage came a second place victory.

The first game of the day pit Charlevoix against Benzie Central for victories of 25-23, 25-14. They then went on to beat Manton 25-17, 25-18 and Pine River 25-13, 25-20.

All first place teams then played each other to see who would dominate the tourney.

The Rayders beat first place Pellston in their first match up at 25-15, but were unable to make up the 11 point deficit for a score of 25-14.

Charlevoix managed to shake off the loss to Pellston and come through with two wins against Glen Lake at 25-11 and 25-19.

Bracket play was decided by victories over Benzie of 25-23 and 25-14.

Despite a morning of powerful performances by the Rayders, they were unable to take the championship from Pellston with losses of 17-25 and 20-25.

Saturdays players of mention consist of Way with 44 kills, eight aces and 16 digs. Martin had 71 digs, 42 kills, eight aces, seven blocks, Dennis had 28 digs, 88 percent serve receive, 15 aces, 28 kills, Anderson came through with 121 assists and Bethany Pearson made 10 blocks.

Coach Grunch was particularly proud of the girls' first round win against Pellston.

"We played really well the first time we played Pellston. We came out strong and really took them by surprise," she said.

And despite their subsequent loss to the Hornets, Grunch said the overall play was good.

"All those games were pretty tough competition. I think it was nice that we came out second in our own tournament," she said.

Of the six players chosen, Martin and Dennis were named to the all tournament team for their outstanding play.

The girls are now 19-5-4 overall and 6-1 in the conference.

"We are definitely still in contention for winning the conference," Grunch said. "But it depends on how we and the other teams do."

She added, "I think any team is capable of winning. We have a fairly strong conference — it's going to be an interesting last round."

The girls next play at 4:30 p.m. Feb. 3 in Elk Rapids and then 8:30 a.m., Saturday, Feb. 5 in Suttons Bay for the Suttons Bay Invitational.

Official Notice

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX
NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARINGS
REGARDING THE ADOPTION OF PROPOSED ORDINANCES TO AMEND THE DEVELOPMENT AND TAX INCREMENT FINANCING PLAN OF THE CHARLEVOIX DOWNTOWN DEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY

PLEASE TAKE NOTE that the Charlevoix City Council will hold a public hearing on proposed ordinances to amend the Development Plan and Tax Increment Financing Plan of the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority on Monday, March 7, 2005 at 7:00 p.m. in the Charlevoix City Hall Council Chambers located at 210 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan.

The purpose of the public hearings are to consider ordinances which amend Section 1.302 of Chapter 7, Title I of the Charlevoix City Code to amend the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority's Development Plan and Tax Increment Financing Plan. The proposed amendments do not result in the relocation of any families or individuals from the Development Area.

The first public hearing will be to consider the Fourth Amendment, which will extend the duration of the Plan through December 31, 2026 and will add the following items to the DDA's Development Plan:

1. Marina Construction — The project includes obstructions and removals along the bulkhead, shore sheeting the bulkhead, four floating pier systems extending into Round Lake, miscellaneous shopper dock construction on the north and south end of the project, construction of electric, water and sanitary sewer lines to service the docks, and supporting tie backs for shore sheeting. The Marina extends from Antrim Street to a point approximately 200 feet north of the Clinton Street right-of-way along the shores of Round Lake and extends into Round Lake.

2. East Park Construction — The project includes numerous removals in the site area, including a section of the street end to relocate the street, reconstruction of the street area with storm systems, curb and gutter and bituminous paving, numerous walkways with concrete pavement, special pavement and brick pavement, construction of a fish pond, an ice skating infrastructure on or near the Harbormaster's office, site railings, irrigation system, numerous park amenities, such as benches, trash receptacles, etc, site lighting and all other elements normally included in a park system of this type. East Park is between Antrim Street, Clinton Street, Bridge Street and Round Lake in downtown Charlevoix.

3. Harbormaster Building — The Harbormaster building will include facilities to house the Marina staff, amenities for the boaters, public restrooms, and a deck on top of the building for public viewing. The Harbormaster building will be placed at the foot of Clinton Street between the street ending and Round Lake.

4. Storm Sewer Construction — The project includes 48 - 60" diameter pipe in Mason Street and a 24" diameter pipe in Clinton Street, along with associated manholes etc. Storm sewers are proposed in Mason Street from Round Lake to the west side of Bridge Street and in Clinton Street from the Round Lake to approximately one-half way to Bridge Street.

5. Off-Site Parking — The parking lot is proposed with curb and gutter construction, bituminous surface along with appropriate drainage systems and landscaped islands. The parking area is located in the south-east corner of the old Middle School site on Mason Street.

6. Personnel — The Downtown Development Authority (DDA) may hire personnel to promote the retail, economic and business advantages of the downtown area and to perform such other services as are authorized by Act 197 of 1975, as amended (the Act), or as may be specified by the DDA.

7. Financing of Projects and Personnel — Personnel that may be hired by the DDA will be paid out of the general revenue of the DDA which comes from "captured millage" and millage that is specifically assessed for the DDA. The other projects that are described in this amendment will be financed, in whole or in part, by the issuance of bonds as authorized by law. Installation contracts, as authorized by Act 99 of 1993, may also be used. As noted earlier, some projects may be funded in part by state grants as well. Regarding bonding, the DDA's financial consultant and bond counsel will recommend the type of bonds to be issued and terms of such bonds. The preliminary estimate of bonding potential is $6.4 million. Until firm project cost estimates can be obtained, it should be assumed that the total amount of bonds to be issued will be the maximum amount that is authorized by law. It is anticipated that bonds will be issued in 2005. The DDA has successfully issued bonds for past projects. Based on information obtained from the financial consultant regarding the likely "life" of the bonds, it is recommended that the Development and Tax Increment Financing Plan be extended through December 31, 2026.

8. Removal of Existing Band Shell, Fish Pond and Restroom Building; construction of a new pavilion/performance building, with amphitheater seating. This project is specifically excluded from this Fourth Amendment to the Plan. Thus, the DDA shall not undertake this project unless authorized by a later amendment to the Plan.

A second public hearing will be held to consider a Fifth Amendment to the DDA's Development Plan and Tax Increment Financing Plan, which will add the following item:

1. Removal of Existing Band Shell, Fish Pond and Restroom Building; construction of a new pavilion/performance building, with amphitheater seating — The project includes the removal of the current band shell, fish pond and restroom facility. The construction of a new pavilion/performance building, including public restrooms, amphitheater seating for the pavilion.

A copy of the Development and Tax Increment Financing Plan of the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority with maps and copies of the proposed amendments to the plan are available for public inspection, Monday through Friday, at the office of the Charlevoix City Clerk, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan during regular business hours. All aspects of the proposed amendments to the Development and Tax Increment Financing Plan, as well as the entire Plan of the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority will be open for discussion at the public hearing.

The public is invited to attend the public hearings and present its comments on the proposed ordinances. The public may also submit its written comments on the proposed amendments at the public hearings or by sending them to the Charlevoix City Clerk at the above address prior to the public hearings.

Date: January 27, 2005

Rayders win two more close ones

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders won two more close games on the road in the Lake Michigan Conference, coming from behind to beat Elk Rapids, 69-67 and defeating East Jordan, 92-81.

"East Jordan and Elk Rapids both played really well against us," Charlevoix coach Keith Haske said. "It seems like we're getting everyone's best game."

The Rayders, ranked second in the state in Class C by the Associated Press, are a target this season for conference foes but they upped their record to 12-0 overall and 8-0 in the league.

Charlevoix led by as many as seven in the first quarter against Elk Rapids as Ben Bergmann scored seven points and Phil Steen had three blocks and forced many altered shots.

The second quarter was a different story as the Elks outscored the Rayders, 23-16 to take a 33-31 lead at the half. Elk Rapids extended the lead to five at 50-45 late in the third quarter.

Charlevoix responded, however, to retake the lead with six straight points, including a Dustin Dibble layup reminiscent of a wide receiver's fly pattern and pass catch and a lay-in by Steen, who jumped from under the basket on one side and laid the ball off the glass up and under on the other.

The Elks led 52-51 headed into the fourth quarter. There were three ties and three lead changes in the fourth quarter. Charlevoix took charge on a Matt Kautz three-pointer with 1:40 remaining that broke a 63-63 deadlock.

Kautz made a free throw and Jared Hunt sunk two to up the margin to 69-65 with 32 seconds to play. The Elks scored once but missed a three-pointer at the buzzer to come up just short.

"It was another great game," Haske said. "I was disappointed in our defensive effort at times. We gave them too many easy baskets but anytime you go on the road and win a tough one, that's good to see."

Hunt led the Rayders with 20 points, six assists and three steals. Bergmann scored 18 points and had six rebounds. Cody Crain had 10 points.

Steen grabbed seven rebounds and blocked five shots. Kautz had seven rebounds.

East Jordan was a pesky lot on their home court as they battled back from a 16 point second quarter deficit at 46-30 to close to within 47-41 at the half. The Rayders had led 26-17 in a high scoring first stanza.

Charlevoix led 52-45 when Steen left the game with his fourth personal foul early in the second half. Moments later with a 56-49 lead, the Rayders lost their leader, Hunt, as he left the game with an ankle injury.

The Red Devils quickly took advantage of Charlevoix's adversity and cut the lead to 58-56. Eddie Waldron responded with a three-point play, another basket and a steal and assist to Jake Teuscher who scored as time expired in the period with the Rayders leading 67-61.

Midway through the fourth quarter, East Jordan trailed 79-71 following baskets by Dibble and Bergmann. The Red Devils wouldn't give in, however, and cut the lead to 81-79 with 2 minutes to go.

Charlevoix outscored East Jordan, 11-2 the rest of the way to seal the win with most of the damage coming from the free throw line. Bergmann was four-of-four while Kautz and Dibble each were two-of-two down the stretch.

Waldron led all scorers with 31 points. He also pulled down seven rebounds. Kautz had 17 points, six rebounds, six assists and five steals.

Hunt finished with 17 points and five assists. Bergmann had 12 points.

"I was pleased with how we hung in after Jared Hunt got hurt," Haske said. "Waldron and Kautz really stepped up big and Bergmann played well in the fourth quarter and made some big plays going to the basket."

On Hunt's injury, Haske said it is a pretty swollen sprained ankle. He estimates that Hunt will miss a couple of weeks but "you never know, (Hunt's) pretty resilient."

The Rayders hosted Glen Lake on Tuesday, Feb. 1 and will host Harbor Springs on Friday, Feb. 4 before traveling to Grayling on Tuesday, Feb. 8.

Total minimum deposit of $1,000 required to open the account; obtain the special introductory rate for the 180-day period. However, there is no minimum balance requirement to maintain the special introductory rate for the 180 day period. Offer available for new customers only, and funds from existing Huntington accounts cannot be used to open the new account. The Annual Percentage Yield (APY) is based on a 365-day year, and assumes that the special introductory rate is in effect for the first 180 days, and that the regular interest rate is effective for the remaining 185 days. The 180-day introductory rate for an initial deposit of $1,000 is 3.00%, and the regular interest rate is currently 4.05% (1.71% APY). The 90-day introductory rate for an initial deposit of $10,000 or more is 3.00%, and the regular interest rate is currently 4.05% (1.71% APY). The 180-day introductory rate for an initial deposit of $25,000 or more is 3.00%, and the regular interest rate is currently 4.05% (1.71% APY). The portion of the balance above $25,000 will earn the introductory rate special. The 180-day introductory rate for an initial deposit between $10,000 and $25,000 is 3.00% on the portion of the balance that is under $10,000, and the regular interest rate is 1.00% on that portion of the balance as well as $25,000 or more. The 180-day introductory rate and APY's are current as of 1/23/20. Balance of $10,399.99 earns a variable rate interest which, subject to change without notice. For balances of $10,000 and up, we use the Money Fund Report All Yearlong Average Daily Simple yield published by MoneyNet, Inc. and other market factors to assist in determining the regular interest rate. The regular interest rate may change after the account is opened. Interest is compounded and paid monthly. Funds could reduce earnings on the account. Township to vote on building cap ordinance ing to be there in the future.

Dixon made the motion to approve the amendments as proposed and said he supports all the aspects involved.

Martin said he agreed with the proposal, which is why he voted to support it.

Charlevoix Township resident Al Wojan said he thinks the entire zoning ordinance amendment is unnecessary.

Wojan, who has lived in the township for 56 years and spent 37 years as a business and property owner, said the zoning ordinances currently in place control things.

Wojan, who owned some land Wal-Mart was looking at when considering coming to Charlevoix, said by restricting the right to have big box stores come into the township the proposed ordinance infringes on the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution.

The 14th Amendment states in Section One, "All persons born or naturalized in the United States and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws."

Wojan said he and six other commercial property owners had the right to sell their property to Wal-Mart, even though the store wanted to build approximately a 157,000 square foot super-center store.

Wojan said the backlash of passing these amendments to the township zoning ordinance could lead to future lawsuits and costs for the township.

If the amendments pass, Wojan said he will start a referendum.

But, Charlevoix resident John Winn has property in Charlevoix Township and said he is supportive of the recommendations to the zoning ordinance.

"I'm in support of doing something to maintain the small town charm," he said.

Winn said he would have preferred limiting the cap size to 50,000 square feet instead of 90,000 square feet, but a compromise was made.

"I'm glad they did something," he said.

The special use requirement for anything over 20,000 square feet is something Winn also supports.

"I think it's an excellent idea," he said.

Not only will the township board have flexibility, Winn said, they also have the right to waive the permit if they need to. One example of waiving the permit, Winn said, would be someone building a pole barn off the main highway. In this example a traffic study would not be needed and the board could waive the permit.

"I think it's great," he said.

Bob Hoffman, president of This Is Our Town, said the group has been pushing for some controls on big box stores ever since Wal-Mart tried to come into Charlevoix.

"I think it's a very good start," he said. "It really gives Charlevoix Township the tools to make decisions," he said.

The zoning ordinance itself is the first step to controlling what comes into the township.

"The zoning ordinance is a tool the planning commission can use to keep in line with the master plan of the township," he said.

However, Hoffman said he would have preferred a smaller cap size than 90,000 square feet.

Despite the cap size, he said the township can make informed decisions on whether or not a certain building is appropriate for the area by utilizing market feasibility study, traffic study and adaptability for reuse plan submitted with building applications.

City, society to try for lighthouse

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix's City Council approved a plan to team up with the Charlevoix Historical Society to try and get ownership of the lighthouse near Lake Michigan Beach Monday night.

According to Mary Adams, of the Charlevoix Historical Society, the United States Coast Guard will make the lighthouse available to outside parties on March 1. Interested parties, in this case the city and historical society, must submit a letter of interest to the Coast Guard within 60 days of March 1.

"I think it will be a good partnership," Adams said about the city and society teaming up on this matter.

Adams said the Coast Guard seems to prefer to give the lighthouses to local government agencies or nonprofits when the lighthouses are available.

She said in the partnership, the city will be taking control of the lighthouse — if approved by the Coast Guard — and the historical society will lease it from the city to restore the lighthouse to its former grandeur.

The historical society will be writing several grants to raise money for the restoration. The partnership between the city and society should also give the society an advantage with some of the grants it will be vying for, Adams said.

Adams said a survey of the lighthouse structure indicated it would need about $161,800 in

City hopes to convince insurance to pay

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix City Manager Mike Wiesner and City Attorney Jim Young are hoping a letter supporting the city's position on a mistakenly written check will convince the city's insurance company to pay up.

At Monday night's city council meeting, Wiesner said he and Young received a letter from the law firm Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone, PLC saying the city is right in asking its insurance company to cover costs from a mistakenly written check. He said he and Young will be drafting a letter to send to the city's insurance company and, hopefully, it will be convinced to pay for the mistake or get ready to head to court.

"An opinion from Miller Canfield that is supporting what we already had told the insurance company seemed to me it would carry much more weight with the insurance company," Young said.

Miller Canfield has worked with the city's insurance company, MML, in the past on various matters. The city has said it will take the matter to court if necessary.

This issue started when a check for over $220,000 was mistakenly written to contractor CCMS who the city hired to work on some roads. However, the city was supposed to write the check to the contractor's insurance company United Fire and Casualty — who was going to pay the people hired by CCMS for those road projects.

According to a report breaking down what happened that was given to city council Monday night, the mistake all comes down to communication problems within city hall.

Charlevoix City Treasurer Rick Brandt, who was on vacation at the time the check was sent out, was not aware that United Fire was to be paid for the road work instead of CCMS. A letter from United Fire

Women running to raise money for cancer group

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Three 1998 Charlevoix High School graduates are doing what they can to help save lives by raising money for the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society.

Staci Borths, Monica Conlan and Tricia Kelly will all run 13.2 miles in a half marathon on May 1 in Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada.

They have to raise $3,200 each and in order to help them, Whitney's of Charlevoix is letting Borths, Conlan and Kelly work in several capacities on Feb. 17. They will be there to meet with people and discuss first hand what the run is all about.

A percentage of that night's profits will go toward the fund-raising efforts of the women and will ultimately benefit the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society.

Paul Andrzejewski, general manager, said the event is a great way to help out local citizens who are involved in a good cause.

Chuck Whitney, owner, said Whitney's of Charlevoix has helped raise money for charities before, but never in this capacity.

"It's a good reason to do something this time of year," he said.

Borths, Conlan and Kelly are all a part of Team in Training, which is a fund-raiser through the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society. The program has been around for 10 years in Michigan and made $3.4 million in revenue in Michigan alone.

Tami Duquette, senior campaign director for the Madison Heights Michigan chapter of the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society, said Team in Training is the largest endurance training program in the world and the fund-raising is what each participant does in return for the training they receive.

Duquette said it's a great program since it allows people to help themselves while doing volunteer work.

Over 90 percent of people who participate in the Team in Training program are beginners.

"There's literally all ability levels," she said.

Some of the people that participate are survivors of blood cancers or those who are currently undergoing treatment. Many participants are running in honor of someone they know who is suffering from cancer.

Duquette said she didn't know anyone with cancer when she started. For those who don't have a personal hero, the Team in Training program selects an honorary hero for those participants to run on behalf of.

"Motivation," Duquette said of having honored heroes. "It's a reason for doing it."

The Team in Training program raised $81 million nationally for the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society and $47 million will go toward research.

The Team in Training helps raise the funds that Duquette said otherwise wouldn't be in such an abundance. From the total amount raised, 75 percent of the funds go toward research and patient services. The other 25 percent goes toward administrative and fundraising costs.

Borths, 25, is looking forward to doing her part in helping find a cure for cancer.

"I just feel it's a really good cause," she said. "So many people are affected by all the blood cancers."

All three women are running for an anonymous hero, but Borths is also running in honor of Keely Smith. Smith is the daughter of Robert "Smitty" and Rose Smith. Borths said the girl died when she was 13 years old of a blood cancer.

"This is something that we've taken on that is really important to us," she said. "To cross the finish line and to know our hard work and fund-raising is possibly going to make a difference."

Conlan, 24, is also running for an honored hero who is affected by Lymphoma.

"It's a big motivation," she said. "Most people know someone affected."

Conlan said the training is intense, but worthwhile since Leukemia is the biggest killer of children under 15 years of age and men and women under 35 years of age.

"It's a good way to reach out to people and support a good cause," she said.

Conlan is looking forward to helping out at Whitney's of Charlevoix because it's a good way to get the community involved in something worthwhile.

Kelly, 25, is running for someone special to her who has been affected by cancer and for others who are affected.

"You feel so helpless," she said.

However, Kelly said undergoing the athletic training through Team in Training is a way to be proactive about helping find a cure for blood cancers.

years and also ran track, but running a great distance was never something she liked.

"You're doing it for the cause and not for yourself and that takes the pain away," she said.

Running has become more enjoyable for her since she is not just running for herself.

Kelly said she is looking forward to crossing the finish line and knowing that she was able to train hard enough to finish something she never thought she could.

Donations are accepted and checks can be made out to the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society and mailed to Team in Training, P.O. Box 163, Charlevoix, MI, 49720.

OPINIONS

Social Security 'fix' does nothing to help

Jeremy McBain
'Just a thought'

One of the things I have learned over the last four years of the Bush administration is that when they start talking about solutions to issues, much like the Clinton administration before them, you really need to take what they are saying with a grain of salt.

A case in point is all this yelling about the problems with Social Security. The president is saying that Social Security is facing a crisis, it will be out of money soon and he has the solution to the problem. His solution, let workers use a portion of the money they pay into Social Security to invest in private accounts.

It sounds OK on its face, but knowing that much of what this president has said in the past has only had a smidgen of truth to it — remember those weapons of mass destruction that we never found in Iraq? — I decided it would be best if I researched this matter myself.

According to my research, Bush's plan makes absolutely no sense. It will not help "save" Social Security and may actually hurt it. Furthermore, there really is no Social Security crisis. At best there are problems the system will face, but as a whole it is one of the most successful government programs ever put in place.

Let me explain, piece by piece:

First let's look at this whole notion of Social Security in a crisis. According to documents written by the Congressional Budget Office, if nothing is done to the system, Social Security will stop bringing in more revenue than it pays out in the year 2019 — right now it is running at a surplus (yes, a surplus). And, in 2052, Social Security will only be able to pay around 78 percent of a person's scheduled benefits.

Let me say that again, in case you have not taken the journey with me: Social Security, if nothing is done to help it, will be solvent until the year 2052 and even then will still be able to pay around 78 percent of the benefits promised even with a massive influx of baby boomers into the system.

What crisis is the president talking about again? I see a minor problem, not a crisis.

Secondly, let's look at these private investment accounts.

According to the Congressional Budget Office, there are four suggested ways of helping Social Security pay full benefits through the next 100 years. Of those four ways, none of them include allowing workers to invest in the stock market.

One of the ways, suggested by the Congressional Budget Office is to increase the taxes paid into the system by lifting the $90,000 cap on income tax. This alone would help make the system solvent.

As for the investing in the stock market, even the Bush administration is starting to admit that it will do nothing to "save" social security.

In a presentation before Bush's

State of the Union address, reported in several newspapers, including the New York Times, a "Bush administration official" said, "In a long term sense, the personal (private) accounts would have a net neutral effect on the fiscal situation of the Social Security and on the federal government."

In fact, some argue that it will actually hurt the system more. By taking more money out of the system to fund these private accounts, the system will have less to work with. And there is the small fact that not everyone wins in the stock market and they could conceivably get less when they retire.

Third, what will privatization cost? It is estimated that Bush's plan to allow workers to put a portion of the social security money into a private account will add $4.5 trillion to the national debt in the first 20 years of the plan.

Fourth, the numbers used to prop up this plan are misleading. The Congressional Budget Office uses a national economic growth rate of 1.9 percent to come up with the year 2052 that Social Security will have to cut its benefit payments.

This is a very conservative number, so conservative that some economists say the economy, not to mention the stock market would not look so good if we grew at only 1.9 percent every year.

At the same time, according to a column by New York Times columnist Paul Krugman and supported by the numbers in the Congressional Budget Office report, the Bush administration is using a 6.5 percent growth rate of return on the stocks to sell his privatization plan, even while using Social Security numbers of 1.9 percent growth. Talk about spinning the numbers.

Let me point out here that I am not a financial wizard and have never taken a finance class. However, when it is so evident to me that things aren't adding up, then we are being fed some real rotten information.

It all makes me wonder, who is really going to benefit with this plan? Not me, that is for sure.

ate someone, using test scores as an appropriately small part of the decision.

Consider the national debate about abortion. It sounds principled to say that a woman has the right to an abortion, to the control of her own body. It also sounds principled to say that a unique human life begins at the moment of conception and that any medical interruption of pregnancy is equivalent to murder. Both positions are irresponsible because they limit or eliminate the possibility of considering individual circumstances. They are irresponsible because they substitute an absolute formula for the responsible decisions that humans are capable of. Both positions also require that one must maintain that an equally capable, equally moral, equally principled human being is absolutely wrong. It is sometimes worthwhile to ask, "If there is such an imaginable circumstance, then individual responsibility is necessarily involved in making a decision." I once had a colleague, a professor of philosophy, who maintained that the key to moral human behavior was in asking questions rather than providing answers.

Consider freedom and tyranny. Being in favor of freedom and opposed to tyranny sounds principled. Could it possibly be irresponsible? Are there any imaginable circumstances in which the over-diligent pursuit of freedom might be a desirable alternative to whatever preceded it? Is freedom at any cost principled or irresponsible? I don't have that answer, but the questions are worth asking. Patrick Henry is famous for having said, "Give me liberty or give me death." That statement is much easier to make if the liberty or death is someone else's, not your own. Is freedom an absolute good? Is tyranny an absolute evil? Ideology suggest so. But reason suggests that ideology is a poor guide in problem solving.

Principle does not consist in maintaining a position unto death, but in allowing the human capacity for responsibility to emerge; to make it possible to keep on asking questions. Answers may be temporarily satisfying, but asking questions is more important and more responsible. And ideals, held without the possibility of exception or compromise are ultimately irresponsible.

Reasons for petitions

Editor:

I feel it is time to inform the people of Charlevoix the reason that I am thinking very seriously of generating a petition regarding the proposed renovations of East Park. However the more city council meetings and joint city council/Downtown Development Authority meetings I attend; I am not so sure that maybe two petitions are in order; one for the proposed East Park Renovations Project and one for the Marina Renovations and Upgrade Project. The underestimated $12,000,000-plus cost for both projects is a "moving target," as such things as upgrading the storm sewer system and, of all things, an open air artificial ice skating rink are being added to both projects.

I can understand the need for upgrading the storm sewer infrastructure, but I cannot fathom the need for such a costly item as an open air artificial ice skating rink. The purchase, installation and maintenance of the proposed ice skating rink will be another burden on the taxpayers with extremely little justification. As for the storm sewer infrastructure upgrade, these costs should fall under just what the wording says, "infrastructure budget."

The general fund for the city of Charlevoix at this time is very low and when the DDA takes their share of tax dollars from the downtown businesses including the taxed condominiums downtown, I'm afraid that the city of Charlevoix's next move is to raise our taxes. I have brought up this issue at a couple of city council meetings and have felt that our mayor is too quick in denying it.

Mayor Carlson feels my petition could put the financing for the marina project from the State Waterways Commission in jeopardy. The State Waterways Commission has apparently pledged to pay for up to 75 percent of the total project. (I wonder, does this pledge include 75 percent of project cost overruns as well? I hardly think so. Would you pick up the cost for someone else's error?) Additionally I submit the word "pledged" does not mean it is "set in stone," as of this writing. In addition to the seawall and boat docks, under the marina upgrade project, the Harbormaster Building is the only other facility included in the Waterways Commission 75 percent pledge. The proposed harbormaster architect's conceptual plan includes bathrooms, showers and laundry room for the boaters. I do not deny the boaters need these amenities; however a very large lounge room is included in the plan and I'm not really sure why the boaters need that. The remainder of the proposed East Park Renovation Project will be paid for by the DDA. Picture this: the Charlevoix taxpayers are looking at two dubious projects that will be used approximately six weeks a year.

The DDA wants to extend their existence through the year 2025 in order to pay for this project. This means this debt will be passed down to the younger generation of Charlevoix to pay off.

The following is what the DDA is planning on capturing from the various entities for the 2004-2005 budget: City of Charlevoix, $200,153.26; Charlevoix Public Schools, $261,762.33; State of Michigan SET, $84,830.82; Charlevoix County, $105,983; Charlevoix Public Library, $18,213.58; Char-Em ISD, $38,928.86; total, $709,826.87.

The petition(s) that I am planning to generate is to put these project(s) on the ballot and let the people of Charlevoix decide if this is what they want. I feel this is only fair to the people who could very well have their taxes raised as the general fund is quickly running out of money.

New band shell needed

Editor:

As a musician I felt that it was essential that I support the moving of the band shell to a less painful position in the park.

I use the word pain because it is a pain in the eyes for any musician sitting on that stage when the sun is on it's way down. I have often enjoyed a concert in the park and felt bad for those trying to see their music, concentrate on the director and keep their place while their eyes are being burned by the sun.

Those of you who have not had the joy of this experience I challenge you to take your newspaper or book and go outside on a bright winter afternoon when the sun is about 2 hours from setting and sit facing the sun. I promise that you won't last long. You may even find it hard to see the words. This can be said for the musical notes found on a piece of music. The sun in your eyes may get you before the cold does.

If we are all to enjoy the continuation of wonderful performances in the park I would urge you who have a vote to place the band shell in such a way as not to punish and inflict pain on those who are entertaining you. You may not understand lighting issues or acoustics, but certainly you can appreciate this point.

I know that all you might be seeing are dollar signs and empty pockets. That is what some people get joy from. Making others miserable with your shouts of, "Where is the money?" and "You can't change that. It has been there for years."

Charlevoix has spent money on far worse things than a sensible stage.

It has always amazed me how people get so attached to a thing. Take a break people. This is one thing that actually benefits those of us that actually live here. Please don't bring your petition by my house. I will not sign it.

For once, please listen to those who actually perform on this stage. It is a pain in the eyes to play in Charlevoix!

Modern principled behavior may actually be irresponsible

Roger Knutson
'Ear to the ground'

When Harry Truman was president he had a small plaque on his desk which proclaimed, "The buck stops here."

Being an old poker player, Truman clearly understood what that meant. The buck named was a marker placed in front of the next dealer, to indicate his responsibility for the act. It was a sign of responsibility. Many of us are uncomfortable with the uncertainty associated with responsibility and are likely to prefer ready made answers, irrevocable statements of principle.

I would like to suggest that what we have come to think of as principled behavior may instead be irresponsible — our urge for easy answers tends to diminish personal responsibility. We will look at three cases.

Consider employing a standardized test as the key to whether a student should advance or graduate. As a clue to how well an entire school district is working, the use of average test scores might be effective. If scores are consistently dropping or consistently going up, that carries the suggestion that the situation at the school is negative or positive. A standardized test score is a much less worthwhile number for an individual. It measures one day at one time and may be subject to great variation from day to day, even if the whole school's performance stays the same. To pronounce that, "No one with a score of less than so and so can proceed to the next grade" or "No one with less than 75 percent on this exam can graduate," sounds principled, but it irresponsibly fails to take account of an individual's true ability, and allows the decision maker to avoid responsibility by depending on a test score as the sole reason for a decision. Standardized testing certainly has a place in education, but it does not provide an answer to the question of how we should treat an individual. That requires both more information and educators willing to take responsibility for the decision to advance or graduate.

Don't send kids to an 'R' rated movie

Editor:
On Friday, Jan. 28 we attended the movie "Hide and Seek" at Cinema III. This movie is rated R. Rated R is given the meaning "Restricted. Under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian" by the MPA rating board. Given this rating system we assumed that we would be able to view this movie in the company of adults or with teenagers who had guardians who would monitor their behavior. We were wrong, very wrong. There was a large group of middle schoolers in attendance at this movie. Their deplorable behavior, lack of manners and general lack of consideration for others in the theater kept everyone else present from being able to view this movie without numerous distractions.

These included but were not limited to loud laughter, shouting, loud conversations and shrieking. This continued despite adults repeated complaints to the owner and requests to the children to quiet down.

The lack of manners shown by this group of children is completely unacceptable and showed that clearly they were far too immature to be at this movie without supervision.

The theater owner requires written permission for underage viewers to attend rated R movies. Obviously this is not enough. If young teenagers need a baby-sitter to attend a movie with anything resembling basic manners then it is the parents' job to do this, not to dump these rambunctious and ill-mannered kids off for the rest of the adults at the movie to run herd on.

While we realize that the theaters are not obligated to enforce the suggestions of the rating system, we do ask that parents teach their movie-going off-spring the basics of common courtesy.

before the Monday meeting is unfair to the concerned public, who has a right to be notified in a timely fashion. I called the managers' office to inquire about such policies. I was told that the meeting was planned for Monday on that previous Friday afternoon and it only regarded setting up the future date of discussion on the Marina project.

The meeting entailed much more and what a creative way to keep an opinionated public out of the discussions.

If the city planners want support of this project, they should rethink how they practice their politics.

Thank you

Editor:
Camp Quality Michigan had another successful year thanks to many friends and supporters. Our year began with a Teen weekend on Beaver Island followed by a day at Comerica park, summer camp at Camp Dagget and the winter adventure teen ski camp.

We would like to thank everyone that helped to make these events such a huge success. Young Americans, Three Men and a Tenor, Northwest Academy Jazz band, Storytellers Tony Miron and Warren Petoskey, Boyne City Remax, Bill Freehan, Jim Nothrup, Leon Vercysse, DJ Doctor

Joy, Zonta of Charlevoix, Boyne City American Legion, Boyne City Street Legends, Queen for a Day, Sheriff Lasater and the Boyne City Police and Fire Department are just a few of the wonderful guests that we would like to thank for donating their time.

We would also like to thank all of the wonderful people and organizations who have donated their time serving and preparing meals, as well as the doctors and nurses, photographers, all of the staff and companions and anyone else who has donated their time or money to help make Camp Quality a success.

We would also like to extend a special thank you to AAA of Michigan and Avis Ford of Southfield for donating our much needed new van. Thank you all from the bottom of our heart for your generosity so that we may continue to offer free camping experiences and year-round support for children with cancer and their families.

Ebenhoeh retires as Charlevoix Friend of the Court

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

After 28 years and two months of helping families deal with issues such as custody of children as the Charlevoix County Friend of the Court, George L. Ebenhoeh retired from his post Friday, Feb. 4.

Ebenhoeh, 54, said his decision to retire came in response to the further state centralization of the Friend of the Court duties, taking away much of the local control in the office.

"We used to be able to initiate and be responsible. Now we don't have that control, all we can do is react to them. There are so many flaws in the product that is coming out of Lansing it is very frustrating," he said.

Ebenhoeh added, in a written statement, "I will miss the interaction with the professionals I have met and worked with, but look forward to getting back to doing things I have missed because of my job."

He said he will enjoy getting back into hunting, fishing and other outdoor activities that he used to take part in, but has had to cut back in recent years due to increasing hours in the office — which he attributes to more state involvement in the Friend of the Court.

Ebenhoeh was appointed as the Friend of the Court, in January 1977 by Judge Martin Breijner when he was 26 years old. He said he was hired in as the youngest Friend of the Court in the state, but he will be leaving the office with more seniority than anyone of the other 62 Friends of the Court in the state.

He grew up in Indian Town, just east of Saginaw. Indian Town is a small town of about 200 people. After graduating from high school, he worked in a foundry in Saginaw for about two months, before deciding to go to college.

"I thought, 'OK, there is more to life,'" he said.

Ebenhoeh graduated from Saginaw Valley State University with a bachelor's degree in sociology and a minor in economics and business administration when he was 26.

Ebenhoeh came to Charlevoix with his wife soon before being appointed to the Friend of the Court office. He said he used to hunt and fish in the Cheboygan area and his wife, Connie, had friends in the Charlevoix area.

One day, he and his wife stopped in Charlevoix for a visit, and they decided it would be a nice place to live. Soon thereafter, his wife got a job with the Department of Social Services in Charlevoix, so the couple moved to the area and Ebenhoeh got a job with Big Brothers/Big Sisters as a coordinator.

He was in this job for only six months, when he was appointed as the Friend of the Court.

Ebenhoeh said the position appealed to him because it was such a challenge.

"The environment of working in the court system is challenging and rewarding and I liked helping clients in a social work type of situation," he said.

Ebenhoeh said while the Friend of the Court is known for dealing with child support issues between divorced people, it is more about domestic issues.

"We normally are the first ones to come in contact with them that is not biased one way or another. If we can't maintain this impartiality then we are not doing our job," he said.

Ebenhoeh said he envisions the Friend of the Court as trying to help parents make their own decisions about their kids.

"We want to put the responsibility of children back on the parents and keep them out of litigation. Family matters should not be decided by a judge," he said.

Ebenhoeh said the Friend of the Court is very challenging.

"You are not going to please everybody," he said.

However, he said he has received good feedback from many attorneys in the area, as well as the families who have been in his office.

But, he frets about the future of the office now that the state has taken over many of the duties.

"It is a bad situation. It has not been productive for our clients or the state or the county," he said.

In a written statement, Ebenhoeh said, "I am a believer that in most cases increased layers of bureaucracy only lessen the ability of an agency to provide services to their clients. Hopefully at some point there will be a realization that reduced growth of government is not a bad thing."

Ebenhoeh said he is planning on staying in the Charlevoix area.

In a written statement, Ebenhoeh added, "In leaving my office my first thought is to thank Judge (Richard) Pajtas and the Friend of the Court staff who have been so supportive over so many years. The Friend of the Court has dealings with almost every agency in government and most entities in the private sector. Over the years I have developed relationships with so many good people. In addition to Judge Pajtas and the Friend of the Court employees, I would like to give special thanks to Sheriff George Lasater and his staff, Probate Judge Frederick Mulhauser and his staff, County Clerk Jane Brannon and her staff, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, all other county employees, past and present and local school officials, teachers, counselors and their support staff and the local attorneys that have been very supportive and helpful."

In honor of his retirement, Ebenhoeh's staff is planning a coffee and cake reception from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m., today, Wednesday in the Pine Lake Room of the Charlevoix County Building.

Automobile club offers scholarship

The Boyne Country Region Antique Automobile Club of America has announced that two $500 scholarships for the coming year are being offered to high school graduates and seniors entering school for any phase of practice within the automotive field.

Those interested in applying should contact either their school counselor, their automotive high school instructor or by writing to the Boyne Country Region Antique Automobile Club of American Scholarship Committee, P.O. Box 902, Boyne City, MI 49712.

Completed applications for the Boyne Country Region Antique Automobile Club of America's scholarship must be received by March 1, and must include the High School Principal's Report (which may be obtained by Boyne Country Region Antique Automobile Club of America) and a transcript of your high school grades. High school graduates who have entered the work field must complete the application and return it with two letters of reference.

Boyne Country Region Antique Automobile Club of America is for those interested in preservation and restoration of antique, classic and veteran motor cars. The club conducts several tours, meets, and events throughout each year, the largest being the Antique Car Show, Swap Meet, Antique Show, and Flea Market held the second weekend in August, in Boyne City. Those interested in club activities or in becoming a member, may contact by writing to: P.O. Box 902, Boyne City, MI 49712.

How to get your event news into the Charlevoix Courier

If you have a news item you think would be perfect for the Charlevoix Courier, feel free to call 547-6558, e-mail news@charlevoixcourier.com or visit the Courier office located at 112 Mason Street in downtown Charlevoix.

News items include events sponsored by non-profit organizations. Please inform us of your event at least two weeks in advance.

Our coverage area is the city of Charlevoix and its immediately surrounding areas, including Beaver Island.

Because of space limitations in the newspaper, we generally try to avoid publishing "check-handing" pictures or "ribbon-cutting" pictures. However, we will work with your organization to get a picture that reflects the event and is visually interesting to our readers.

Due to time constraints on the staff, we cannot attend every event of which we are notified. If you have a picture of your event, we will gladly consider it for publication. But, please, contact us before your event.

It should be noted, each story and picture is dealt with on its individual merits. Any policies outlined above may be suspended by the editor or general manager of the Charlevoix Courier if necessary.

VFW trying to sort out insurance issues

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The Veteran's of Foreign Wars Post 1153 is still in business and gearing up for the long road to reconstruction.

But, David Goldstick, quarter master for Post 1153, said the post was not fully insured and that they are hurting. However, as soon as things are cleared with the insurance company and the proper permits are received for rebuilding, a new post will be in the works.

"We are rebuilding," he said. "We have not disappeared."

The building that had been the home of Post 1153 since 1953 was lost during a fire that started around 2 a.m. on Dec. 10.

The fire took the Charlevoix Township Fire Department about two hours to get things under control. No one was hurt in the process and no one was inside the building at the time.

Many thought that arson might have been a factor due to the vandalism that occurred during the night between Nov. 18 and Nov. 19 when four rocks were thrown through two different windows.

However, Spl./Sgt. Jerry Briolat of the Fire Investigation Unit of the Michigan Department of State Police said at the time the fire looked to be accidental.

He said in a previous interview that the cause of the fire was undetermined, but one of the highest probabilities was an electrical failure and closed the case as an accidental fire.

The home of the VFW Post 1153 was formally dedicated in 1953 during the 13th District Rally. Before that time, the post and its auxiliary functioned out of the second floor of a building in downtown Charlevoix.

VFW Post 1153 received its charter on June 16, 1937 and has continuously served the community. The building that became the post's home in 1953 took two years to build and was constructed almost entirely by volunteer labor, including the plumbing and wiring.

The only feature that wasn't built by volunteers was the Onaway stone fireplace and other stone work. — the volunteers also didn't dig the well.

A second edition was added in the 1970s followed by a garage addition in the 1990s.

Currently, VFW Post 1153 is accepting donations. Donations can be sent to P.O. Box 753, Charlevoix, MI, 49720.

New officers installed in the Friends of the Library

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library have grown and helped accomplish things for the library and the new officers want to continue doing just that.

President Toni Felter, Vice

President Mary Snider, Secretary Sandy Marquardt and Treasurer Tansley DeWitt are going to keep working toward getting the new building ready and adding some new programs along the way.

Felter, who is replacing Kay Heise as president this year, is looking forward to getting her feet wet and learning the ropes.

"It's a very good group of people to work with," she said.

Felter has lived in Charlevoix for about 34 years and has been involved with Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library for four years. During her time with Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library, Felter was involved with working on the campaign to pass the mileage to support the library.

Her interest in the library came after she retired from the Charlevoix Public Schools and some friends who were involved with the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library approached her.

Felter said it's an exciting time to be involved with the library as the new building is currently undergoing demolition and there's a lot to look forward to.

Felter said this year is going to be a learning experience as she is new to being president, but wants to keep things going

Obituaries

Mary Jane Cooper: July 15, 1916 - Feb. 4, 2005

Mary Jane Cooper, 88, of Petoskey died Friday, Feb. 4, 2005 at Munson Medical Center in Traverse City.

Funeral services were on Tuesday, Feb. 8 at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix. The Father Thomas Neis officiated. Burial was in St. Mary's Cemetery in Charlevoix.

She was born on July 15, 1916 in Toledo, Ohio, the daughter of Thomas and Antonia (Stasa) Kovar. She worked 34 years for Burrough's in Detroit. She retired in 1980 and then moved from Dearborn to Petoskey. She was a member of St. Francis Catholic Church in Petoskey. She was active in the Salvation Army and the Friendship Center of Emmet County.

She is survived by four sisters, Terri Jaskierski of Charlevoix, Bette McConaughy of Traverse City, Agnes Simmerman of Holland and Ann Schwarz of Holland; and several nieces and nephews.

The family will receive friends on Tuesday from 2 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Memorials may be given to Alzheimer's Association, North/West Michigan Chapter; 213 Sheldon Blvd SE, Suite A; Grand Rapids, MI 49503-4513.

Victor Kantola: Feb. 14, 1952 - Feb. 5, 2005

Victor Kantola, 52, passed away Saturday, Feb. 5, 2005 at his home in Marion Township, Charlevoix County, Michigan, with the loving presence of his wife and children.

Victor was born in Grand Haven on Feb. 14, 1952, the son of Alfred and Margaret (McBride) Kantola. Victor grew up in Charlevoix.

He had played basketball and football in high school. He was the captain of his football team. Victor graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1970.

On Feb. 6, 1985 in Stewart, Fla., he married Pamela Gomez. Victor owned and operated Vic Kantola Builders L.T.D. in Charlevoix from 1980 to 2005. Vic was known for his beautiful stonework and was well regarded as a fine craftsman. Victor worked on some of Northern Michigan's finest homes and was uncompromising when it came to his work.

He was a member of the Boyne City United Methodist Church. Victor loved to fish the area lakes for the "elusive walleye." He also loved to fish charters in the Gulf of Mexico.

Victor was a proud father and loving husband. Victor will be greatly missed by his family, his friends and associates.

Victor is survived by his loving wife, Pam; his son, Andy; and his daughter, Maggie. His is also survived by his mother, Margaret; his sister, Carolyn; his brothers, Mark, Jon (Annie), and Steve (Nancy and their son Sam); as well as a large extended family. He was preceded in death by his father, Alfred, in 2001.

A memorial service will be at 11 a.m. on Wednesday, today, Feb. 9 at the Boyne City United Methodist Church. The Rev. Carl Litchfield will officiate.

In lieu of flowers, the Kantola family asks that memorials be directed to the Maggie and Andy Kantola Education Fund. Arrangements by the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Friends of the Library has new officers at its helm

FRIENDS

and keep volunteers and Friends members excited about the library.

Snider was vice president last year and said she chose to keep her spot despite being asked to run for president.

Holding office takes time out of one's life, but Snider said she enjoys doing it.

"I just like to give back to the community," she said. "I think it's important people can do what they can, in a volunteer capacity, to promote and benefit the town."

Snider was born in Charlevoix and enjoyed growing up here. After college she lived in Iowa with her husband and has been back in the area now for three years.

Marquardt, who is returning as secretary, has held the position for four years.

"I enjoy being a part of the executive board," she said.

Marquardt is a lifelong resident of the area and has been in Charlevoix since 1996. She has been a member of Friends for about four years and has enjoyed it.

DeWitt is the treasurer and is enjoying her first time on the executive board.

"I think it's a wonderful organization," she said. "They've been doing great things."

DeWitt has been a member of the Friends group for the past two years and thought serving as an officer would be a good way to contribute back to the community.

DeWitt has lived in Charlevoix for 25 years and said she joined the Friends group when she retired.

To date, the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library has a membership of 350 families and has $12,500 to work with.

Outgoing President Kay Heise said in a statement that the organization fulfilled its pledge of $5,000 to the capital campaign for the new library. There is also an additional $5,000 set aside in order to start an art fund for the new library. The author series put on by the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library brought in over 250 people. These people came to hear local authors such as Roger Knutson, Larry Smith and Skip Schumacher talk about their books.

The Meet the Candidates program on Oct. 20 allowed citizens to meet and listen to what mayoral candidate, City Council candidates and 105th District candidates had to say. This program brought in about 80 people from the community. The group also hosted the Edith Gilbert Luncheon at Castle Farms in order to raise money for the new library and to honor Gilbert, who is a longtime resident of Charlevoix. This event alone netted over $7,000 on Aug. 18 and about 130 people attended.

Lighthouse nominated for national historic registry

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The United States Coast Guard is trying to get the Charlevoix lighthouse listed on the national registry of historic places.

According to a letter the Coast Guard sent to the city, the coast guard has determined the lighthouse at Lake Michigan Beach to be eligible as a historic property. This means, if the lighthouse is added to the historic places registry, if the city and Charlevoix Historical Society ultimately gain ownership of the lighthouse, they will be able to apply for more grants to restore the structure.

"It has to be registered before we can get some of the funding for the restoration," said Mary Adams of the historical society.

She said a survey of the lighthouse has determined it will need about $161,800 just for the first phase of restoration.

"Our big thing is to try and get that first phase done...Thankfully, there is a lot of grant money available for lighthouses," she said.

The city of Charlevoix and the historic society are working on a plan to get ownership of the lighthouse once it is made available March 1. The society will be the organization that will take care of the lighthouse and will lease it from the city if the deal goes through.

Adams said local governments and non-profits are given first priority when the Coast Guard gives up ownership of a lighthouse.

The United States Coast Guard is seeking comment from local officials and others interested in the lighthouse on its possible registration in the National Register of Historic Places. The comment period is 45 days and started Jan. 18.

The National Preservations Act of 1966 authorizes the secretary of the interior to expand and maintain a national register of districts, sites, buildings, structures and objects significant in American history, architecture, archeology, engineering and culture. Federal agencies are charged with identifying, evaluating and nominating such properties under their control to the National Register of Historic Places.

Only the lighthouse is being nominated for this registry. It does not include the land below the lighthouse, which is owned by the United States Army Corps of Engineers.

According to a summary statement of physical characteristics of the lighthouse as submitted by the Coast Guard, the present light was constructed in 1948. The light tower's platform is about 13 feet square and 22 inches tall. This supports a 45-foot tall steel tower and cast iron lantern.

The lighthouse's lantern is from the wood tower that stood on the south pier until being demolished to allow the existing tower's construction. This lantern was originally installed in the wooden light tower erected on the north pier at the Pine River Cannel in 1885. That wooden tower was relocated to the south pier in 1914.

The current tower was originally equipped with a 1882 Fresnel lens from the earlier wooden tower. This lens was removed in the 1980s when the light was automated and is now on display at the United States Coast Guard Station in St. Ignace.

The Coast Guard's report says the lighthouse is "associated with event that have made a significant contribution to the broad patterns of Michigan's history."

The report states it has provided for safe navigation of the Great Lakes and marks an important port to the region's maritime commerce since the late nineteenth century.

Mother, son to help in devastated Sri Lanka

Diane and John Kilkenny will be going to Sri Lanka to help out the victims of the Dec. 26 tidal wave that struck the area.

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Diane Kilkenny, 50, and her son, John, 22, are going to be helping out the victims of the Dec. 26 Southeast Asia tsunami by going to the site of the devastation themselves.

The Kilkennys, of Charlevoix, will be going to Sri Lanka with the group Medina Mission of Mercy out of Medina, Ohio to provide whatever help is needed to the people of that country. Medina Mission of Mercy is a group of doctors, nurses and laypeople that go to different areas of the world and help the people.

"My son, John, and I, like everyone else, see the news and read the papers and just want to do something," Diane said. "It is exciting to be able to help these people."

Diane is a registered nurse and her son is an auto mechanic.

"A big part of me just feels like if there is anything I can do even in some small way to make their lives more comfortable to make them feel better. That is what I want to do," she said.

Diane said has learned the hospital in the area of Sri Lanka they will be staying in has been completely destroyed by the tidal wave that struck the country. She said the mission's job will be to help take care of any illness or injury in the area and provide help with reconstruction.

"Whatever is needed," she said.

Diane said she and her son will be staying for two weeks with over 20 people of the mission. They have to pay for the trip themselves and provide their own water purification tablets, meals and the 23-hour plane trip. Their flight leaves Cleveland, Ohio on Feb. 15.

Both Diane and her son will be staying in a dorm type situation.

The group the Kilkennys will be staying with will be relieved by another team after two weeks.

Kilkenny said she has been told there is so much water, bacteria and bugs that they must sleep on the floors rather than any cots that may be in the dorms. She said the cots are infested with bugs.

"I don't even go camping. This is pretty extreme for me," she said.

Diane learned about the mission from her mother-in-law, Edna Kilkenny. Edna is a registered nurse who has taken part in the mission in the past and encouraged Diane and John to take part this year.

"(Edna) said it is very rewarding. It really enriches your own life just by helping be a part of someone else's," Diane said. "And I feel it is the right thing to do."

City may take matter to court

was supposedly sent to the city before Brandi left on vacation, but he said he never got it.

Brandi said when he realized the check was in error, he called the city's bank to try and stop payment, but it was too late. CCMS has cashed the check.

Therefore, United Fire and Casualty, sued the city of Charlevoix. In December 2004 the city agreed to end the lawsuit by paying United Fire the money it paid to CCMS.

In the meantime the city was seeking coverage of the mistake from its insurance provider. But the insurance provider is balking at paying this bill.

The city is also looking into criminal charges against CCMS for cashing the check that was mistakenly written to it.

Brandi said the city has added a new procedure to try to keep this from ever happening again. He said both he and the city manager must sign all of the checks that are written by the city. In the past, only he had to sign the checks.

Brandi said he is not sure if this new policy would have stopped the CCMS incident from happening, but it is a step in the right direction. He said by having both himself and Wiesner sign the checks, there is a greater likely hood that mistakes will be caught.

Dance classes to be offered

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The Charlevoix Elementary Enrichment Program is offering elementary school students in the area the chance to dance.

The program offers children the chance to take creative dance, pre-ballet and ballet taught by Dorothy Eisenstein.

Eisenstein has been a dancer since she was a child and has been teaching the art for 20 years.

She has been a dance teacher at Northwest Michigan College in Traverse City for 10 years and is also a guest choreographer throughout the state of Michigan.

"I enjoy teaching because I like to see the progress in the students," she said. "When you're in that process it helps you become a better artist yourself."

Eisenstein said choreographing for children keeps her mind fresh to new creative ideas and doesn't allow for her choreography to become stagnant.

"You have to be open to change," she said.

Eisenstein said the three classes offer children a way to use their creativity and a way to be active during the winter months.

"The whole program is great in the winter because you can become inactive," she said. "It can be an inspirational outlet for many people, especially children."

This inspirational outlet will be offered to children 4 to 9 years old.

The three classes will run for a six week period starting Feb. 15 and culminating on March 22.

The creative dance is for children in pre-school and kindergarten who are 4 years old and will run from 3:50 p.m. to 4:15 p.m. and costs $30 for the entire six weeks.

The pre-ballet class is for children 5 and 6 years old and will run from 4:20 p.m. to 5 p.m. and costs $36.

The ballet class will run from 5:10 p.m. to 6:10 p.m. and is for children 7 to 9 years old. The cost for this class is $40 for the entire six weeks.

Eisenstein said the classes help develop a child's creativity and involves them in an active learning environment. It also helps them to not lead a sedentary lifestyle when they're older.

"In addition to developing more skills, it develops self-awareness and social awareness," she said.

There isn't a recital as the classes are process based and not performance based.

"I have some new ideas to try out," she said. "It'll be fun. I'm looking forward to the process."

For more information on the classes and to register a child, call Jane Kanine at Charlevoix Elementary School at 547-3218.

Island volleyball, basketball claim league titles

By FRANK SOLLE
Island sports writer

With wins over rival Mackinac Island last Friday night, the Beaver Island volleyball and basketball teams each claimed Northern Lights League titles.

The volleyball team cruised to a 25-12, 25-16, 25-14 victory behind strong net play from senior Danielle Cary and sophomore Emma Adams. Adams finished with six kills and five blocks, while Cary added four kills and three blocks, plus four aces from the service line.

Freshmen Andrea Moore and Leah Cary were solid at the setter spot with Moore dishing out 17 assists and Cary 13.

Other contributors were juniors Christine McDonough with five digs and two kills, and Krystle Timsak with four kills and four aces.

"Our girls knew what they had to do and they were ready," said Island coach Connie Boyle.

The win secures first place in the league standings for the Islanders at 9-0. Mackinac is in second place at 7-2. Both teams have just one league contest to play.

The Island basketball team found the going a bit tougher as they needed overtime in order to down the Lakers 71-67.

Not only that, but they had to fight back from a 10-point third quarter deficit as well.

Trailing 32-22, the Islander went on a 12-2 tear to tie the game at 34-all. Junior Brett Maudrie capped the run with a trey. The teams then traded five-point runs with the Islanders scoring last on a huzzer heater by Jared Wojan to knot the game at 39 going into the final frame.

A 10-point Island rally appeared to put the game in order, but the Lakers rallied behind two late triples, the final one coming with just 10 seconds to play, tying the game at 56-56, setting up the overtime.

The teams traded points until the Maudrie put the Islanders in control on an inside score followed by back-to-back steals that led to easy layups and a 68-61 lead with two minutes to play.

This time there was no Laker rally as Jimmy Gillespie answered a Mackinac triple with one of his own as the Islanders held on for the win.

The victory seals the league title for the basketball team as they improve to 9-0 with the Lakers falling to 6-2.

The two teams met again Saturday morning, but this time the outcome was reversed. Mackinac won the basketball game 59-56 and the volleyball match in five games 13-25, 25-14, 25-23, 20-25, 15-7.

Since this was the final home date of the season for the Islanders, both coaches made the decision to play their younger and reserve players.

"This is their home crowd," said basketball coach Myers. "It's a chance to let the young kids play."

Coach Boyle agreed, adding, "For the younger girls (who don't get to travel) this is it for their season, so let them play."

And as the scores reflect, play they did.

The reserve basketball players inherited a 28-27 lead from the starters at the beginning of the third quarter and for most of that period held their own. Mackinac's varsity finally took control with a late 10-2 run to post a 50-40 lead going into the final quarter.

The Islander starters went back in for the last period and rallied behind triples by Maudrie, Gillespie and John Runberg to close within three. A late triple try bounced off the rim at the huzzer.

"Our young kids held their own," Myers said. "Then we almost came back in the fourth quarter."

Maudrie again led the Islanders with 17 points. Jimmy Gillespie added 10. John Runberg and Eric Albin each scored seven with Wojan and John Albin hitting four. Kevin Gillespie netted three while Dan Runberg and Justin Martin scored two each.

The young volleyball players matched up well against the Mackinac varsity squad, winning two of five games.

They received a bit of help in the third game after trailing 10-17, but even with a few regular starters sprinkled in they came up just short in a 23-25 loss.

Then, after fighting back to win the fourth game, they tired in the finale as Mackinac ran off the final six points for the win.

"Our younger girls will all be back next year and now they know they can play at the varsity level," Boyle said with an eye to the future.

Sophomores Bailey McDonough and Brenna Green played big roles in the win. McDonough accounted for three blocks, five digs and four aces while Green added four aces as well.

The volleyball team travels to Engadine this Saturday for an annual tournament featuring teams from throughout the eastern Upper Peninsula.

Rayders lose first time this season

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

Keith Haske celebrated his 300th win as a varsity boys basketball coach last week with a win over Glen Lake, 73-63, however later in the week his Charlevoix Rayders suffered their first loss of the 2004-2005 season, falling to Harbor Springs, 64-54.

Haske was 150-84 in 13 seasons as coach of his alma mater, St. John's High School.

Currently in his eighth year in Charlevoix, Haske has posted a 150-43 mark with the Rayders, winning six straight district titles, five regional crowns, two conference championships and three trips to the Breslin Center for the Class C Final Four.

The Rayders, playing without their leading scorer, Jared Hunt, fell however to rival Harbor Springs, following a pre-game ceremony honoring Haske. The loss was the school's first to the Rams under Haske.

Charlevoix jumped out to a 7-0 lead to start the game, playing before a near capacity crowd at home. The Rams were undeterred and rallied to tie the score at 9-9 to end the first quarter.

In second quarter action, the lead changed hands six times and the Rayders left the court with a narrow 24-22 advantage at the half. Phil Steen scored 10 points in the first half.

Harbor took the lead at 31-29 with 6:25 remaining in the third quarter. Steen tied the game on a short jumper minutes later and back-to-back hoops by Ben Bergmann put the Rayders back on top, 35-33 with 5:15 to go in the third.

The Rams tied the game before Matt Kautz sank his second three-point shot of the night to re-take the lead for Charlevoix. Harbor Springs then scored four straight points to take a 41-38 lead. Bergmann scored on a slashing drive to close the third quarter and cut the lead to one.

Bergmann opened the fourth with another drive and score to give Charlevoix a 42-41 lead but the Rams then went on a 8-0 run to take a 49-42 lead with 5:12 left in the game.

Out of a Haske timeout, Cody Crain drained a three-pointer and another Steen basket brought the Rayders to within two at 49-47 with 4:22 to go. The Rayders pulled within a basket twice more at 51-49 and 53-51 but they were unable to catch the Rams.

Harbor Springs outscored Charlevoix, 11-3 over the last two minutes of the ballgame, netting eight of their 11 points at the free throw line.

"One of the keys was that we just didn't have an answer for Greg Oldman (who led all scorers with 27 points)," Coach Haske said. "We did some good things with him, tried to front him but our help side guys just weren't there too much of the time."

Bergmann led the Rayders with 17 points, 11 rebounds and four assists. Steen had 16 points and 10 rebounds. Crain finished with eight points and Kautz with seven.

"Steen and Bergmann had good games, I thought," Haske said. "But we just didn't have enough perimeter help to win."

"Looking back, shooting as poorly as we did from the three-point line (4 for 22 for the game), you wonder how we had a chance to win it."

Against Glen Lake, Kautz led Charlevoix with 17 points and five assists. Steen had 14 points and six rebounds. Bergmann contributed 11 points while Eddie Waldron scored 10 points and grabbed six rebounds.

Sophomore Ty Haske dished out seven assists and pilfered three steals in his first start on the varsity.

"It was nice to be able to use our new lineup (without Hunt) in a non-league game," Haske commented. "It gave the players a positive start."

Charlevoix (13-1 overall, 8-1 conference) played at Grayling in a battle of the two top teams in the Lake Michigan Conference.

The results will appear in next week's Courier. On Friday, the Rayders play at Traverse City St. Francis.

During the basketball games on Feb. 4, Coach Keith Haske was awarded a plaque to honor him for winning his 33th varsity boy's basketball game on Feb. 1.

Volleyball team brings conference record to 8-1

By B. JON GOHS
Sports writer

The Rayders varsity volleyball team is either hot or cold with very little in between.

In six matches over two nights Charlevoix managed to bring its conference record to 8-1.

For the second time this season the Rayders beat both Boyne City and Elk Rapids.

"Both games we started out slow," said coach Liz Grunch. "And then it really picked up and we came out sweeping the night."

She added, "The girls really hung in there and played well."

The Rayders scored 25-17, 25-8, 25-7 Monday and 25-19, 25-22, 25-16 Thursday against the Ramblers and Elks respectively.

Players of mention against Boyne City were Teresa Martin and Kari Way each with 10 kills. Zita Anderson had 28 assists, was 12-12 for serves and had two aces and Betsey Dennis had 100 percent serve-receive.

The action against Elk Rapids was lead by Martin with 13 kills while Anderson had 23 assists, two aces and was again 12-12 in serves. Dennis came in with four aces and two blocks and Way had 20 digs.

While last weeks games weren't her team's greatest, Grunch is happy with the result.

"These are two nice conference wins for us," she said. "Charlevoix's excellent play on the weeknights was matched only by their poor play on the weekend."

According to coach Grunch, a combination of fatigue and inconsistencies lead her team to a fifth place tie in Saturdays tournament in Suttons Bay.

"I think we played well in the morning," she said. "But we were playing against pretty tough competition."

She added, "It was good experience for us. Suttons Bay is in our district. It was nice to see their style of play."

Watching Suttons Bay work also gives Grunch the chance to focus on the Rayders weaknesses.

And Charlevoix has just three weeks with no tournament play to ready themselves for districts.

"We have a couple weekends off and then we'll be ready to go at it again," she said.

But for now Grunch will look to immediate tasks.

"Our big focus is coming up," she said. "We'll be playing Harbor Springs, Kalkaska and Traverse City — those are tough competitions."

One of the biggest factors in those games will be, among other things, Charlevoix's ability to serve-receive.

And, Grunch said, "We really need to work on blocking at the net and transition on defense." The Rayders prepare for their next game at 6 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 10, in East Jordan.

Junior varsity, varsity grapplers doing well

The Charlevoix Rayder junior varsity wrestling team traveled to Houghton Lake for the Houghton Lake Junior Varsity Invitational where they competed against teams from Gaylord, Pine River, Harrison, Cadillac, Roscommon, Houghton Lake, Oscoda, Traverse City St. Francis, and Michigan Lutheran Seminary.

Coach Craig Golovich said that his junior varsity team "looked strong on the mats and wrestled well."

Top medal winners for the Charlevoix Rayders were: First, Nick Gotshall (130) three Pins, one technical. First, Scott Sladek (189) one pin, two decisions. Second, Nathan Triplehorn (215) one pin, two decisions. Third, Spencer Hankins (119) two pins, one decision. Fourth, RJ Moore (145) one pin, one decision. Fourth, Drew Klooster (152) two decisions.

Wrestler of the Week went to Nick Gotshall for going four-for-four at the tournament.

The Charlevoix Varsity wrestlers traveled to Rudyard Thursday, Feb. 3, when they competed against Cheboygan and Rudyard.

The team went in having to post voids in three weight classes due to injuries and illnesses, and incurred losses in both matches. Cheboygan defeated Charlevoix 48-31.

Top wrestlers were: Nick Gotshall (decision), Jed Daman (pin), Matt Novotny (decision), and Scott Sladek (pin).

The Rayders wrestled Rudyard who won 46-36. Top wrestlers were: Jed Daman, Matt Novotny, Drew Klooster, Jeff Golovich, and Scott Sladek. Each pinned their opponent.

"Matt Novotny showed tonight what it means to never give up," Coach Golovich said. "He came ready to wrestle and wrestled tough."

Jed Daman continued to add to his near perfect record by posting two more in the win column.

As the team moves toward the end of the season, the Rayders look forward to going to Petoskey on Saturday, Feb. 12 for the Petoskey B Invitational. Feb. 17 is the Division IV Team Districts at Onaway and Feb. 19 is the Division IV Individual Districts in Manton.

The Rayders must place fourth or better to advance to the Team and/or Individual Regionals to be Feb. 23 and 26 in Manton.

Area hockey team beats Traverse City

Boyne Area Hockey's Paul Bunyan Lanes Midget team traveled to Howe Arena Sat. Feb. 5, to meet Traverse City's North Stars and won 3-2.

With patient blue line passing to keep the puck in their offensive zone, and good passing by the offensive lines within their zone, Boyne pounded the Traverse City goalies.

Goalie Nick Ferree made some spectacular saves as he earned another win.

The team plays in the state district playoffs next weekend in Mackinaw City.

On Jan. 28 they met Lakeland AA in Kalkaska, and lost 1-5. Ryan Hennessy, assisted by Troy Scarbrough, scored Boyne's goal. Charlie Courtright and Ferree shared goaltending.

On Jan. 29 the team hosted Newberry. The first game was marked by very fast skating and end-to-end action. Pardee scored a hat trick with three goals and Scarbrough backhanded in a rebound to score in the 4-2 win.

Assists came from Williams, Darren Looze, Gear Robinson; Nick Dunwoody, and Eli Barys each gave two. Boyne put 23 shots on net, while Goalie Ferree saved 18 of 20 shots on his turf.

Boyne dropped the second hard fought game 4-5. Looze and Dunwoody each put one on the scoreboard, and Matt Kopke added two. Barys tallied an assist. Netminder Courtright took 16 shots on net.

On Jan. 30 the team hosted Traverse City's AA team, and skated to a solid 4-1 win, outshooting Traverse City 31-17.

Hennessy, Barys, Kopke and Scarbrough scored. John Miller, Will Brown, Scarbrough and Kopke gave assists; Darren Looze chipped in two. Goalies Courtright and Ferree split netminding.

Lighthouse to be given away by Coast Guard its first phase of restoration.

"We have a lot of fund-raising to do to meet that," she said. However, according to Steven Belko, of the Michigan Lighthouse Project and the State Preservation Office, there are a number of grants available for lighthouse restoration.

The first grant that came to mind, he said, was the Michigan Lighthouse Assistance Program and he has never seen anyone turned down for this grant. The grant money comes from the sale of lighthouse license plates in the state of Michigan.

Before voting on the matter, some council members questioned what would happen if the grants "dried" up and the city did not want the lighthouse anymore.

Belko said it would then revert back to federal control. However, he said, the federal government and the state does not want that to happen, which is why there are so many grants available out there. "We try to make sure we don't get it," he said.

Belko said the process to get the lighthouse is competitive. This is the fifth lighthouse that will be put up for availability.

Generally, Belko said, during the time for notices of interest from groups on the lighthouse when it is made available, if several groups want the lighthouse in addition to the local government body — which has happened before — applications are sent out. Once those applications are filled out by the groups, the government looks them over and makes a decision on who gets the lighthouse.

Belko added, the lighthouse building is the only part that is being made available. He said the pier is owned by the Corps of Engineers and the light in the light-house will be maintained and operated by the Coast Guard.

"If the light goes out, it is the United States Coast Guard's responsibility," he said.

Before the unanimous vote by council approving the partnership and plan to send out a letter of intent when the lighthouse is made available, former Charlevoix Mayor Gabe Campbell said, "I hope this goes through because we have lost a lot of our landmarks around here."

Rate increases proposed

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix's proposed 2005-2006 city budget includes increases in electric, water and sewer rates, in addition to several increases in recreation fees.

According to the proposed budget, residents who use city water, sewer and electric services will see an average increase of about $3.80 per month in addition to a $1.40 per month "ready to serve" charge. This breaks down to a 5.5 percent increase in the sewer bill, 2 percent increase in the water bill and a 3.9 percent increase in the electric bill.

Charlevoix City Treasurer Rick Brandt said, "I think Charlevoix residents are going to see those rate increases and that is going to be a concern. I don't like having the increases we are proposing, but I think they are justified and necessary."

Brandt said, basically, the increases are needed to shore up the electric, sewer and water funds due to expenses that have come out of the funds in the past. These expenses were from fixes or improvements that were needed to the system over the years, but left the funds short.

So, to make up for this, Brandt said the rate increases were necessary.

But before putting in the increases, he said the city looked at the needs of the individual funds over the next five years — thus spreading out the cost over five years — and how its service and rates compare to other cities in the area.

"We tried to look at every single rate that is out there to see how we compared. We have to make sure we are competitive," he said.

See related budget story on page 13

Charlevoix City Manager Mike Wiesner added the increases will also help in making the funds self sufficient. This way, if future projects come down the line in the electric

The Charlevoix High School performing arts department went to regionals on Feb. 11 with "Into the Woods" and gave a great show despite not placing for the state finals.

Connie Ford, performing arts director, said two other C/D schools were ahead of Charlevoix, which is why they didn't make it to state.

"It was an interesting day," she said.

Despite not having the best facility to work with, Ford said the students did the best they could.

"The kids did a marvelous job with it," she said.

"Into the Woods" is a play that mixes up several different fairy tales including "Little Red Riding Hood," "Jack and the Bean Stalk" and "Rapunzel." The characters from each fairy tale end up coming across one another in a journey through the woods, which creates some humorous encounters.

Four to try for two school board seats

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Candidates seeking two open seats on the Charlevoix Public School Board have filed and are ready for the election on May 3.

The candidates are incumbent Barney Way, incumbent Scott Boss, Dean Speneley and Kristine Michaud.

The ballots had to be filed by 4 p.m. on Feb. 8 for the May 3 election, which is required under Michigan's election consolidation law.

School board candidates must file an affidavit of identity and either a nominating petition or a non-refundable $100 fee to run, according to a press release by Terri Lynn Land, Michigan secretary of state.

Candidates who chose to submit a petition from a school district with a population of less than 10,000 had to gather a minimum of six signatures. Those from school districts with a population of 10,000 or more had to gather a minimum of 40 signatures, according to the press release.

Chief Deputy County Clerk Cherie Browe said in a previous interview that the law states that there can't be more than 2,999 people in one precinct, so several precincts were created in each school district to accommodate the changes with the election consolidation laws.

There are three proposed Charlevoix school precincts and there are 7,435 registered voters in the Charlevoix School District. Precinct One includes Marion, Norwood and Banks townships. Voting will take place in Marion Township.

Precinct Two includes both Charlevoix and Hayes townships and voting will occur in Hayes Township.

Precinct Three includes the City of Charlevoix and Eveline Township, with voting occurring in the City of Charlevoix.

Browe said the county will notify all the voters where they will vote in the new precincts. Some of the townships overlap in precincts as the lines were drawn according to the school districts and not just the township borders.

The election will be on May 3 and voters that qualify for an emergency absentee ballot may obtain one up to 4 p.m. that day.

Other important election dates are April 4, which is the last day to register to vote for the May 3 election. The filing deadline for write-in candidates is 4 p.m. on April 26.

The deadline for applying for an absentee ballot by mail is 2 p.m. on April 30 and the deadline for voters to vote an absentee ballot in person is 4 p.m. on May 2.

For more information call Charlevoix County Clerk Jane Brannon at 547-7200.

OPINIONS

Tell the city your thoughts on spending

EDITORIAL

Many times when someone is asked about projects taken up by the city or the topic of spending is brought up you hear, "They are just wasting money."

For some reason people just don't trust the government when it comes to money. They question the cost of every project, the needs of every department and the salaries of every official when debating a general raise in whatever they pay to the city, be it taxes or service charges.

And many times after a project is approved by the city council and construction begins on the project people find out how much the project costs and they get upset. It could be Christmas lights in town, road work they don't think is up to par, the marina project, airport buildings and many other projects that irk taxpayers.

Well, now is the time to get a heads up on those projects and see just how much the city is spending because the city's 2005-2006 proposed budget has been released.

In the budget, we see a total of $29.9 million dollars with 57 percent of it being spent on construction projects this year. That means there will be a lot of projects this city will be working on that will effect the lives of the residents of Charlevoix.

Plus, the budget shows increases in the electric, sewer and water rates for all city users. Users of those services will definitely want to know more about that.

Now is the time to learn as much as you can about the city's use of your money. Now is the time where if you see something you don't like or are confused about a certain area in which the city is spending money you will be heard on it.

If you care about the city's use of your tax money and care about what happens to Charlevoix, take a look at the city's budget — it is available at city hall — and come to the Feb. 21 city council meeting when the budget will be discussed.

Get informed on spending in Charlevoix and let the city know what you think about its use of your tax money.

Modern principled behavior may actually be irresponsible

Roger Knutson
'Ear to the ground'

(Editor's note: Due to a typing error that left out part of the column in last week's edition of the Courier, this column is being rerun this week)

When Harry Truman was president he had a small plaque on his desk which proclaimed, "The buck stops here."

Being an old poker player, Truman clearly understood what that meant. The buck named was a marker placed in front of the next dealer, to indicate his responsibility for the act. It was a sign of responsibility. Many of us are uncomfortable with the uncertainty associated with responsibility and are likely to prefer ready made answers — irrevocable statements of principle.

Consider employing a standardized test as the key to whether a student should advance or graduate. As a clue to how well an entire school district is working, the use of average test scores might be effective. If scores are consistently dropping or consistently going up, that carries the suggestion that the situation at the school is negative or positive. A standardized test score is a much less worthwhile number for an individual. It measures one day at one time and may be subject to great variation from day to day, even if the whole school's performance stays the same. To pronounce that, "No one with a score of less than so and so can proceed to the next grade" or "No one with less than 75 percent on this exam can graduate," sounds principled, but it irresponsibly fails to take account of an individual's true ability, and allows the decision maker to avoid responsibility by depending on a test score as the sole reason for a decision. Standardized testing certainly has a place in education, but it does not provide an answer to the question of how we should treat an individual. That requires both more information and educators willing to take responsibility for the decision to advance or graduate someone, using test scores as an appropriately small part of the decision.

Consider the national debate about abortion. It sounds principled to say that a woman has the right to an abortion, to the control of her own body. It also sounds principled to say that a unique human life begins at the moment of conception and that any medical interruption of pregnancy is equivalent to murder. Both positions are irresponsible because they limit or eliminate the possibility of considering individual circumstances. They are irresponsible because they substitute an absolute formula for the responsible decisions that humans are capable of. Both positions also require that one must maintain that an equally capable, equally moral, equally principled human being is absolutely wrong. It is sometimes worthwhile to ask, "Is there any imaginable circumstance in which my absolute position would be wrong?" If there is such an imaginable circumstance, then individual responsibility is necessarily involved in making a decision. I once had a colleague, a professor of philosophy, who maintained that the key to moral human behavior was in asking questions rather than providing answers.

Consider freedom and tyranny. Being in favor of freedom and opposed to tyranny sounds principled. Could it possibly be irresponsible? Are there any imaginable circumstances in which the over-diligent pursuit of freedom might be wrong? Are there any imaginable circumstances in which some level of tyranny might be a desirable alternative to whatever preceded it? Is freedom at any cost principled or irresponsible? I don't have that answer, but the questions are worth asking. Patrick Henry is famous for having said, "Give me liberty or give me death." That statement is much easier to make if the liberty or death is someone else's, not your own. Is freedom an absolute good? Is tyranny an absolute evil? Ideology suggests so. But reason suggests that ideology is a poor guide in problem solving.

Principle does not consist in maintaining a position until death, but in allowing the human capacity for responsibility to emerge to make it possible to keep on asking questions. Answers may be temporarily satisfying, but asking questions is more important and more responsible. And ideals, held without the possibility of exception or compromise are ultimately irresponsible.

Help needed

Editor:
My mission is to help the elderly, especially my mother, and those individuals who can't afford health care, young and old alike. I want to promote a healthy attitude toward the aging process, which begins when we are born. Activity, mental and physical, is the key, and it doesn't mean you have to be an expert to participate.

However, even people who are active get sick, and certainly the older population is at greater risk. Though our health care system is one of the best in the world as far as medical advancements are concerned, the cost of this health care delivery system can be astronomical. It was reported on the Reuters AlertNet Feb. 2, 2005 that, "Half of all U.S. bankruptcies are caused by soaring medical bills and most people sent into debt by illness are middle-class workers with health insurance." Dr. David Himmelstein, an associate professor of medicine at Harvard Medical School who led the study, stated, "Our study is frightening. Unless you're Bill Gates, you're just one serious illness away from bankruptcy."

Though my mother raised a family of five alone, worked until she was 70 and managed her finances effectively, she did not plan on the excessive cost of health care in her old age. She had a C-3 (cervical) compression and decompression, followed by what once was end stage congestive heart failure and now moderate to severe Mitral valve regurgitation. Rehab and follow-up care following my mother's decompression surgery was $12,000 a month for a year and a half. After the first month, this was an out-of-pocket expense for her. This, combined with an additional year and a half of medical care, has been a tremendous financial drain on the entire family.

My hope is that you will, as a human-interest story, print my letter and direct your readers to my web site. Though my web address is www.calendargirlforacause.com or www.calendargirl.ws please don't be misled by the name: it is the spirit of the calendar and cause that is important. I am using the calendar only as a vehicle to help my mother and to help many others in similar situations. In addition, the information on my web site may also help those in need of Mitral valve replacement surgery. They may be candidates for the new eValve system, which is a non-invasive technique that is done via heart catheterization. If you have a central valve regurgitation, not lateral, there is a chance that you could qualify for the procedure. Trial studies are being performed at a few medical centers in the east and midwest, including Cleveland, Evanston, northwestern Philadelphia and New York.

Thank you so much for your attention to this letter. My phone number is (239) 289-4898. Though this is a Florida number, I live in northern Michigan. My address is 108 Auld Avenue, Charlevoix, MI 49720. Please feel free to be in touch with me.

Ice rink's bad idea

Editor:
Until I read Jill (Cross) Picha's letter to the editor in the Feb. 9, 2005 Charlevoix Courier, I thought the ice rink in East Park was a done deal.

At the time the ice rink in East Park was an issue before the Charlevoix City Council, I wrote to the Courier which the original letter is not available. In my letter, I wrote of supervisory and safety concerns for young skaters in East Park with Round Lake and access to crossing Bridge Street on skates for food and candy becoming part of the vehicle traffic mix.

This idea of having an ice rink in East Park was cooked up by newer Charlevoix business people to attract more business "downtown." How many of those business people plan to skate? There are supervisory concerns.

From memory, the timeline for Charlevoix Ice Rink:

Ice Rink for figure skating, hockey and speed skaters was always on the tennis courts by the old middle school from day one until 1970. This location was on school property between Mason and Clinton Streets, free, well protected from the wind, maintained by City of Charlevoix. It was an easy location for skaters to walk from all areas of town and safe.

Later, 1970s-1980s, the ice rink was up by the old Charlevoix High School, at the corner of May and Carpenter streets. It had windy conditions, free and the ice was not good and a young girl was hit by a car crossing Carpenter Street and received a broken leg.

In 1986 or so there was talk at City Hall of "moving the ice rink to Mt. McSaulha." This cost $1 for a bus to McSaulha, $1 to skate and included changing the name of the ski area. In 1987 or so I was asked to volunteer for the City Recreation Commission. In 1987 after I became a member of the City Recreation Commission, City Manager Michael Wiesner moved East Park, such as bandshell planning. From the Recreation Commission to the DDA. The Recreation Commission voted to move the ice rink back to Clinton Street location. The mission was accomplished with the ice rink. I resigned from the Recreation Commission.

Later, in 1988-1990, the ice rink moved back up to Carpenter and May streets. Now in 2005, an artificial ice rink in East Park should not be a draw for "business." Perhaps the "artificial ice rink" with room for hockey players and speed skaters to practice could become part of the new library property and back to Mason/Clinton streets where it belongs.

No on ice rink

Editor:
At the Charlevoix City Council meeting, Jan. 3, 2005 a suggestion was brought forth to generate a petition to call for a referendum pertaining to the proposed East Park Renovation. All the registered voters of Charlevoix will then have an opportunity to cast their ballots "yea or nay."

I make reference to the recent publication of the Charlevoix Courier of Wednesday, Feb. 9; to wit "Official Notice City of Charlevoix" (on page 19); please read it. Amendment Four originally contained the marina renovation and the Harbormaster Building construction only. The potential 75 percent state grant is for this work only Amendment Five originally contained the proposed renovation to East Park including a new pavilion/performance building complete with amphitheater seating, a restroom and a fish pond. As for the construction of off-site parking and storm sewer construction, I submit that these projects should be covered by the City of Charlevoix Infrastructure Budget. Why have the waters suddenly become so "muddy"? (No pun intended).

At last week's council meeting the city administration brought forth that they are now going to raise our electrical rates. This is just the beginning people!

My thoughts are: take the potential

75 percent grant from the state; (some $6.8 million and change); renovate the marina as originally proposed but leave East Park as it is. Maybe sometime later when the city is more flush with money, renovations to East Park can then be addressed.

I feel that the administration, the city council and the DDA leave my wife, Jill, no choice but to generate petitions on both Amendment Four and Amendment Five, as they presently read in the above referenced "official notice." You, the people of Charlevoix, should have the right to decide on these issues. The petitions generated will only put both of these amendments on the ballot for you to vote on.

Small fixes to band shell needed

Editor:
After reading the recent articles about the band shell and its relocation, I feel compelled and responsible to contribute my opinion. I have been an active member of the city band for almost fifty years and have played on three different band shells in East Park. From the time of the old green platform, it was Odie's on-going dream to create a musically sound hand shell. His dream was fulfilled and seen by him in 1992, as he attended the dedication. From the audience he raised his arm in recognition, approval and gratitude to a job well done. Bursting with pride, he observed a beautifully built structure with an architectural design that is uniquely Charlevoix.

It saddens me to think of that structure being demolished and that the city council would consider such an act. If anyone has sat in the park during a warm summer evening listening to performances, they would realize the aesthetic atmosphere is hard to compare. With the pavilion changed to a more southern location in the park, the atmosphere would be less desirable.

Any pavilion in any corner of the park is going to be acoustically ineffective because of the traffic problem.

My belief is, the road noise will be even worse nearer the corner, due to the traffic, especially trucks, braking on the hill. That corner is also affected by boat traffic from chartered fishing boats and a gas pump. In addition, the sun has always posed a problem in the pavilion's present location, and the proposed pavilion will be positioned in a similar direction relative to the sun.

I'm questioning some of the reasoning that is being stated to build a new pavilion. We don't need to think of the Hollywood Bowl; most, if not all performers on any outdoor stage are using sound systems for performances. Being acoustically correct on a park stage is certainly not as important as it once was because of technically advanced sound equipment. Theater productions could possibly utilize the auditorium in the Charlevoix High School. Incidentally, the present pavilion was built with dressing rooms in the plans until the city claimed it for storage purposes. One tends to question whether a new pavilion would have the same types of demands.

Is the real reason to demolish the 12-year-old pavilion to open up the park to the marina, and is that worth hundreds of thousands of dollars? I know boaters enjoy listening to music too. The acoustic problem could be fixed for a fraction of the cost. The fish pond could be covered creating a larger stage for more performers. Dressing rooms could be added in place of city storage.

With a few relatively inexpensive renovations, the present band pavilion will serve us well for years to come. It seems that in this time of economic crises, Charlevoix would use the money for a more crucial venue.

Only a few years ago many of you donated to build the dream of your highly respected music director. Those donations were not only from your wallets, but also from your hearts. You thought it important to allow Mr. Odmark to realize his dream. It was a heart felt gift. Whose dream are we fulfilling this time around?

CEMEX signs agreement to sell local plant

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

CEMEX, a Mexican cement company, announced on Feb. 8 that it signed an agreement to sell two of its cement plants in the Great Lakes region of the United States to family-owned Brazilian cement company, Votorantim Cimentos LTDA.

Bud McCormick, plant manager for the Charlevoix plant's cement division, said both the Charlevoix and Dixon-Marquette cement plants are part of the sale along with the Milwaukee, Chicago, Toledo and Cleveland distribution terminals.

However, the Detroit distribution terminal will remain the property of CEMEX.

McCormick said the agreement is merely stating that CEMEX agrees to sell and Votorantim Cimentos LTDA agrees to buy.

There has to be a business and federal review before anything is final, which McCormick said could take between four to six weeks. McCormick said he believes the Federal Trade Commission has the final say before the sale can be completed.

In the meantime, even though the sale isn't final yet, McCormick said the Charlevoix plant is already preparing for the transition.

This preparation includes learning a new computer system and several programs such as those for inventory and maintenance. Also, McCormick said the CEMEX group will learn how Votorantim runs a cement plant.

"We just have to integrate into that," he said.

When the sale is final, the Charlevoix CEMEX plant may be renamed St. Mary's-Charlevoix.

The transaction, which will be structured as a sale of assets, is expected to close during the first quarter of 2005, according to a press release by CEMEX. It will be a sale of assets, McCormick said, as Votorantim is only buying a portion of CEMEX.

Votorantim presented a non-binding contract in November and CEMEX stated in a press release that they had been evaluating what to do with the two cement plants since early 2004.

The transaction assets are valued at $389 million and CEMEX stated in a Nov. 15 press release that they plan to use the money to pay off the debt or reduce the level of debt brought on by their acquisition of RMC.

The Charlevoix and Dixon-Marquette plants have a combined production capacity of about two million metric tons per year, which CEMEX said represents about nine percent of its operating cash flow generation of its business in the United States.

Stated in a Nov. 15 Associated Press article from Forbes.com, this will be the first major divestment CEMEX has made since the acquisition of RMC.

The article also stated that for Votorantim's cement unit, the CEMEX deal will be the latest in a series of acquisitions.

CEMEX signed an agreement with Votorantim Cimentos LTDA for sale of certain assets in the Great Lakes region including the cement plant in Charlevoix. The sale isn't final yet, but the Charlevoix plant is currently preparing for the transition.

Ski tour next week

Celebrate women, winter and chocolate on Feb. 27.

Active Women Now, Inc. a non-profit organization will host The Second Annual Charlevoix Ladies Tour, a weekend of fun and activities that will take the winter blues out of northern Michigan.

Active Women Now, Inc. has ski tours in Michigan and the United States, celebrating the camaraderie that women hold in empowering one another while giving back to their community. This non-competitive winter event for women will be at the Charlevoix Elementary School and the trails will weave through Mount McSaubia.

Novice winter activists are encouraged to attend.

Ski clinics will be given on Feb. 26 for beginners and those who are looking to cultivate their skills.

A wine and cheese event will be at Castle Farms as a prelude to the Charlevoix Ladies Tour. Log onto the Women's Ski Tour web site for more information.

Tickets in advance are $35 and include all the chocolate, goodies and fun you can hold in one day. Proceeds from the Charlevoix Ladies Tour benefits BASES and the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan. Please log onto www.womensskitour.com for more information on corporate sponsorship opportunities and purchasing event tickets. E-mail Courtney Miles, regional event manager at Courtney@womensskitour.com with further questions.

Volunteers vital at Charlevoix library

Val Meyerson, director of the Charlevoix Public Library, announced that volunteers from the community are serving on five newly-formed library committees: design, landscape, construction, finance and art selection.

The combined knowledge of these volunteers is invaluable to the new library project as they offer expertise and experience on behalf of the taxpayers of the library district.

Serving on the finance committee to review library investments and project cash flow issues are Chuck Adams, Rick Brandt, Don Heise, John Kurtz, Mason Rosenthal and Paul Weston.

Ensuring that the project is on time and on budget is the construction committee: Rick Brandt, Ted Dumbauld, Phil Frederickson, Tom Hanna, Bruce Herbert, Roger Postmus, Joe Seidel and Stuart Wood. They meet regularly with the project construction manager from Clark Construction, Duane Wixson.

Another committee meets with interior designer, Alyce Riemenschneider, to formulate recommendations for the interior layout, including color schemes and furniture choices. The members of the design committee are Mary Ann Chew, Kay Heise, Betty Henne, Nancy Porter, Cynthia Postmus, Audrey Shapiro and Yvonne Wendt.

Developing a exterior plan for the grounds, which will incorporate current plantings as well as new, is the landscape committee: Rhea Dow, Shirley Polakowski and Ken Polakowski.

Selecting the art work which will be on permanent display in the new library is the art selection committee: Karla Fassett, Marina LaBlance, Sandy Marquardt and Mary Beth McGraw.

Meyerson says that her job and that of the Library Board of Trustees has been made easier, knowing that they can count on many other dedicated people to look over plans and make suggestions for the rehabilitation, renovation, and expansion of the 1927 school building at 220 Clinton Street.

For further information about the building project, call the library at 547-2651.

Four students named winners in essay contest

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Weston Bryan, Samantha Reeves and Emma Baker, eighth grade students at Charlevoix Middle School, were the local winners in the 36th Annual America and Me Essay Contest.

Bryan, 14, received first place, Reeves, 14, second place and Baker, 13, third place, but all received a certificate documenting their achievement. But Bryan is the one who's name will be engraved on a plaque that will be put on display in the school.

The contest started in 1968 and is hosted by Farm Bureau Insurance. The object of the contest is to help students in the eighth grade realize the role they could play in America's future.

Students from over 500 Michigan schools participated in this year's contest and Bryan, Reeves and Baker stood out from Charlevoix Middle School.

The 2004 to 2005 essay theme was "My American Hero."

Bryan chose the heroes of Sept. 11 as his essay topic. He said he chose all the heroes regardless of the role they played or the uniform they donned.

"I just thought that, they're the only people I could think of to consider real heroes," he said.

Bryan said he enjoys writing and the essay allowed him to write about people that matter and who actually make a difference in the world.

"It kind of just gives you a way to point your life in that direction," he said.

Reeves received second place for her essay about her brother, Christopher, 22, who served in the Army in Afghanistan.

She said she chose him because of all the things he did while over in Afghanistan.

Reeves enjoys writing and said heroes make a difference because they show that everyone can have an impact in one way or another.

"Just sort of says look what they did, I could do that to," she said. However, Reeves said this doesn't mean having to go to Afghanistan.

Baker received third place for her essay on Rachel Carson, the author of "Silent Spring." Baker chose to write about Carson because she herself is passionate about the environment.

"I like to think of myself as an environmentalist," she said.

Baker said individual heroes shouldn't be honored, rather everyone who's made a difference throughout time.

"I think it's important to honor the progression of humanity," she said. "Well, to understand how to be a good person, beneficial."

Bryan's essay will advance to the state level where the competition results in choosing the top ten essays in Michigan.

The top 10 essays in Michigan will be announced in April and the winners will receive plaques, cash and United States savings bonds valued from $500 to $1,000.

The essayists will also be honored at a banquet in Lansing where they will meet with Michigan's top governmental leaders. They will also be the featured guests at a minor league baseball game of the Lansing Lugnuts. The game will be dedicated to them.

Weston Bryan, Samantha Reeves and Emma Baker were all local winners in the 36th Annual America and Me Essay Contest.

Charlevoix Senior Center has a new look

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The Charlevoix Senior Center has taken on a new look.

Earl Muma, director of the center and chairman of the Charlevoix Senior Citizens Board of Directors, said the majority of the renovations were completed on Jan. 15, but there are a few minor details left.

"It has been a great rush to take on the project and see it completed," he said.

The renovations include an expanded kitchen and new sun room that also functions as a library and dance floor.

People are getting to know that the center is their own, Muma said, and that he is only here to run it for them.

Muma calls the center the "Diamond of the North," which he said is true in the eyes of the seniors in the area.

The center offers the best food, Muma said, and is open to senior citizens and non-senior citizens alike.

Renovations started Sept. 15 with foundation by Dan Murray. Then on Nov. 10, James G. Fiedler, a building contractor, came in with the bid for construction of the center. Muma said it cost $21,000 for labor and materials, but Fiedler paid for Tony Lucas to finish up with renovations until the end of December.

Funding for the project came from numerous donors. Muma said Great Lakes Energy gave a $10,000 grant, the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging gave $10,000 for kitchen equipment and the Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians gave a $10,000 grant for kitchen renovations.

Muma said the center also received a $2,500 grant from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation that went toward kitchen equipment costs and a $5,000 donation from the Senior's Craft Class and the seniors donated $30,000 from their own savings and checking.

The Senior Center will be getting congressional help from Congressman Bart Stupak. Muma said the center will be receiving a $24,500 grant that will be used to finish construction on the building.

The center received in-kind donations from Manthei Development Corp., Emmet Brick and Block, Harbor Industries Inc. and Swanson. Muma said Tom Bergmann removed two trees for free.

"We have a happy center," Muma said. "Happy cooks, happy people."

The Charlevoix Senior Center

After several months of hard work, the kitchen of the Charlevoix Senior Center is ready to serve patrons. The kitchen was expanded and a walk-in refrigerator and freezer were purchased. Pictured is the kitchen after renovations.

has passed all health inspections and open from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Friday. Lunch is served from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and costs $3 for seniors and $4.50 for anyone under 60.

Dinners occur from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. on the second Wednesday and the fourth Tuesday of every month. Dinners range in price from $7 to $8 dollars depending on the menu. The price applies to all ages, but children get half price.

On Feb. 22 the center will feature a chicken pot pie dinner made by Terry Left, owner of the Villager Pub and Terry's Place in Charlevoix.

For more information call the center at 547-5361.

Charlevoix City Council to discuss 2005-2006 budget

Capital improvements will be the big story for the city of Charlevoix as indicated in its proposed budget for 2005-2006.

The proposed city budget for 2005-2006 shows a total of $29.9 million in it, but 57 percent of that is money for capital improvement projects such as the marina and East Park and much of that money is from federal and state grants. Because of this, the budget shows large increases in both revenues and expenditures as compared to the 2004-2005 budget.

"It is capitolly intensive and because of the large projects it kind of distorts the numbers," Charlevoix City Treasurer Rick Brandi said.

In 2004-2005, the city budgeted $16,994,531 in revenues and $16,989,288 in expenditures. However, the 2005-2006 proposed budget shows $30,101,033 in revenues and $29,822,470 in expenditures because of construction projects the city will tackle this year and the grant money it has received for them.

The marina and East Park project is at the top of this list with a cost of $10,570,200. While this debt sits in the city budget, the state Waterway's Commission will be paying for 74 percent of it and the Downtown Development Authority will cover the rest.

The second largest capital project is the airport snow removal building slated to cost $1,954,000. Grants are paying for a large portion of that project too.

Some of the projects in the capital expenditures list are left over from last year's budget. Those include a fiber optic system designs and construction at $428,300. GIS improvements at $47,000 and a consultant for a revenue/services study at $25,000.

The revenue/services study is a committee that is being created of Charlevoix citizens that will examine the city's budget and services to see if there are any services that need to be cut or changed or if we need to find other sources of revenue. Money for a consultant for this group has been set aside, but it is not known at this time if the committee will even want a consultant to help it out.

In addition to a large list of capital projects, the budget also shows a fund transfer from the Infrastructure Fund of $92,000 into the general fund for stabilization.

Brandi said the general fund is short each year by about $100,000 to cover its expenses. Brandi said this transfer from the Infrastructure Fund is only temporary as he is hoping the citizen's committee that will be looking at the budget will help shore it up by giving the city direction on it.

The city's budget is split up into various funds, such as General Fund, Infrastructure Fund, Water Fund, Sewer Fund and such, instead of just one large budget. Brandi said this is because the city tries to operate like a business running several small businesses and needs to know how each one of these areas are doing financially. For example, he said the city needs to know how financially stable to the electric fund is to determine if a raise in electric rates is necessary.

In addition to these areas of the budget, there is an increase in tax bills for city residents of about 2.3 percent of taxable value. This is the limit the city is allowed to increase based upon Proposal A, which is tied to inflation. Brandi said this increase will mean a tax bill jump of $16.72 for a home with a taxable value of $63,631.

Overall Brandi said this year's proposed budget is a conservative look at the city's needs.

"We learn more and more about this budget every year that we do it," he said.

This year, he said the big unknown is what kind of impact the state will have on the city. While the state is trying desperately to balance its budget, Brandi used the same amount of state revenue to the city as the city received last year from the state.

He said, this was because the state has indicated it will be giving cities the same funding as last year and will not make cuts to the funding.

However, Brandi said the city has planned in a way for any cuts in funding. While the proposed city budget is for 2005-2006, the city plans five years out and maintains about 19 percent of its general fund in a fund balance. A fund balance is basically money the city has on hand in the bank, sort of like a savings account for rainy days.

With this way of planning out for five years and maintaining a healthy fund balance, Brandi said the city has more time than others to react to changes in funding from the state or its general tax revenue.

Charlevoix City Council will be hearing from the public on this budget proposal at its 7 p.m. meeting Monday, Feb. 21 at Charlevoix City Hall. There will be a council work session on the budget at 5:30 p.m. that day in city hall.

Annual rose sale

Charlevoix Kiwanis is currently taking orders for its annual rose sale of yellow, red, pink or mixed roses to be delivered to the location of the buyers choice on March 10 and 11.

One dozen long stemmed boxed roses in a choice of colors are available for just $25 per dozen by placing an order prior to Feb. 24.

These roses are made available to Charlevoix Kiwanis by Charlevoix Floral and Kiwanis members will volunteer on March 8 to de-thorn and prepare the roses prior to boxing by other Kiwanis volunteers on March 9. All roses will be delivered on March 10 or 11.

Those with questions or those interested in ordering roses from Kiwanis, should call Suzanne Muma at 547-2979 or John Lachman at 487-0683 with quantity and color of roses and delivery locations. Roses must be ordered by Feb. 24 to guarantee delivery and choice of roses.

Funds from the sale of roses and other fund-raisers are used by Charlevoix Kiwanis to benefit the many Kiwanis projects including the Key Club, Builders Clubs, Boy Scouts, Camp Daggett and other projects benefiting children. If you are interested in Kiwanis membership or finding out more about Kiwanis, contact Kathy Johnson at 582-2715.

Community foundations seeking grant requests

Once again, it's time to put local charitable dollars to work on behalf of the community.

The Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation and the Charlevoix County Community Foundation are inviting nonprofit organizations, educational institutions and municipalities who are in need of funding to submit grant requests in support of their projects.

During the next few months, the community foundations and their Youth Advisory Committees will review grant proposals to help fund health initiatives, community development projects, education, the arts and cultural events, environmental efforts and human service programs. The Youth Advisory Committees, which are made up of representatives from high schools throughout Charlevoix and Emmet counties will award grants to programs that serve children and teens.

Programs chosen for funding must serve residents of Emmet or Charlevoix County and have a nonprofit tax status. The deadline for grant requests is April 1.

Applications are available by calling the community foundation office in your county. All applicants must call and discuss their proposals in advance. Foundation staff are available to offer advice and assistance to organizations interested in submitting a proposal for funding consideration.

Both community foundations are grassroots charitable organizations made up of various funds - all of them established by local donors. Some funds are earmarked for specific causes, and others are open-ended to meet changing needs. The funds are held in permanent endowment, so they can continue to grow

Area hospice in need of more volunteers

Hospice volunteers are loyal, sensitive individuals who give of themselves to insure the mission of hospice.

Committed to excellence, hospice volunteers have profound respect for the specialized needs and comfort of terminally ill patients and their families. Hospice volunteers give their time and talents to provide a broad spectrum of services including household tasks, office assistance, respite, and fundraising.

Hospice of Little Traverse Bay is always looking for committed people to become a part of its Hospice Team. You are invited to attend the hospice volunteer training classes, beginning Feb. 23 through March 23. All sessions will take place from 6-9 p.m. on Wednesday at the Hospice Office.

For more information or to register for the training, please call Karen Carson at (231) 487-4825.

and generate income to enhance the quality of life in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties, now and for generations to come. Together, the community foundations grant-making total amounts to almost $10 million since 1992.

For more information about the grant-making process, establishing a fund or making a gift, please contact the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation at 616 Petoskey Street, Petoskey, MI, 49770, by phone at (231) 348-5820, by web site address at www.petoskey-harborspringsfoundation.org or the Charlevoix County Community Foundation at P.O. Box 718, East Jordan, MI, 49727 or by phone at (231) 536-2440.

Planning commission tables cap size plan

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

During a Feb. 14 public hearing, the Charlevoix City Planning Commission chose to table adopting an amendment to the zoning ordinance that would cap the size of retail buildings.

The decision to table was based on concerns about the ordinance when it relates to current retail buildings in the community.

Harry Golski, of Barron and Golski Attorneys At Law, spoke to the commissioners on behalf of Captain's Corners LLC.

He said Captain's Corners LLC supports the adoption of the ordinance in concept, but is concerned over some issues that were raised through the wording of the ordinance.

As is, the wording may make the present area non-conforming.

"If it became non-conforming it couldn't be replaced if it burned down," Golski said.

The object of the ordinance is to limit the size of individual retailers and not the whole structure, Golski said.

Mark Greyerbiehl, owner of Ace Hardware in Charlevoix and a member of This Is Our Town, said the ordinance is aimed at big box stores and not retailers who wish to come into the area, such as another hardware store.

Other businesses are favored to come to Charlevoix as long as it's not a big box store, because it would dominate the retailers already here.

"We think the city is taking a pro-active stance to take care of the potential problem before it is a problem," he said.

The commissioners voted unanimously to table the decision until City Attorney Jim Young could be contacted about the wording.

The revised ordinance will either be directly voted on or will come before another public hearing depending on the advice of Young.

Charlevoix one of locations scouted for movie

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix just missed out to being in the movies recently over Harbor Springs.

According to Bob Brown, co-founder and managing partner of the Michigan company Purple Rose Studios, Charlevoix was one of the areas being considered as the location for a movie. However, the studio was not able to find a location in the area that fit its needs. Brown founded the company with veteran actor and Michigan resident Jeff Daniels.

"We were looking for a secluded cottage or cabin that had lots of character....we didn't find any that anybody would let us use," he said.

Otto to speak at Greensky

Simon Otto will be coming to Greensky Hill Indian Mission Church to tell Native American legends at 6 p.m., on Saturday, Feb. 26.

Mr. Otto, a local author and storyteller, has told stories several times at Central Michigan University's Storytelling Festival.

In the author's biographical sketch in his book, "Walk In Peace-Legends and Stories of the Michigan Indians," Otto writes that he was born and raised in northern Michigan.

His father was Ojibway and his mother Odawa. Both parents were very interested in preserving their culture. A flow of Indian people passed through their home. These visitors talked of politics and happenings in Indian country. Stories, the latest news and legends were all intermingled.

Otto, as a young boy true to tradition, would sit and listen. He remembered these gatherings in later years and, with encouragement from his wife Mary, he put his memories on paper to share in his book "Walk In Peace-Legends and Stories of the Michigan Indians."

In addition to writing several books, Otto writes a column, "Talking Leaves" which is published the second and fourth Monday of each month in the Petoskey News-Review. Otto is a retired executive coordinator of Little Traverse Bay Band of Odawa Indians.

"An Evening With Simon Otto" is the first event of the newly formed Greensky Hill Men's Group. The evening will start at 6 p.m. with a Swiss steak dinner followed by Native American legends as told by Otto.

Tickets are $10 per person. Tickets can be purchased from men's group members or call Richard Tunison at 547-5009 for information. Greensky Hill Church is located a half mile from the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road on Old US-31 North.

"We probably scouted six to eight locations to make it work."

The cabin needed to be on a big lake, so the company was looking at locations along Lake Michigan. However, while nothing was found in Charlevoix, the company was able to find just such a location in Harbor Springs.

Brown said the inability to find a proper location in Charlevoix was not the fault of anyone. He said he was working closely with Tom Pfeifle of the Weathervane Inn and the Charlevoix Area Convention and Visitor's Bureau.

Brown added he and Pfeifle are friends. The two used to have summer cottages near each other growing up.

Pfeifle said it was very difficult to find a location for the company in Charlevoix. First, he said it was on a very short notice and second, people were concerned about loaning out their homes on such short notice. Pfeifle said basically people were asked to sign a contract allowing filming at their home — in most cases their summer home — on the spot.

"I am sure if we had more time we could have probably come up with something," Pfeifle said.

He added having a movie filmed in Charlevoix would have been a great addition to the economy of the area.

Brown said he would have brought in 55 people to Charlevoix and would have probably spent about a quarter

"This is not the last movie they were working on by any means. They know who we are now."

Tom Pfeifle.

Manager of the Weathervane Inn on area's movie prospects of a million dollars in the area. "The way we look it is like saying, 'Mr. City Leader I would like to drive real slow down main street with a dump truck and throw money out,'" Brown said.

While Charlevoix was ultimately not picked, Pfeifle said it is a plus that the city was even in the running.

"This is not the last movie they are working on at any means. They know who we are now," he said.

Brown said Purple Rose Studios is known for the movies Supersucker and Escanaba in the Moonlight. The movie, called "The Retreat," being shot currently in Harbor Springs is a "low-budget horror" movie about a group of college kids that are loaned a cabin on the lake by one of their professors.

"Scary things happen," Brown said.

Filming is expected to wrap up on March 10 or 11.

Harbor Industries remains a part of the community

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Note: This is the first in a new series about local industry and its impact and importance in Charlevoix.

Harbor Industries Inc., a family owned business, specializes in the manufacturing of custom made point-of-purchase displays that are used throughout the country.

Tim Parker, vice president of operations, said standard parts aren't cut as everything is created to a certain client's specifications.

Back in 1979 or 1980, Parker said a mutual client shared between Harbor Industries Inc. and Freedman Art Craft, who was a competitor, bought out the latter company.

Once the client, Norcross Greeting Cards, owned Freedman Artcraft, they shared business with Harbor Industries Inc. but decided to own their own manufacturing company.

Parker said Norcross Greeting Cards operated their business out of Charlevoix, but soon found owning their own manufacturing company wasn't all they thought it would be. After about a year and a half in the business they sold the business to Harbor Industries Inc.

Soon after Norcross Greeting Cards filed for bankruptcy, Parker said Harbor Industries Inc. was left with an office in Grand Haven, Charlevoix and Los Angeles without a client to support them.

Between 1998 and 1999, Parker said Harbor Industries Inc. underwent some strategic planning for the company and decided leaving Charlevoix was not an option.

"We think that you get a really high quality employee here in northern Michigan," Parker said.

Parker said the employees in the Northern Michigan area value a job more than those downstate who view jobs as a dime a dozen.

"We couldn't see leaving Charlevoix," he said.

With support from the state of Michigan and the city of Charlevoix, Parker said enough money was generated to fund remodeling of the original building that had been there since the 1940s. The first phase was completed in 2000 and the second in 2001.

"The city administration, everyone has been very supportive of us from an economic standpoint," he said.

Parker said the old building's design was more a series of 22 additions.

"It was a series of very small, chopped up rooms," Parker said. "It was difficult for us to get efficient flow."

With the new building that has twice the square footage, the added area helped create a more efficient work place.

Being located in Charlevoix has helped the manufacturing company because of the close proximity to wood processing mills.

Parker said Harbor Industries Inc. gets its particle board from a mill in Gaylord owned by Georgia Pacific.

Charlevoix is the location of the manufacturing plant and Parker said all aspects of manufacturing the product were consolidated in Charlevoix. However, Grand Haven remains as the corporate headquarters for the company and is also where the finance and design teams are located.

Harbor Industries Inc. created between 130 to 150 new jobs in Charlevoix when they started and now employs between 200 and 250 people.

Parker said the consolidation of operations in Charlevoix helped create numerous jobs and at the high point the company employed 350 employees.

"Without the facility it would have been tougher," Parker said. "It allows us to be more effective and efficient at what we do."

Sauer named new pastor at reformed church

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix welcomes a new pastor after a year and a half of searching. Chip Sauer, 36, is the senior pastor at Community Reformed Church and is replacing Larry Grooters, who retired in Sept. 2003 after being pastor for 27 years.

"I hope Community Reformed Church is a place that helps people on their journey to faith," he said. "Especially, a place to see and experience God's love for them."

Sauer began preaching on Feb. 1, but was officially installed as the senior pastor on Feb. 14.

Before coming to Charlevoix, Sauer and his wife, Alisa, and their 16-month-old son, John, lived in the Grand Rapids area.

He was associate pastor for First Reformed Church in Grandville for 13 years where he also served as youth minister and associate minister.

Sauer said he is looking forward to getting to know the people of Community Reformed Church and in the community.

"I hope to continue being a church to the community," he said. "Caring about people in the community and not just those connected to the Chip Sauer is the new senior pastor of Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix. Sauer is pictured with his wife, Alisa, and their 16-month-old son, John.

Sauer knew he was destined to have a career in ministry when he was in high school and a member of Young Life. The group was an outreach program toward disinterested children.

"It changed my life," he said. Sauer said his involvement with the group made him want to continue giving back to and helping others.

Growing up with parents who loved him for who he was and who followed Jesus' teachings, Sauer said helped him through his own hardships in high school.

Through his parents' love and guidance, Sauer said he began to see that God had given him gifts to fulfill a role in ministry.

His favorite part of ministry is connecting to others. "Having a chance to talk to people about what really matters in life," he said.

Sauer is looking forward to experiencing outdoor activities in Charlevoix and what the summer entails.

St. Mary to host parish mission

St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix will be hosting a parish mission from 6:30 to 8 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 20 through Wednesday, Feb. 23.

Fr. Michael Goodavish of Milwaukee, Wis., a missionary for "Food for the Poor" will present four evenings of reflection based on the theme "From Sand to Stone" Building Your Life Upon the True Rock.

Each presentation will be repeated Monday through Wednesday morning at 9:00 a.m. for those unable to attend the evening sessions.

Goodavish is a priest with the Diocese of St. George's-in-Grenada.

Besides his ministry to the youth in Lithuania and Grenada, he also spends his weekends as a speaker for the International Christian Aid Agency, Food for the Poor.

Goodavish places parish missions as one of his favorite ministries, as he says, "They are such a great opportunity to help people expand their horizons of faith living."

During his presentations, Goodavish draws on his vast experiences as a retreat leader, a parish priest, a university campus minister and as a high school chaplain.

He has an amazing ability to bring with him the many lessons from his variety of experiences to those he leads on the journey of reflection and discovery.

Goodavish holds a special place in his heart for the youth of this world and finds extra joy when he sees them in a gathering of the faithful.

A parish mission is a time for the community to pause and reflect on their direction and to deepen their faith.

Right now our country is at war and our service men and women are far from home with no visible end.

Thailand is trying to rebuild from a devastating tsunami that ended thousands of lives without warning.

St. Mary's has child care available at each session and transportation can be arranged for those in need by calling Mary at 547-6652.

A free will offering will be accepted to benefit "Food for the Poor" and each session will include a social time.

For more information, please contact Patty Furtaw at 547-6438.

Boys' basketball team drops out of first place

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders dropped out of first place in the Lake Michigan Conference as well as out of the top ten in Class C with two losses, both on the road, suffering a loss to Grayling, 90-68 before dropping a close one to Traverse City St. Francis, 55-51, last week.

"We had a little heart to heart talk (with the team) after the Grayling game," coach Keith Haske said. "The kids practiced well all week long and gave a good effort (against St. Francis)."

The Rayders have now suffered three losses in a row after 13 straight wins to open the season. Charlevoix hopes that they have a recovery similar to last season when after losing the last three games of the season, the Rayders rallied to make a run to the state finals.

Grayling's diamond press was much too much for the Rayders last Tuesday as the Vikings went on a 18-3 run to close the first quarter with a 24-9 advantage. The score could have been even worse had Grayling converted on its layups more consistently.

The Rayders turned the ball over on each of their first four possessions of the game but Grayling missed three layups and committed a turnover themselves on the other occasion.

Charlevoix scored the first eight points of the second quarter, led by two Cody Crain three-pointers, to cut the lead to 24-17. The Rayders would get no closer the rest of the game. The Vikings had a 15-4 run to close out the first half. They left the court leading 45-27 at the half. Ben Bergmann scored 11 points in the first half but Charlevoix's 24 first half turnovers dug too large of a hole.

After Charlevoix scored the first four points of the second half, Grayling blitzed the Rayders, 26-6 to turn the game into a laughter at 71-37.

Charlevoix finished with 38 turnovers on the night.

"I can't remember ever having that many turnovers," coach Keith Haske said. "We knew what they were going to do and I thought we prepared for it. It's my fault as a coach that we didn't handle it well. We should be able to execute against (the pressure)."

Eddie Waldron finished as high scorer with 14 points. Bergmann scored 11 and Dustin Dibble had nine.

Against St. Francis, the Rayders used a revamped lineup with starters Jared Hunt and Phil Steen out with injuries. Freshman Dustin Dibble made his first varsity start at the point guard position.

Haske was pleased with the Rayder effort even though a victory eluded the squad.

"We played better and actually we probably should have won the game," Haske said. "We had a shot to win with four seconds or so to go, but we took a big step forward in the game. Our young kids stepped up."

Charlevoix raced out to an early advantage, leading 14-5 after the first quarter. The Gladiators bounced back, however, to take a 24-19 halftime advantage.

"We jumped out and played real well in the first quarter," Haske said. "But in the second quarter we went ice cold and they got right back in it."

St. Francis led 39-33 after three quarters.

Bergmann led the Rayders with 18 points, nine rebounds and four steals. Crain added nine points.

Waldron grabbed 11 rebounds while Jake Teuscher corralled nine boards.

The Rayders (13-3 overall, 8-3 conference) close out the regular season with four home games. Charlevoix played host to Boyne City on Tuesday, Feb. 15 but results were unavailable at press time. Kalkaska visits on Friday, Feb. 18.

The Rayders did receive good news on senior point guard Hunt, who has missed the last four games, as an initial MRI report was positive according to Haske. Hunt will return to rehabilitation hoping to return soon to the lineup.

Ski team puts up good scores at Manistee

Despite rainy weather, the Charlevoix boys' and girls' ski teams performed well in the Manistee Invitational last week.

The boys' team finished in second place out of 10 teams, while the girls' team finished in third place out of 10 teams. Benzie Central lead the boys' field and Traverse City St. Francis lead the girls'.

In the slalom, the boys' team finished second overall, with Benzie taking first.

In the giant slalom the team finished fourth, with Elk Rapids taking first. The girls' team finished sixth in the slalom, with Traverse City St. Francis taking first, and took a fourth place finish in the giant slalom, with Traverse City St. Francis taking first again.

Individual results for the boys' team in the slalom were: Andrew Mallory in sixth with a time of 57.02 seconds; Mac Brennan in ninth with a time of 57.40 seconds; Cameron Attee in sixteenth with a time of 1 minute; Nic Williams in thirtieth with a time of 1 minute, 3.76 seconds; Billy Brodin in thirtieth with a time of 1 minute, 7.20 seconds; Geoff Baier in fortieth with a time of 1 minute, 7.6 seconds.

Individual results for the girls' team in the giant slalom were: Mallory in fourth with a time of 42.37 seconds; Brennan in eighth with a time of 43.05 seconds; Attee in twenty-second with a time of 44.72 seconds; Williams in forty-second with a time of 47.56 seconds; Baier in forty-fourth with a time of 48 seconds; Logan Priess in forty-fifth with a time of 48.17 seconds.

Individual results for the girls' team in the slalom were: Michelle Fritsch in third with a time of 56.54 seconds; Elizabeth Hasseld in twenty-third with a time of 1 minute, 5.26 seconds; Kristin Dupuis in twenty-eighth with a time of 1 minute, 8.42 seconds; Sarah Lorne in thirty-fifth with a time of 1 minute, 12.76 seconds; Kelsey Poineau in thirty-eighth with a time of 1 minute, 19.64 seconds.

Individual results for the girls' team in the giant slalom were: Katherine Rowley in fourth with a time of 43.46 seconds; Fritsch in ninth with a time of 44.72 seconds; Poineau in eighteenth with a time of 46.14 seconds; Dupuis in thirty-fourth with a time of 50.51 seconds; Hasseld in thirty-eighth with a time of 51.19 seconds; Stephanie Poindexter in forty-fourth with a time of 54.30 seconds.

Library to have winter book sale

The Charlevoix Public Library will be having a Winter Book Sale in order to help raise funding for new books and materials for the children's section in the new library.

Mary Anne Chew, president of the library board of trustees, said there are hundreds of books to choose from in both hardback and paperback form.

Chew said the library would like to thank the community for the book donations over the years.

The books vary in price. There are paperback books that are two for .25 cents and some hardback books for .50 cents. There are some books that are $2.

The Winter Book Sale will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Feb. 18 and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Feb. 19 in the lower level of the library.

For more information call the library at 547-2651.

Wrestling team takes second at last tourney

In the final tournament of the season before Division IV Districts, the Charlevoix Rayders showed strength and determination as they finished the day with a three-way tie for first place at the Petoskey B Invitational on Saturday, Feb. 12.

The Rayders went 4-1 along with Mancelona and Kalkaska. A tie breaker, based on each team's accumulative team points, resulted in a very close second place for Charlevoix.

Mancelona was awarded first place, outscoring Charlevoix by only two points. The remaining Team results were: Kalkaska (third), Petoskey B (fourth), Kingsley (fifth) and Frankfort (sixth).

"This team really wrestled their hearts out today," said Coach Craig Golovich.

In the final match of the day against the tournament's unbeaten Mancelona team, excitement and excellent wrestling filled the gymnasium.

As coaches strategically placed their wrestlers, several weight classes scored key victories by decision, with the Rayders only posting three pins.

One of those victories went to the "Wrestler of the Day," Nathan Triplehorn, who won by decision against Mancelona's Josh Ponder in the 215 weight class. Another came in the last weight class of the match, with Spencer Hankins pinning his opponent to win against the first place Mancelona team with a score of 37-36.

Golovich said, "I'm proud of all these guys today." Not only did Charlevoix bring home the second place trophy, but Jcd Daman, Jeff Golovich and Jaimen Waha were each awarded medals for going undefeated for the day.

The results for the rest of the team included: (4-1) Woody Nitchman, Matt Novotny, Shannon Gillespie, (3-2) Spencer Hankins, Nathan Triplehorn, (2-3) Nick Gotshall, RJ Moore, Drew Klooster, (2-2) Scott Sladek, and (1-4) Chris Bartling.

Golovich and Coach Gould want to thank all the family members and fans of the team for such overwhelming support this season.

Charlevoix travels to Onaway for the team districts on Feb. 17 and then to Manton on Feb. 19 for individual districts.

Midget hockey team gets runner-up

Boyne Area Hockey's Paul Bunyan Lanes Midget team captured the runner-up trophy in the District 7 BB playoffs in Mackinaw City over the past weekend, winning four straight games before falling in the finals.

Their first draw was Sault Ste. Marie on Feb. 11. Eli Barys opened the scoring at 9:01 with a patient shot that slid in just inside the post.

Two minutes later, the Soo tied it up, but Ryan Paridee, assisted by John Miller, put Boyne ahead. Miller hit the top corner of the net with a Barys pass, then Troy Scarbrough scored with assists from Britt King and Josh Aown.

Paridee put another on the scoreboard with an assist from Matt Kopke, then Barys took passes from Paridee and Will Brown, kicked it off his skate to his stick, and scored the final Boyne goal in the 6-4 win.

Nick Ferree made several huge plays in goal, ending up with 15 saves. Boyne put 23 shots on net.

Their next matchup was with Gaylord on Feb. 12. Gear Robinson rocketed in a one timer from the top of the circle for the only goal in the first period. John Miller backhanded in a shorthanded goal with assists from Barys and Paridee, and Miller scored again with another Barys pass.

Gaylord scored on a power play, but Paridee, Russell Williams, and Scarbrough hit the net with assists from Miller, Williams, and two from Ryan Hennessy. Hennessy scored the first and last goals of the third period, with assists from Scarbrough, on both, and Williams on the first. Kopke also scored with a blistering slap shot from the blue line.

Williams earned a playmaker with 3 assists in the game. Boyne dominated both ends of the ice, pounding the Gaylord goalie with 42 shots, while netminder Ferree's defense left him with only 8 shots to stave off. The final score was 9-2.

Later on Feb. 12, the boys in blue met St. Ignace, last year's district champions. Barys, with assists from Paridee and Kopke, put the first goal on the scoreboard. The Saints put up two, then Scarbrough scored on a power play with assists from Hennessy to tie the game. The Saints ran up three more before Paridee hit the net with assists from Barys and John Miller. St. Ignace scored twice more to make it 3-7 halfway through the third period.

Boyne showed their never-say-die attitude, as Kopke sent a bullet in from the blue line, Miller hit with a Barys assist, and Kopke earned a hat trick with two more blistering slapshots from just inside the blue line, with assists from Will Brown, Scarbrough and Paridee. With a 7-7 tie, Boyne skated short handed the last 2 minutes but effectively killed the penalty to take the game to a heartpounding tie. Boyne's patient and intelligent passing, dogged defense and total teamwork put 35 shots on net. Ferree was between the pipes and took 18 shots.

At the end of the game, Boyne was their division winner.

Boyne met Mackinaw City in the semifinal round Sunday morning and dominated, winning 10-3. Hennessy scored a hat trick plus with four goals, and Barys scored two. Gabe Korthase, Scarbrough, Kopke and Williams each netted one. Assists were credited to Barys, JP Fiedorek, Brown, Kopke, Paridee and Isaac Krey.

Miller and Aown gave 2 assists and Darren Looze earned a playmaker plus with 4. Ferree was between the pipes.

In the final round, Boyne played Alpena, and despite playing with great passion lost 6-1. Virtually the entire team had been battling illness all weekend and the pace of the previous games caught up with them.

Hennessy scored the lone goal unassisted. Ferree was in goal.

City residents could see increase in electric bill

BUDGET

ric, water or sewer system, the city will have cash on hand from those very funds.

For example, with the increase in the sewer rate, Wiesner said there is a good chance that the sewer fund will be able to pay for any needed future expansions by itself, without having to go to other funds or bonds.

In addition to these increases in rates, Charlevoix residents will see other increases as well at Mount McSaubia, the day camp, the city golf course, the boat launch and in the docking rates.

According to the proposed city budget, a daily lift ticket at Mount McSaubia will increase from $8 to $10, downhill ski rental will increase from $7 to $8 and a season pass will increase from $75 to $80, among others.

The Ferry boat launch will have a rate of $100 for ten uses of it and the marina docking rates will increase by 5 percent in all areas.

Charlevoix City Council will be hearing from the public on the proposed city budget at 7 p.m., Monday, Feb. 21 at the Charlevoix City Hall. There will be a council work session on the budget at 5:30 p.m., that day, in city hall.

Official Notice

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARINGS REGARDING THE ADOPTION OF PROPOSED ORDINANCES TO AMEND THE DEVELOPMENT AND TAX INCREMENT FINANCING PLAN OF THE CHARLEVOIX DOWNTOWN DEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY

PLEASE TAKE NOTE that the Charlevoix City Council will hold a public hearing on proposed ordinances to amend the Development Plan and Tax Increment Financing Plan of the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority on Monday, March 7, 2005 at 7:00 p.m., in the Charlevoix City Hall Council Chambers located at 210 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan.

The purpose of the public hearings are to consider ordinances which amend Section 1.302 of Chapter 7, Title I of the Charlevoix City Code to amend the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority's Development Plan and Tax Increment Financing Plan. The proposed amendments do not result in the relocation of any families or individuals from the Development Area.

The first public hearing will be to consider the Fourth Amendment, which will extend the duration of the Plan through December 31, 2026 and will add the following items to the DDA's Development Plan:

1. Marina Construction - The project includes obstructions and removals along the bulkhead, shore sheeting the bulkhead, four floating pier systems extending into Round Lake, miscellaneous shopper dock construction on the north and south end of the project, construction of electric, water and sanitary sewer lines to service the docks, and supporting tie backs for shore sheeting. The Marina extends from Antrim Street to a point approximately 200 feet north of the Clinton Street right-of-way along the shores of Round Lake and extends into Round Lake.

2. East Park Construction - The project includes numerous removals in the site area, including a section of the street end to relocate the street, reconstruction of the street area with storm systems, curb and gutter and bituminous paving, numerous walkways with concrete pavement, special pavement and brick pavement, construction of a fish pond, an ice skating infrastructure on or near the Harbormaster's office, site railings, irrigation system, numerous park amenities, such as benches, trash receptacles, etc, site lighting and all other elements normally included in a park system of this type. East Park is between Antrim Street, Clinton Street, Bridge Street and Round Lake in downtown Charlevoix.

3. Harbormaster Building - The Harbormaster building will include facilities to house the Marina staff, amenities for the boaters; public restrooms, and a deck on top of the building for public viewing. The Harbormaster building will be placed at the foot of Clinton Street between the street ending and Round Lake.

4. Storm Sewer Construction - The project includes 48 - 60" diameter pipe in Mason Street and a 24" diameter pipe in Clinton Street, along with associated manholes etc. Storm sewers are proposed in Mason Street from Round Lake to the west side of Bridge Street and in Clinton Street from the Round Lake to approximately one-half way to Bridge Street.

5. Off-Site Parking - The parking lot is proposed with curb and gutter construction, bituminous surface along with appropriate drainage systems and landscaped islands. The parking area is located in the southeast corner of the old Middle School site on Mason Street.

6. Personnel - The Downtown Development Authority (DDA) may hire personnel to promote the retail, economic and business advantages of the downtown area and to perform such other services as are authorized by Act 197 of 1975, as amended (the Act), or as may be specified by the DDA.

7. Financing of Projects and Personnel - Personnel that may be hired by the DDA will be paid out of the general revenue of the DDA which comes from "captured millage" and millage that is specifically assessed for the DDA. The other projects that are described in this amendment will be financed, in whole or in part, by the issuance of bonds as authorized by law. Installment contracts, as authorized by Act 99 of 1933, may also be used. As noted earlier, some projects may be funded in part by state grants as well. Regarding bonding, the DDA's financial consultant and bond counsel will recommend the type of bonds to be issued and terms of such bonds. The preliminary estimate of bonding potential is $6.4 million. Until firm project cost estimates can be obtained, it should be assumed that the total amount of bonds to be issued will be the maximum amount that is authorized by law. It is anticipated that bonds will be issued in 2005. The DDA has successfully issued bonds for past projects. Based on information obtained from the financial consultant regarding the likely "life" of the bonds, it is recommended that the Development and Tax Increment Financing Plan be extended through December 31, 2026.

8. Removal of Existing Band Shell, Fish Pond and Restroom Building; construction of a new pavilion/performance building, with amphitheater seating. This project is specifically excluded from this Fourth Amendment to the Plan. Thus, the DDA shall not undertake this project unless authorized by a later amendment to the Plan.

A second public hearing will be held to consider a Fifth Amendment to the DDA's Development Plan and Tax Increment Financing Plan, which will add the following item:

1. Removal of Existing Band Shell, Fish Pond and Restroom Building; construction of a new pavilion/performance building, with amphitheater seating - The project includes the removal of the current band shell, fish pond and restroom facility. The construction of a new pavilion/performance building, including public restrooms, amphitheater seating for the pavilion.

A copy of the Development and Tax Increment Financing Plan of the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority with maps and copies of the proposed amendments to the plan are available for public inspection, Monday through Friday, at the office of the Charlevoix City Clerk, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan during regular business hours. All aspects of the proposed amendments to the Development and Tax Increment Financing Plan, as well as the entire Plan of the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority will be open for discussion at the public hearing.

The public is invited to attend the public hearings and present its comments on the proposed ordinances. The public may also submit its written comments on the proposed amendments at the public hearings or by sending them to the Charlevoix City Clerk at the above address prior to the public hearings.

Date: January 27, 2005

Carol Ochs, City Clerk

Memories of old school sought

Do you have a memory of the old Charlevoix Middle School?

Were you on a basketball team? Did you decorate for a dance? Was your diploma handed to you on the stage? Did you learn to cook? Ever spend any time in the office? Maybe you have a program, some ticket stubs, a class list, a birthday party photo.

Interesting anecdotes, old library cards, memories of librarians or teachers, a book that was never returned, or photos of special events are all needed. If you attended school in the 1927 building on Clinton and Grant Streets or you remember the old Carnegie library, you could help.

The Michigan Room Committee of the Charlevoix Public Library is gathering information, photos, and memorabilia from 1927-2002 for an historical scrapbook to be kept in the new library. Please consider donating or having copied any items which you find that could be included in this project.

Call the library at 547-2651 or just stop by 109 Clinton Street to add your memories to this project.

SCRAPBOOK

The troubles of deliverymen in the winter

Marilyn Boss
'Days gone by'

In the 1940s, we used to have a great deal of snow in the winter.

The city had only one truck to plow the streets, which was a big 1936 Federal, driven by Leo Allard, the Street Commissioner. He had to plow all the streets himself. Leo was very proud of his truck. He parked the truck in the city garage, located where the middle school on Garfield is now located. In the summer, when he went on vacation, he would take a piece of chalk and make a mark on the tire and on the floor to make sure nobody drove it. A couple of the city crew jacked up the truck and turned the wheels to play a joke on him. Of course, these stories always went all over town, making the statement "Never a dull moment" true.

My dad, Glenroy Ikens, was the Standard Oil distributor in Charlevoix. His oil delivery truck was a 1932 Ford V8, which was the first year for the V8 engine.

Dad remembers my dad attempting to get into Annie Saltonstall's yard at 408 Mason Street to deliver oil for her furnace. Most people at the time burned coal or wood, but oil furnaces were becoming popular. He always removed the outside dual wheel on the truck for the winter, and had a set of chains on the inside wheels, so he could drive through the deep snow. He drove to Annie's house and got the truck square with the house, and attempted to go through the very deep snow that was plowed up. He had to reach the oil filler pipe in the side yard.

The oil tank itself was in the basement. He put the truck in creeper gear, and hit the snow, backed up several times, making a path to the filler pipe. The sidewalk in those days was plowed with Hooker's horses. They pulled a V horse plow early in the morning to clear them, but they never got close to the bottom of the walk, as there would be 18 inches of packed snow where everyone walked, including the horses.

The snow in the yard would be 3 feet deep, and all the deliverymen had to navigate this snow, unless the homeowner shoveled the drive by hand, which was rare.

Once dad's truck got close to the filler pipe, he had to fill a 5 gallon pail by gravity feed from the back of the truck. Then he had to wade in the snow to pour it through a big funnel which he placed in the filler pipe. This made for many trips to fill the tank. When he filled the pail, he had to move a round clicker on the inside of the back compartment to keep track of the number of pails it took.

Charlie Heise, who was a coal and wood dealer had to do the same thing. Dale remembers George Sarasin, Milcs Russell and Vern Jones, who were deliverymen for Charlie. They were always grinding their way through the deep snow to get to someone's woodshed at the back of their house. They had to carry heavy canvas coal sacks on their backs, and the closer they could come to the shed, the easier it was for them.

Charlie had a 29 Model A Ford as one delivery truck and a 1937 Chevy. One day, the delivery boys got in an argument over which truck was the most powerful.

Charlie had them tie the trucks back to back in the middle of the street, and go to it. They put a couple tons of coal on each one to give them traction. Dale doesn't remember which truck won, but is provided entertainment for those who gathered around.

Dale got a new 1948 stand-up drive Divo milk delivery truck. He remembers going to Montgomery Wards in Petoskey to buy a set of chains for it, as it was impossible to deliver milk door to door without a good set of chains. Most every day in the winter, he would have to double load his truck so he would have enough weight to get back to the dairy.

Charlie Marshall, the fire chief, who lived upstairs in the city hall, got a quart of milk every other day, and many early mornings, Dale would turn his truck into the fire engine drive before it was shoveled, and step out into deep snow to take the milk to the upstairs door. Both fire engines sat in the garage with chains on at all times, ready to go.

Those were the ways of life then, and everyone just did what had to be done.

Actors put on great show at competition

Gene Foley, 17, a four-year member of the performing arts, portrayed Rapunzel's Prince and said he enjoys all the goofy, mixed up fairy tales.

Foley said he was looking forward to regionals to meet new people that could one day help him with his acting career. He also enjoys competing.

"I do like the high sense of competition and at any moment getting knocked out of the ring," he said.

Foley said theater is different than film as actors have to constantly stay on top of the scene because once on stage, no one is going to call cut and allow the scene to be redone.

Anna Taylor, 17, a four-year member of the performing arts, portrayed 12-year-old Red Riding Hood.

"I think it's a fun experience to play someone that's younger," she said.

Taylor said "Into the Woods" is very funny, which is one aspect she enjoys.

Having the chance for state is something that Taylor said she was looking forward to going into the competition.

Suzanne Curtis, 17, a three-year member of the performing arts, portrayed Jack's mother.

Her character called for her to be on stage with a cow, which she said added humor to the already funny scenes.

This year, Curtis said the group has a lot of strong vocalists.

"The music is really challenging, but when we get it right it's good," she said.

Even though they didn't place for the state finals, the Charlevoix High School performing arts department did come home with three awards. They received Excellent Set Design, Excellent Costume Design and Anne Strawbridge received the Superior Acting Award.

Curtis said she received an award for set design at district as well.

Ford said now the group will concentrate on preparing to show the public their version of "Into the Woods."

The performances will be at 7 p.m. on March 5 and 2:30 p.m. on March 6. Tickets cost $7 for adults and $5 for seniors, students and children. The estimated length of the play is about 90 minutes.

Rate increases questioned

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix City Council heard from residents on the city's latest budget proposal, with much of the discussion — sometimes heated — centered around proposed rate changes for water, sewer and electrical services.

"I am here to protest raising the electric, water and sewer rates. A lot of people cannot afford a rise in anything now," said Charlevoix resident Pat Dillon.

However, Charlevoix City Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson responded that the proposed increases in the electric, water and sewer rates are not meant to break anyone in the city.

"Costs have gone up," he said. "Maybe that is our own fault. Maybe we should have been doing a .5 percent increase each year."

In a work session before the city council meeting, council focused on the issue of the electric rates. According to Mark Beauchamp of Utility Financial Solutions, if the electric rates are Voters will decide who they want as members of the Charlevoix Public School Board on May 3.

School board candidates seeking two open seats on board are incumbent Barney Way, incumbent Scott Boss, Dean Spenceley and Christine Michaud.

Incumbent Way, 44, has sat on the board for the past eight years and is looking forward to hopefully serving another four years.

"I feel I can still offer some expertise in some areas for the district," he said.

By expertise, Way said he has served on the Building and Grounds committee and can continue to help maintain the buildings and facilities. Way said he talks to people to hear what they want done and brings that information to the board level.

"I have an ear to the community," he said.

Way has been a part of the community most of his life and has five children, four of which are still in the school system. Way himself graduated from Charlevoix High School and runs Dry Harbour Motor Sports in Charlevoix with his business partner Boss.

Area women trying to help soldiers overseas

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Since announcing the formation of their military support group in the Charlevoix Courier, the newspaper's own Courtney Pace and Valerie Pedersen have seen their idea blossom into a success.

Last fall, Charlevoix Courier Staff Writer Courtney Pace decided she wanted to do something for the United States troops serving overseas. So she announced in a column in the Courier that she would be teaming up with Courier Classifieds Manager Valerie Pedersen to form the group Operation Soldier Awareness and Aid Packages.

"If I make just one soldier smile then the time and money spent on it was worth it. I want soldiers to feel appreciated and know they are appreciated," Pace said.

Pedersen added, "It's about giving back to the soldiers that are putting themselves on the line and letting them know we care. Especially those on the fringe of not having someone write or send a care package that might make the difference."

The organization basically collects items for soldiers to use or give to the children of Iraq and sends them out to soldiers group members know serving overseas. The soldier they sent the items to then distributes the items among the other soldiers for their use.

The purpose of sending it to a specific soldier, Pace said, is because people can not just send out boxes marked "any soldier" on it. You can still send out packages to soldiers that you know if the package is addressed to them.

Pace and Pedersen use soldiers they know serving overseas as a way of getting items to soldiers that may not be getting care packages or letters from home. Pace has a friend serving in the Middle East and Pedersen's son, Sean Roberts, serves in the Middle East. Plus, they have connections with many other families in the area with sons or daughters serving overseas.

And the plan is working beautifully, according to Pace and Pedersen.

From starting with a simple idea in a newspaper column, the program has grown to having $210 in monetary contributions and collection boxes located at the LaCroft Condominiums, the Charlevoix County Veteran's Affairs Office in the Charlevoix County Building, the Charlevoix Courier office, Coast Guard Station Charlevoix, the Weathervane restaurant, The American Red Cross in Petoskey, the American Legion in Charlevoix and the Coast Guard buoy tender Acacia.

So far, two boxes have already been sent out. Pace said a woman in Midland who heard about her and Pedersen's program contacted her and put together her own box with toothpaste, eyedrops, granola bars and other items the soldiers might need. It was sent out to a soldier serving overseas for his use and distribution among the other soldiers.

The other box that was sent out contained clothing for the Iraqi children. This was sent to a soldier serving in Iraq that is part of a program that supplies clothing to the children of the country.

Pace said the object is to keep this program going until "every soldier is home." She stressed this is not a religious or political organization and it does not matter what your feelings on the war are.

"Personally, I do not support the war. But you can support the troops and not support the war," she said.

Pace added the feedback has been very positive.

"Most people are very supportive and think it is a great way to support the troops," she said.

Organization would like letters for troops

Courtney Pace

Staff writer

We all remember the time when we were away from home and a letter came addressed to us. The feeling of knowing the ones back home were thinking about you meant a lot, but staying connected during a war is even more important.

Letters connect people who are intimately involved such as family members and those who are less involved such as friends and acquaintances. However, no matter who sends the letter, we all enjoy receiving one.

Operation Soldier Awareness and Aid Packages, OSAAP, is asking for people in the community to sit down and create a hand-written letter, card or note of encouragement that will be sent to our service people overseas.

OSAAP was created by Valerie Pedersen and me because we wanted a way to help support our troops during this trying time. Our organization has slowly gathered momentum and we have received much appreciated donations from the community.

We aim to send packages filled with needed supplies, snacks and letters to our local service people who in turn will pass items out to members of their units. Then when our people come home, they will find a replacement so we can keep the support going until all of our heroes are home safe.

Letters are the most important item we're going to send as it's something a soldier can carry with them and re-read during times when chaos seems to rule.

I have talked with several area veterans and current service people. Something personal such as a letter from home is what really counts when one is in a hostile situation away from the ones they love.

One veteran told me how he appreciated receiving a letter from a young girl in his community. He didn't know her, but when he returned he went to visit her and thank her for the support.

No matter one's age or experience, a letter can touch someone who is far away and feeling disconnected from their country, family and loved ones.

A Vietnam veteran said nothing was more important than receiving a personal item from home. He said the simplicity of a letter carries more weight than anyone will ever know for someone who is involved in a war.

A letter can be a few words with a signature or several pages detailing one's life. It doesn't matter how long or the presentation it comes in, what matters is that it's a heartfelt message.

OSAAP is currently working with local schools and both the Coast Guard Cutter ACACIA and Coast Guard Station Charlevoix to help generate letters for our troops.

There isn't a time frame in which to write the letters, but we're asking that they keep coming along with any other donated items.

OSAAP is here for our troops until they're all home, no matter where their home may be.

Wars and conflicts hit home when one personally knows someone involved, but it's important to keep that support up even if you're sending something to a stranger.

However, we're not strangers as we're all human beings and citizens of the United States. Our brave service men and women are not going through this alone.

Yes, they're on the front lines seeing things no one should see, but we're all involved. Whether we know someone or are just unsure about the fate of the United States position with other countries, we're all here together.

Letters and other donations such as feminine hygiene products, face wash, insect repellent wipes, eye drops, dried fruit, nuts and Tang or other such drinks are also welcome.

Donation boxes are located at the Charlevoix Courier, the Charlevoix Public Library, the Charlevoix County Veteran's Affairs Office, the Coast Guard Station Charlevoix, the Coast Guard Cutter ACACIA, Stafford's Weathervane and the American Legion in Charlevoix.

If anyone has an address for someone overseas and would like them to become a contact for OSAAP please contact me at 675-7394 or e-mail me at CourtneyEPace@hotmail.com or contact Valerie Pedersen at 547-2968 or e-mail her at vpedersen@charlevoix-courier.com.

Addresses aren't given out and are solely used for the purpose of OSAAP and sending items and letters to the service people overseas.

Potatoes were a large part of American, world history

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

Lent is upon us, and if you pay any attention to the old ideas about when things should be planted, you may have already begun your plans to put potatoes into the ground on Good Friday.

Sweet Potatoes do not do well in our northern climate, but what is commonly called the Irish potato is in nearly every garden. There is no good botanical or horticultural reason for planting potatoes on a day that fluctuates in time with a religious holiday, but such considerations have not stopped people from doing just that for centuries.

Potatoes were cultivated in Peru at least 2,500 years ago, and the planting of them was ritualized there as well, often being accompanied by sacrifices of some sort, including dipping the to-be-planted tubers in blood, which may explain the relationship to Good Friday in Christian countries. Potatoes did not arrive in Europe until after 1500.

Acceptance of potatoes as food by Europeans was slow at first. There was the problem of potatoes being closely related to plants used by witches (nightshade, mandrake and datura) and the possibility according to some experts at the time that such potentially harmful vegetables might even "be used for exciting Venus." Almost all plants new to some part of the world have been accused in those places of being poisonous, being aphrodisiacs or both. Apparently we humans are not all together comfortable with new things, whatever they might be.

The final success of potatoes as human food in Europe was driven by economic forces. Land owners recognized that their peasants or serfs could be fed with less effort and less land if they ate potatoes. An acre of not very good land could produce enough potatoes to feed a peasant family and their livestock, while it required acres of wheat made into pasta or bread to accomplish the same thing. Potatoes needed only to be boiled and eaten.

Potatoes once feared now enjoyed

Population growth among the peasants was dramatic with the potato as their primary food. The total population of Europe nearly doubled in the century from 1700 to 1800, almost all of the increase fueled by potatoes as a major human food. Of course it couldn't continue. In the mid-1800s a blight disease of the potato decimated the crop, especially in Ireland. Three million people starved to death in the decade following 1845.

Death and emigration halved the population of Ireland, with most of the migrants coming to Canada and the United States. If you can claim Irish ancestry dating back a century or more, it is almost certain that your ancestors came to America fleeing the starvation and misery brought on by the potato blight. America and the world were changed forever by overdependence on a single source of food and the microscopic fungus that caused the blight.

The potatoes available for your present-day garden reflect a long and complex history. They come in all colors (blue, red, pink, yellow, even brown) and have been selected for unique shape and for sizes that range from mammoth to mini. Most of the present-day varieties have some inherited resistance to that terrible blight and continue to provide us with tasty, inexpensive and nutritious food.

Memories of the great depression and our family's dependence on potatoes at every meal have dulled my appreciation for most potato recipes. But given all the attractive colors, I do enjoy making a red, white and blue potato salad for the Fourth of July, and now and then a simple boiled potato can serve to remind me of all that botanical history.

Letters to the editor

Article response

Editor:

I am concerned about statements made in the Jan. 5, 2005 issue of the Courier by DDA member John Yaroch in the hopes of creating "a thriving business district in the city."

To imply that "when we eliminated the Parkside from the downtown we eliminated 200 to 400 people from coming to town for waterside dining" is absurd. At the time the city purchased the Parkside building, it hadn't functioned as a restaurant for two seasons. It had a rich and colorful history whose time had passed. It was a long and narrow building, with only a few tables in the back having a view. It was open only three months of the year.

The 200 to 400 diners did not do a u-turn and leave Charlevoix when they discovered the restaurant was no longer there. I suspect they found dining at some of the other fine restaurants in town who were pleased to have their business. Furthermore, if you talked to the boaters who had to dock behind the restaurant, they would tell you that they do not miss the noise and the aroma from the dumpsters that the restaurant generated.

The decline of the downtown business district is far more complex than focusing on the closing of one restaurant that was open for 90 days of the year.

Column rebuttal

Editor:

I have several problems with your opinion of Feb. 9, 2005. As I'm only allowed 450 words I am not sure I can cover this in one letter and will follow up later. First I would like to address the "surplus." Yes, we have a surplus, but in what form? The entire surplus is added to the general fund then the government issues bonds (IOUs). As someone said, this is like funding your IRA or 401k with IOUs. So in 2019, which is only 14 years away, the government will have to start to cover the extra outlay (IOUs). Where do you think the money to cover this is going to come from? It will come from tax increases, spending cuts, more borrowing at higher interest rates or raising the age that you can receive social security. So your journey hits some rough water in a relatively short time.

I don't know about you but if I'm promised 100 percent of something, then I expect it. So again when we hit 2052 (only 47 years from now) the government has to come up with more money. I won't have to worry about this but my children and grandchildren will. Over the last 40 years we have "fixed" the Social Security three or four times and it's not "fixed" yet. Our president, Mr. Bush, is trying to "fix" Social Security once and for all.

Now I will address the fixes that you listed. Lifting the cap to $90,000 is at best only a short-term fix. Social Security is set up in a way that the more you put in the more you get out. This means that sometime down the line Social Security will have to put out more money to the people who have paid more in. This is one of those problems we have now. You bring in more money but then sooner or later you have to pay more out.

A net neutral effect of personal accounts is only true if you only look at your monthly return and assume that you only get 3 percent interest on your private account. It doesn't take into account that you will have the principle in an account that you can pass on to your family. The Bush administration is using a 6.5 percent growth rate of return because that is what the stock market has returned over the last 45 years. In fact the stock market has returned almost 7 percent over its lifetime.

This was very easy to verify. Yes, we will have to borrow to start this but we will have to borrow to pay back the IOUs anyway so I see no difference. More later.

Don't waste money

Editor:

Amen Ev Wucjik! I have to admit that I was for the new band shell in the beginning, however I have changed my mind for the following reasons (besides those stated by Ev). Our schools have no money and the city is going to increase the cost of some utilities, McSaba Ski Hill and others. Does this sound like an economy that needs frivolous spending? We should make sure the docks/seawalls are in good repair — maybe add a few. We should fix up the existing band shell and possibly purchase a sound system. We should either eliminate the fish pond or move it to another location. Visitors come to Charlevoix because they love it the way it is; not because they want it to be another Traverse City. I realize that some of the money being spent is from grants, but it's still money and I can't believe there isn't some way to divert it to real, existing needs (like schools).

Obituaries

Darrell James Anthony: June 7, 1959 - Feb. 19, 2005

Darrell James Anthony, 45, of Beaver Island, died Saturday, Feb. 19, 2005, on Beaver Island.

He was born June 7, 1959, in South Haven, the son of Donald Anthony and Alvina Cornstalk.

He attended Holy Childhood School in Harbor Springs, and L.C. Mohr High School in South Haven.

Darrell worked as a commercial fisherman. He loved music, playing his guitar and drawing cartoons. He especially loved a nice sunny day.

Darrell is survived by his son, Donald Amos Anthony, III, of Mancelona; mother, Alvina Cornstalk of Beaver Island; father, Donald (Vicki) Anthony of Saint Ignace; brother, Brian J. (Diane) Anthony of East Jordan; sisters, Donzell S. Anthony of Beaver Island, Teresa M. (Fabian "Sonny") Wabanimkee of South Haven and Dancen A. Anthony of East Jordan.

His brother, Donald Amos Anthony, II, preceded him in death in 1977. A funeral was given Monday, Feb. 21, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix, with the Rev. Francis Partridge officiating.

Burial will be in Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Library digitizes Courier obituaries for its users

The Charlevoix Public Library and the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library announce the availability of digitized local obituaries.

The Michigan Room Committee of the Friends of the Charlevoix Library are adding one obituary at a time to a database, as well as scanning each obituary. The obituary is searchable by date and name as well as relatives and nicknames.

The actual obituary is also scanned and available to be viewed and printed.

One of the most popular reference questions at the library is for obituary lookups.

"Currently we have a volunteer who handles these questions, but many times it takes digging, searching and lots of patience to find the correct obituary," said Val Meyerson, Library Director.

Having the ability for a quick search will provide an ease of access that will benefit everyone, from library staff to their world-wide patron base.

Currently there are seven years of obituaries available, 1998 - 2004. The library staff work at adding the current year's obituaries and the Friends of the Library are working backwards to add the older papers.

The library owns copies of all the Charlevoix Courier newspapers back to its inception in 1908, as well as the Charlevoix Sentinel from 1920-1936 and the Charlevoix Journal from 1883 to 1890.

"We realize this is a long-term project, but felt it would truly benefit all our patrons for many, many years," said Cynthia Postmus, Michigan Room Committee member.

To access the obituary database, visit the Charlevoix Library web site at www.charlevoixlibrary.org and look on the header for the link. If you need any assistance searching, contact the Charlevoix Library at (231) 547-2651.

Students learn about struggles of blacks

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

In honor of Black History Month, several area teachers informed their students through projects, pictures and participation.

Sara Jonker, a second grade teacher at Charlevoix Elementary School, said her students read biographies on famous African Americans.

"It's their first introduction to how African Americans were treated badly," she said.

After reading their chosen biographies, Jonker said her students created timelines from the information with the help of their parents.

Jonker said the timeline highlighted only the important events in the person's life, which helped the students determine what is important in someone's life and what isn't.

From the information they gathered in the timelines, Jonker said her students then wrote their own biographies of the person.

They will then present the information to their class with the help of visual aids, such as one student who brought in peanut butter for her presentation on George Washington Carver.

Jonker said the project shows the students how diversity is important and is also one of the first big reports they do in school.

During Martin Luther King Jr. Day on Jan. 17, Jonker said her class really got into the information she provided.

She said they looked at pictures and were taught how King fought for equal rights for everyone and not just African Americans.

Jonker isn't alone as Linda Leavitt, a third grade teacher at St. Mary School, did book reports to honor Black History Month.

Leavitt said she does the project every year and also talks to her students about the injustice African Americans faced.

"They're just beginning to become aware," she said. "It's an eye opener for them."

Charlevoix High School also honored Black History Month.

Betty Henne, library media director of Charlevoix High School, said the media center displayed a bulletin board honoring 25 African Woman celebrates 91 with snowmobile ride

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Charlevoix resident Helen Cunningham chose to celebrate her ninety first birthday in style by going snowmobiling.

Cunningham turned 91 years old on Jan. 21, but took to the outdoors on Jan. 23 as she once again donned a helmet and warm suit as she enjoyed a snowmobile ride.

"You're no older than what you feel, I guess," she said.

Cunningham, who hadn't ridden a snowmobile since she was 65, decided that's how she would celebrate her birthday since it was a fun activity.

Also, she enjoyed the sport in her younger years when she and her husband would ride around the farm with their children.

Bev Sladek, one of Cunningham's four daughters, said her father had purchased a snowmobile in 1968 in which her parents rode double. Then a few years later he bought another one and they rode around after dinner each night.

For her current ride, she chose to venture around the farm and go over the same runs. However, time has changed the look of things because it had been 26 years since Cunningham had been back there.

The weather was sunny and nice, but the best part to Cunningham was being surrounded by her family.

Her grandson, Joe Sladek, picked her up along with his wife, Loral, and daughter, Rylynn, 3, and made their way to an area where other family was waiting.

Cunningham's daughter, Bev, son-in-law, John, and grandchildren, Jerry Sladek, Kathy Sladek, Lisa Sladek and Jen Ellis, joined in on the fun and looked back on past memories over hot dogs, chips, hot cocoa and cider.

Great-grandchildren Scott and Dylan Sladek were present as well, but Nicole Sladek had to work and was unable to join in the celebration.

The reunion wasn't just a family gathering, but also a four-generation celebration as Cunningham, Bev Sladek, Joe Sladek and Rylynn Sladek all rode on the old family farm.

"It was great that day," Cunningham said.

Cunningham said her family wanted her to ride alone, but she chose not to because the snowmobiles are much larger and faster than what she used to ride.

"I probably could have done it," she said, but opted to avoid the potential of getting hurt.

Looking ahead, Cunningham said she isn't quite sure how she'll celebrate her ninety-second birthday.

"Living one day at a time because you never know what comes up," she said. "I'll probably ride a snowmobile again."

Charlevoix Little League sign up in March

The Charlevoix Little League will be having registration for boys and girls, ages 7-16.

A child has to turn 7 before May 1. Please bring a copy of a birth certificate with you. Registration dates are from 6:30 to 8 p.m., March 2 and March 3, at the Charlevoix Middle School cafeteria.

The fee is $45 per player. Family discounts are available. The fee includes jersey and cap to keep. Cut-off date for Minor and Major League registration is March 12.

Cutoff date for Junior and Senior League is April 1. There will be a late charge of $15 for late registrants.

Also at registration, there will be a used baseball equipment turn in. Please bring any used baseball equipment that is in good condition that can be donated.

On Draft Day from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m., March 19, there will be an Equipment Day. Participants will be able to buy good used equipment at "garage sale" prices. Proceeds will go to the Charlevoix Little League for immediate and future needs.

If you are unable to attend any of these registration dates, please call Kirk Heckendorn at 547-2683 or e-mail kheckendorn@charter.net.

Dentists to host screening at school

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Local dentists Dave Strawbridge, John Merrill and Jeff Porter will provide the annual free dental screening for children despite not having a district school nurse.

The free screening is in observance of National Children's Dental Health Month and was in jeopardy as the school board had made the decision to let go of the district nurse, Sue Dixon, and several aides due to budget concerns.

Dixon was the one who coordinated the education and preventative dental activities. However, Strawbridge is seeing to it that children get the annual screening.

"The importance is that we can make parents aware of the importance to save baby teeth," Strawbridge said.

The free screening is also important to the detection of obvious problems dealing with gum tissue and alignment among others.

"It doesn't take the place of going to the dental office," he said.

However, Strawbridge said the free screening does alert parents early on to what is needed for their child's dental health.

Strawbridge said the Charlevoix Lions Club will be donating SpongeBob Squarepants toothbrushes to the children during the screening.

The screening will take place at 9:30 a.m. on March 4 at Charlevoix Elementary School.

Ski tour this weekend

Active Women Now, Inc., a non-profit organization will host The Second Annual Charlevoix Ladies Tour, a weekend of fun and activities that will take the winter blues out of northern Michigan Feb. 27.

Active Women Now, Inc. has ski tours in Michigan and the United States, celebrating the camaraderie that women hold in empowering one another while giving back to their community. This non-competitive winter event for women will be at the Charlevoix Elementary School and the trails will weave through Mount McSaubia.

Novice winter activists are encouraged to attend.

Ski clinics will be given on Feb. 26 for beginners and those who are looking to cultivate their skills.

A wine and cheese event will be at Castle Farms as a prelude to the Charlevoix Ladies Tour. Log onto the Women's Ski Tour web site for more information.

Tickets in advance are $35 and include all the chocolate, goodies and fun you can hold in one day. Proceeds from the Charlevoix Ladies Tour benefits BASES and the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan. Please log onto www.womensskitour.com for more information on corporate sponsorship opportunities and purchasing event tickets. Equalization Ratios, as shown, are the percentages of assessed valuations to true cash value as determined by a survey of individual assessments. The Multipliers are those necessary to bring the Ratios to the required 50% of estimated true cash value. The Multipliers, as shown, are tentative and subject to change as the result of possible adjustments by individual assessing officers. Assuming that no adjustments are made, the Multiplier may be applied to each individual valuation.

Note: These multipliers replace those of 2004 and are not an addition to or subtraction from them.

Zonta Club to have annual Sensational Sessions

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The Charlevoix Area Zonta Club is hosting its fifth annual Sensational Sessions on March 5.

Linda DeGrow, Chair of Charlevoix Area Zonta Club, said the inspiration for the yearly event came from another club that offered a similar program.

"Everyone that goes has fun," she said.

Aside from fun, DeGrow said the Sensational Sessions is a way to combine fund-raising and service to the community.

The original idea was centered around a theme of Spring Fix Up, which meant fixing up one's self, home and other things.

Since the organization's motto is 'to improve the status of women,' DeGrow said the theme of "fix up" was a perfect fit.

The Sensational Sessions is designed for people to have fun by participating in the many program's workshops being offered.

The day is divided into four sessions and lunch is included with the registration fee. Early registration is $20 and $22 the day of the sessions.

Registration is from 8 a.m. to 8:45 a.m. with the first session starting at 9 a.m. Each session lasts one hour, ending at 2:30 p.m.

Classes range in topics. Some have an additional fee because participants will create something they can take with them.

The Growth, Health and Relaxation classes include "Releasing Neck and Shoulder Tension," "Making Fitness Fun," "REIKI-What is it-How it works?," "Ti Chi," "Yoga Flow" and "Protect Yourself."

Classes in Crafts and Goodies include "Make your own earrings" for $10, "Well Done- Done Well" for $5, "College Cooking 101" for $5, "Beginning Cross Stitch" for $3, "Flower Pincushion" for $6, "Homemade Soap Making" for $15, "Kitchen Scrubbies" for $6, "Get a Jump Start on Spring with a Dried Floral Arrangement" for $10, "Pine Cone Wreath" for $2, "Wearable Wild Woman" for $10, "Wire Wrapping" for $5 and "Needlecase" for $6.

The Managing Life Happenings sessions include "The 60 Minute Retirement Plan," "Home Care Services," "Identity Theft - Homeland Security," "Nutrition Basics," "Hot Mamas" and "Tips on Taxes."

Zonta International's headquarters is located in Chicago, but the organization was founded in 1919 in Buffalo, New York. The name Zonta is taken from the Lakota Sioux Indian word meaning "honest and trustworthy."

The world-wide service organization is composed of executive business and professional women who strive to advance the status of women.

There are approximately 33,000 members in 1,200 clubs in 67 countries and geographic regions.

The Charlevoix Area Zonta Club was founded in 1989. All proceeds from the Sensational Sessions workshops will go toward resources in the local community that help promote the advancement of the status of women world-wide.

For more information on registration or the sessions call Helen Emmons at 547-2955 and Linda DeGrow at 547-4109.

Coast Guard give media ice safety lesson

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

On Feb. 15, members of the United States Coast Guard Station in Charlevoix spent the day with local media in order to help get the word out about how people can protect themselves when going out on the ice.

Executive Petty Officer Nicholas A. Gould said protecting oneself is very important as the response time for an ice rescue can take a minimum of 10 minutes.

"The biggest thing is time," Gould said. Since it can take the Coast Guard and local fire departments awhile to get out to a person in distress, Gould said it's up to that person to do what they can to help themselves.

Members of local media gathered in the Charlevoix station to listen as Gould spoke about what people can bring with them to ensure the best chance at survival should they fall through the ice.

Since the weather conditions have been changing, Gould said the ice has become unpredictable and can be 12 inches in one spot and one inch in another.

"You just don't know what the ice is going to be like now because of the warming trends," he said. "It's just not safe."

Gould said the safest ice to venture out on is clear ice, which occurs after a cold, hard freeze.

However, no matter the condition of the ice, people who will be out on it should be prepared.

The public can bring several items with them that can aid in survival including a life jacket, ice awls, signal mirror, whistle, strobe lights, boat pole, a 15 to 20 foot line and flares.

The life jacket should be a type three, which Gould said is your standard life jacket that easily fits over clothing. He said the inflatable kind is pretty safe as well and both forms don't restrict one's movement.

Ice awls come in all different forms, but can be worn around one's neck for easy access. Gould said there are types that have the point exposed and those like what the Coast Guard uses that have a spring action that retracts the point when not in use.

"When you fall through you immediately start to lose the dexterity in your hands," Gould said.

Either form, and even homemade ones out of ground screw-driver ends, give enough traction so someone can pull themselves out of the water with the aid of kicking their feet.

Using the aid of ice awls is the self-help method the Coast Guard recommends people use until help can come. Once a person is removed from the water they should roll away from the water until they come to a patch of ice that is thick enough to support his or her weight.

Other items to bring such as the signal mirror, which can be from a make-up compact, whistle, strobe lights and flares are easy to get and relatively inexpensive. A boat pole is a good item to carry, Gould said, because if one falls through the water they can extend the pole horizontally and hold themselves up. It can also be used to pull someone from the water along with a 15 to 20 foot line of rope.

If someone doesn't have a boat pole and begins to fall through the ice, Gould said he recommends putting one's arms out to the side so they can act in the same capacity the boat pole would.

After the instruction, the media gathered outside to watch as the Coast Guard Air Station in Traverse City flew a helicopter in to demonstrate a rescue.

After the helicopter, members of the station in Charlevoix staged a mock rescue using a 14-foot ice skiff.

Petty Officer 2nd Class (MK2) Kirk Less, Petty Officer 1st Class (BM1) Eric Koch and Petty Officer 3rd Class (BM3) Mitch Balazs drove the ice skiff toward Fireman Vogelheim who portrayed the victim.

The men demonstrated the throw method, which involved throwing a line out to the victim.

They also showed the reach method by using a boat pole to reach the victim and finally the go method, which requires going right out to the victim and extracting them from the water.

After viewing how the Coast Guard executes a rescue, the media personnel were allowed to don an Ice Commander Suit.

Those from the media were given polypropylene undergarments to wear under the Ice Commander Suits.

The polypropylene undergarments draw the moisture away from the body, but Gould said a layer of wool is recommended over that as it helps keep warmth in.

The heavy overalls some men wear in the winter may keep them warm, but will become extremely heavy if they get wet. Gould said this can be dangerous if someone wearing them fell through the ice as they have to lift their own weight and that of their overalls out of the water.

Petty Officer 2nd Class (BM2) Rudy Patten said it's important not to use cotton when layering as it traps moisture to the body.

The Ice Commander suit is designed to keep a person warm while out in icy waters for up to six hours. In fact, Coast Guard members said a person sweats while in the suit despite the temperature outside.

Other Coast Guard members wore the Ice Commander Suits, but Fireman Brian Vogelheim wore a dry suit.

The dry suit functions differently than a wet suit, which uses water heated up by the body. The dry suit doesn't involve water and is used if the water is under 50 degrees.

"Dry suits are very costly, but how much is life worth?" Gould said. Unlike the dry suit, the Ice Commander Suit does not require certain undergarments unless there is time to put them on as they are designed to go straight from street clothes.

Putting on the suit was a task as they are quite large and dwarf those that aren't six feet tall. However, the suits have built-in boots and gloves and completely cover one's head except for a small portion of the face.

They are extremely warm and suction to the body when one falls into the water. They also act as a floatation device.

The sensation of falling through the ice was neat, but only because of the protection available with the Ice Commander Suit and trained Coast Guard personnel.

However, the experience under supervision allows one to learn first hand how to get out of the water without panic setting in.

For more information on how to guard oneself from danger on the water and ice call the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station at 547-2565.

Historical Society to host talk on Irish in area

In anticipation of St. Patrick's Day, the Charlevoix Historical Society is hosting an Irish potluck party on Tuesday, March 1 at 6:00 p.m. at the Depot.

Robert Cole of the Beaver Island Historical Society will present a program on St. Patrick, King Strang and the influence of the Irish heritage on the Island for over 100 years. Singer-guitarist Danny Gillespie will perform traditional Irish songs.

The program will be preceded by a potluck dinner with an emphasis on green fixings. Bring a dish to pass, serving utensils and your own plates and silverware. Cups, beverages and napkins are provided.

Those who wish to attend the program only should arrive around 6:45. This event is open to the public. Call 547-0373 for further information.

Foundation awards grant

Planned Parenthood Northern Michigan has received a grant to help support one of its education programs. Out of the Locker Room.

The Eugene B. Renkiewicz fund of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation has contributed $1,337 to support the program in Charlevoix County. The fund also helped develop and pilot Out of the Locker Room in 1997 by donating start up funds.

Out of the Locker Room is a 7-hour program for male high school students which uses interactive exercises, role plays, and discussion to provide information and skills on topics including relationships, communication, STIs and contraception, abstinence, sexual decision-making, and laws regarding sexual assault, consent and dating violence. The program gives young men the opportunity to learn about and discuss these critical issues in a safe and supportive environment. Out of the Locker Room is conducted in an informal setting for a group of 10 - 20 high school age males.

It is led by Greg Lummukka, Outreach Educator for Planned Parenthood Northern Michigan.

Out of the Locker Room is done in collaboration with the Women's Resource Center (WRC) of Northern Michigan. Through a sexual assault prevention grant, the WRC developed a program for high school females called Just the Facts, and Planned Parenthood Northern Michigan presents Out of the Locker Room as a companion program for males. These programs have been presented together for the past six years.

Large herd

This is just a small portion of a large herd of deer that has been spotted off of Marion Center Road, just north of Ferry Road, that sometimes numbers well over 100. The deer have been gathering in this spot to enjoy the leftover corn in the field. Drivers are cautioned to keep an eye out for them in the road.

Northern Community Mediation has annual meeting

Charlevoix Courier Wednesday, February 23, 2005 - PAGE 17

On Friday, February 4, Northern Community Mediation had its annual meeting in the Edith Gilbert Gallery of Crooked Tree Arts Center. Those in attendance were Northern Community Mediation's mediators, board of directors and staff.

Prior to having lunch, people enjoyed looking at the exhibits that are presently on display in the Art Center. This was followed by the meeting itself. Outgoing-president John Rohe stressed the importance of mediation in a civilized society, and then turned the meeting over to incoming-president Cathy Atchison.

In the annual report, Executive Director Jane Millar emphasized the importance of in-kind donations, which had a total value to Northern Community Mediation of $63,965.68 for 2004. The majority of this contribution was a result of the time volunteered by the mediators, which equated to $44,237.73.

The annual awards were then presented. Dick Hendrian, Leah Green and John Campbell were recognized for their commitment to Northern Community Mediation. The mediator of the year, however, was Bruce Herbert. Anyone interested in learning more about Northern Community Mediation should contact Dr. Jane Millar at (231) 487-1771.

Rotary Club to host Beatles tribute concert

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

On Feb. 25, Rotary Club of Charlevoix will host the talent of The Return, one of the world's most authentic Beatles tribute bands, after the last home game for varsity boys' basketball.

Dan Barron, co-chairman of Rotary concert committee, said bringing the singing sensations to Charlevoix was a great way to combine entertainment and fund-raising.

"They're quite a sensational group," Barron said.

The doors will open for the concert around 9 p.m. after the final home game for varsity boys basketball between Charlevoix and Elk Rapids.

All of the proceeds from the event will go toward the Charlevoix Rotary Club's "Strive" scholarship program and the Charlevoix High School band, Barron said.

The money for the band will go toward general operations and will be used where needed, Barron said.

The "Strive" scholarship program is an outgrowth from Charlevoix Rotary's "Reach for the Stars" program, which helped to fund upgrades to the light and sound system in the high school's auditorium.

Barron said the two year "Strive" scholarship program awards scholarships to students that have significantly raised their grade point average.

Combining The Return and Rayder basketball seemed like a natural connection, Barron said, since the crowd is already gathered and it lengthens the evenings entertainment.

Also, Barron said, the success of the Rayder Rumble, a 2004 Venetian event, showed that it was possible to successfully cross reference sports and music.

The popular 1964 The Tribute group, which played at Venetian, was in such demand that the people behind the group formed The Return, Barron said.

Members of The Return are in their early-to mid-twenties, but Barron said they provide the same caliber of music.

"They're almost indistinguishable from the original fab four," Barron said.

The Return was invited by Hard Rock Cafe to be the official tour band for the company's thirtieth anniversary. The group rode in the original Magical Mystery Tour Bus and visited areas including Orlando, Atlanta, Washington D.C., Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York and Boston.

The Return also was chosen as the official tribute band for the 20th Anniversary "Magical History Tour" of Liverpool Productions. The tour went to London and Liverpool, England.

Like the Beatles, they also performed at the Cavern Club in Liverpool, England and recorded music at Abbey Road Studios Two — the same room as the Beatles.

Aside from being the stars of the show, The Return has shared the stage with numerous famous musical acts including Little Richard, Jerry Lee Lewis, The Monkees, Peter Noone of Herman's Hermits and Chubby Checker.

Tickets for The Return are $10 in advance and $14 at the door. They can be purchased at Charlevoix High School and at Bridge Street Book Shop.

Hockey team takes two

On Saturday, Feb. 19, the Boyne Area Hockey Paul Bunyan Lanes Midget team hosted two games with Sault Ste. Marie. Boyne took the first game in an 8-3 romp.

Russell Williams powered in the opening goal unassisted. Ryan Hennessy notched a hat trick with three goals in the game — two on unassisted breakaways, the other with passes from Darren Looze and Chris Loyselle.

Matt Kopke popped one in over the goalie with an Eli Barsy pass. Gear Robinson took an assist from Barsy and scored a power play goal. Looze ripped the net with a patient pass from Evan Keller, who received the puck from Loyselle.

Isaac Krey scored the topper with assists from Nick Dunwoody and Hennessy. Nick Ferree was between the pipes.

In the first period of the second game the teams traded power play goals. Boyne's came from John Miller, with assists from Russell Williams and JP Fiedorek. Darren Looze scored unassisted twice in the second period, and the Soo answered with two goals to tie again at the period's end.

The defense stepped it up, and the final period went scoreless till with just under 4 minutes left Kopke slammed the net with an assist from Barsy, and Miller faked-out the goalie on a breakaway after receiving a Fiedorek pass.

Boyne put 23 shots on goal while netminder Nick Ferree took 15 in the 5-3 win.

Two grapplers move on

For most of the Charlevoix Rayder wrestling team the season ended Saturday at the individual districts tournament.

Quite a few of the boys held on to the final round with two advancing to regional's next Saturday in Manton.

Jed Daman, 135 pounds, advanced with two pins, one decision and one loss. Jeff Golovich, 171 pounds, went on with three pins and one loss. Both boys took third.

Volleyball team getting ready for tournament time

By B. JON GOHS
Sports writer

Not only did they win their last nine matches in a row, but the Rayders' varsity volleyball team leads the league with only one conference game to go.

On Feb. 10 the girls won the evening against East Jordan in three matches, with scores of 25-17, 25-11 and 25-12 by implementing their powerful offense.

"We had a good overall attack," said coach Liz Grunch. "The kills were pretty evenly distributed. Also we ended up with 23 aces, so we served really well. And, we only had three serve-receive errors."

According to Grunch, limiting errors helped, but it was aggressive play which won the day.

"We played a tough match against East Jordan," she said.

Players of mention were Kari Way with 15 digs, six kills and two aces, Bethany Pearson with four kills, Teresa Martin had eight kills and seven aces, Betsey Dennis had three kills and three blocks and Liz Javelin had four aces.

"It was nice coming in and sweeping the two conference games," Grunch said.

The last time Charlevoix met Harbor Springs it was a much longer battle, she added.

erson had three aces and 21 assists.

Striving to improve communication and efficient play came to fruition for coach Grunch and the girls.

"I think at this point in the season my main goal is to be consistent with what we have," Grunch said. "I think that's a pretty obtainable goal for the girls."

She added, "We're looking forward to the tournament run."

On Feb. 17 Charlevoix swept both Grayling and Harbor Springs with scores of 25-14, 25-9, 25-15 and 25-21, 25-17, 25-17 respectively.

Players of mention were Anderson with 61 assists, Martin with 21 digs, a 100 percent serve-receive and 31 kills. Way had 20 digs, three blocks and 23 kills, Dennis had three kills and three blocks and Liz Javelin had four aces.

"It was nice coming in and sweeping the two conference games," Grunch said.

The last time Charlevoix met Harbor Springs it was a much longer battle, she added.

"We played five games the last time we met with them, so we came out really strong on offense (this time) and we just played strong together as a team," she said.

Maintaining a winning streak is a lot of work, but Grunch and the girls are confident heading into competition.

"I think going into these two conference games, hopefully, our momentum is going to lead us into the final two in Mancelona," Grunch said. "I think we just need to continue to come out strong on offense."

In the end run, Charlevoix will play East Jordan. The Rayders then meet the winner of the bottom brackets, which consist of either Mancelona, Suttons Bay or Traverse City St. Francis. The winner then continues play at the regional level the following weekend.

The Rayders' overall standing is 26-8-6 with a conference record of 11-1.

See the girls' last conference game at 4:30 p.m., Thursday, Feb. 24 at Kalkaska followed by the opening of district play 10 a.m., Saturday, Feb. 26 in Mancelona.

Charlevoix basketball players sign for college

By ALLEN TELGENHOF
Sports writer

Former Charlevoix High School basketball players Grace Farrell and Scott Friske have a lot in common.

Both were all-state basketball post players who sacrificed personal statistics to lead their teams to the state finals. Now both have selected colleges to attend and play basketball beginning in 2005-06.

Friske committed to Brown University while Farrell will be attending Northern Michigan University.

"It's nice to get it (accepting the scholarship offer) out of the way," Farrell said. "I was nervous, especially after getting hurt last year. I was worried that I might get hurt again and wouldn't have a place to go."

Farrell selected NMU because she liked visiting the campus in Marquette, she hit it off with the coach and she has friends who are attending, including a friend from Marshall, that she met through AAU basketball who will be her roommate and teammate.

Saginaw Valley State also was prepared to make a scholarship offer. Many other colleges were interested, contacting Farrell and her coach, Keith Haske; however, they were turned away after Farrell settled on NMU.

Grace's humility and teamwork make her a special person and player, according to Haske.

"She's a humble person," he explained. "She didn't want the focus to be on her. One thing I think of when I think of Grace is how unselfish she was. She put aside any thought of herself as an individual to be successful as a team."

"She could have averaged 30 points a game but she just wanted to win," Haske said. "When your best player has that attitude, it permeates the whole team."

Farrell said getting the scholarship took her back to her early days in basketball, with her parents driving her and her friends to three-on-three tournaments.

"I think we played in every three-on-three you can imagine," she laughed.

In addition to her parents, Farrell talked about the influence of her former coach, Jason Otter and coach Haske and assistant Bret Erskine.

"Coach Otter taught me discipline," Farrell added. "And this last year I learned so many new things (from Haske and Erskine)."

While Farrell has learned from her coaches, Haske says that youngsters have a lot they can learn from her.

"She's a great role model for future Rayders," Haske said. "She has a great work ethic and a great attitude. Recently she spoke at the DARE graduation about making good choices and setting goals for yourself."

"She's proven if you put enough work into something, this is what you can accomplish," Haske said. "She set a goal for herself and set out to accomplish it."

Another of Haske's former players, Friske has achieved his goal as well.

"I've always wanted to play Division I basketball and the opportunity to do that and at the same time receive an Ivy League education just seemed like an ideal situation," Friske said. "I was impressed by the coaching staff's interest in me as a basketball player."

"They were extremely helpful in getting all the information that I needed to make a decision and just expressed a genuine desire to have me in their program."

Another added advantage is that Friske will have the opportunity to play with another local product, Petoskey's Damon Huffman.

"It will be cool to play with someone from the area, especially being he's such a quality player," Friske said. "There are a lot of young kids in the program and the future looks very bright."

Huffman is scoring 8.4 points per game as a freshman for the Bears, who are 9-11 overall and in seventh place in the Ivy League.

Friske was offered scholarships by about sixteen Division I schools and seriously considered Lehigh and Holy Cross before selecting Brown.

He is playing this season at Worcester Academy, a prep school in Worcester, Mass.

Grace Farrell, a senior at Charlevoix High School, signs her letter of intent to play basketball for Northern Michigan University in Marquette. Farrell was accompanied by her parents Brian and Cindy Farrell and Girls Basketball Coach Keith Haske.

"The school is like a college atmosphere at the high school level in terms of classes and having to manage your time," Friske said. "There is a lot less individual attention given to students here as well. The level of basketball is great."

Friske added, "We have played against kids who are going to be lottery picks next year in the NBA along with countless kids who are going to big time schools. It isn't uncommon to have seven or eight high level Division I players on each team in our league."

Even with the competition, when it comes to fan support, Worcester is no Charlevoix, according to Friske.

"The level of competition is a lot higher," Friske said. "But we don't have nearly as much fan support as there is in Charlevoix, but it just makes me more grateful for what I was able to be a part of at Charlevoix."

Friske is optimistic about the future but hasn't forgotten his friends in Charlevoix.

"God has blessed me with just a tremendous opportunity and I owe a lot of thanks to my coaches and the people who have supported me along the way. I look forward to representing Charlevoix and the Rayders as I move on to the next level," he said.

School board candidates discuss issues

Scott Boss

Barney Way

Dean Spencley

Christine Michaud

through the system himself and runs his own business, he is knowledgeable in operations.

Way said there are tough times ahead for the school district since the state can't provide as much money as it used to.

"We're trying to keep the curriculum and progress going, but doing it with less money," he said. "Everyone's not always happy, but we're doing what we can on a fixed income."

Way's business partner, Boss, also serves on the school board.

Way said he doesn't think there's a conflict of interest to have two business partners serving on the same board.

Way said he and Boss weren't business partners when they started on the school board, but were friends. They don't always agree, Way said, but sometimes they share the same opinion on an issue.

When asked what issues he and Boss have disagreed on, Way said he couldn't think of anything off the top of his head. However, he said most of the disagreement came in the discussion phase, not when it came time to vote.

Way said one benefit to having partners serve on the school board together is that they talk about issues a lot while at work. Way said he couldn't think of a specific issue he and Boss talked over at work, but said they talk about all the issues and whatever is going on.

He said their discussions can lend themselves to discovering a flip side to something that they then bring up to the whole board. From there, the ideas go into the discussion with everyone.

"We've never had any issues that controversial where the board has split," Way said of the unanimous voting pattern of the board.

He said he typically voting together, the board has shown the community they work well together.

Way said he keeps coming back to the school board because of his children's involvement in the schools.

"I like being involved because I have kids in the school system still," he said. "I like being involved in it and I enjoy it."

Boss, 46, has also served on the school board for eight years and is seeking re-election because he thinks the district currently has a good board.

"We work well together," he said. Boss said the board has done a lot together and there's still more to do.

"It seems like when it's going good that's what we should keep on doing."

What keeps bringing Boss back to the school board is that he still has two kids in the school system and because he wants to keep watching the schools grow.

"I like to feel I'm a part of their education," Boss said of his children.

Boss said he originally ran for the board eight years ago because he saw some dysfunction occurring and felt changes were needed.

There are financial challenges ahead, Boss said, and he wants to help people understand that separate money is used to build a school from what is used to run a school.

"There's financial difficulty because the state is struggling to support public education," he said.

There have been cuts made and Boss said they were done in order to preserve the integrity of the programs currently being offered.

Boss said he hopes people that know him and Way, know that even though they have a successful partnership they are different people.

"We get different opinions on topics," he said.

Boss said people can know that since they're partners, issues get mulled over a lot because the two men can discuss them at work.

"If you look back there's a number of topics we were on opposite sides of the fence on," Boss said.

Boss said most decisions that are voted on don't need much discussing during meetings since the board is communicating and knows where everyone is coming from.

"We don't vote the same always," he said.

Boss said when there is a 7 to 0 vote by the board that shows that the superintendent has done a good job of informing the board about what's going on.

Candidate Spencley, 40, said he is running for the position on the school board because there is a separation between the public and the school board.

"I would like to be the voice, foremost, for our kids, their parents and the entire community who all have a stake in our school system bringing their concerns as well as compliments to the board," he said in a written statement.

Spencley said he has seen improvements as well as concerns arise in the 14 years he's been back in Charlevoix. He co-owns South Side Gym & Fitness LLC and Willoway Specialties Inc.

Spencley graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1983 and currently has daughters going through the school system. He said there have been several changes since he was in school.

Spencley has always been involved in the school atmosphere from sports to school parties. However, he said now seems like the right time to step in and serve on the board.

"I'm going in to get involved," he said of his candidacy.

Spencley said he's not running against Way and Boss personally, but is running for everyone.

"I'm not thinking I'm going to go in and change everything," he said. "I'm going in there to be a different voice."

He said even though both of his daughters will be in high school next year, he isn't running specifically for them. In stead, he said he's running to make the school board better.

He said he will bring in views and state concerns people have in an attempt to close the gap between the public and the board.

"I don't know how hard or easy that's going to be," he said. "That's the concern that I have so far."

Candidate Christine Michaud, 39, has lived in Charlevoix most of her life and said she is running in order to become more involved in the school system.

"I'm not really looking to change things," she said. "I'm more or less looking to get involved in some of the decision making."

Michaud has twins in the second grade and another child who is a sophomore in high school.

Education is important to Michaud not only because her children are in school but because she knows where it got her in life as she currently works at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

"Every child should be allowed an education worthy of them to help them prosper," she said.

Michaud said the students in the Charlevoix School District, both the over and under achievers, should be looked at so the school can offer the best in education.

If elected, Michaud said she is looking forward to being a voice.

"Being an advocate for kids and education and to help make the district prosper," she said.

Congratulations!

Council holds off on budget action

left alone the city will lose money every year.

Documents given to the city show the electric revenue versus expenses for 2005 will be short $287,755. This is because of increasing costs to provide service to customers, such as meter reading and line-work and increases in the costs of providing power.

Beauchamp also said the problem can be caused by the increase in seasonal homes in Charlevoix. He said seasonal customers may use less electricity than year-round customers, but they still need services such as meter reading throughout the year.

Plus, when seasonal customers use the electric system it is usually during the summer, which is the peak period for electricity. This is also the time when the electric costs are set, therefore, with more people using the system, Charlevoix is locked into those rates throughout the year, even in the winter.

Beauchamp said this means people who live in Charlevoix year-round are making up for the increased use of the seasonal residents in the summer.

The consultant suggested rate changes across the board in electric services to combat this, with year-round users seeing less of an increase in their electric bill than seasonal users or users who use less electricity.

And to make up for the losses in revenue for the electric system the city would need an average rate increase of about 10.4 percent. But, the city and consultant are balking at the idea of such a dramatic increase outright and is instead looking at phasing-in the increase.

Under this phase-in proposal, city council has two options to pick from. First, it can phase-in the increase over five years with an initial 3.9 percent increase the first year and a 2 percent increase each year after. Second, it could phase-in the increase over three years, with a 3.9 percent increase in rates each year.

Council has yet to decide which plan, if either, it will choose.

Basically, according to Charlevoix City Treasurer Rick Brandt what this means to the consumer of Charlevoix's electric system is if this proposal is passed you would see an increase of, on average, $1.96 — this includes a proposed $1 a month service charge.

In addition to this, the sewer rates are proposed to be increased by 5.5 percent, with a $1.40 a month service charge and water rates are proposed to increase 2 percent, with a 40 cent service charge. This would be an average monthly increase of $3.76.

This concerned many people at the city council meeting. In addition to Dillon, Charlevoix resident Chris Papineau questioned the plan and if the city was raising rates just to prop up its electric fund so it could pay for improvements without bonding. He said at one time the electric fund had a surplus in it and the city was borrowing from it to pay for other city projects.

Brandt said the city is not raising rates to prop up the electric fund. He said there is a section of the fund called the "electric fund balance." What this is is cash on hand the city has for this fund in case of problems. It is kind of like a savings account for the electric fund.

He said the city has borrowed from that fund in the past for other city projects, such as city hall, but it pays that fund back with interest. Brandt said by borrowing from the funds, the city saves more money than having to bond out on projects.

Carlson added with the city losing money in the overall electric fund, he said it could not keep borrowing from the fund balance to cover those losses, or the fund balance would be dry.

Charlevoix resident Jill Picha said she has lived in several different cities throughout the mid-west and Charlevoix's electric rates are some of the highest.

Carlson responded according to city documents Charlevoix's electric rates are below average when compared with seven other cities in the state of Michigan, including Harbor Springs and Petoskey. He added there has not been a rate increase for about 10 years.

Charlevoix resident Dave Scott also spoke out about the rate increases and the budget overall.

"We are spending money like crazy and the city is moving money all over the place (referring to the city's use of borrowing money from various funds to pay for various projects)," he said.

Scott began to discuss a section of the electric fund which sets aside about $400,000 for a fiber optic network design, but was cut off by Carlson.

Carlson has set a rule for all city meetings that audience members could not speak for more than 3 minutes. During Scott's presentation, he interrupted Scott to tell him he had 15 seconds left. Scott took offense at this, saying he had a right to address the council, and a shouting match between him and Carlson erupted. Carlson threatened Scott that if he did not sit down and stop talking he would be removed from the meeting.

Scott complied and stayed in the meeting. Scott was the only person during the meeting that Carlson said went over the 3 minute rule.

The $400,000 fiber optic network is a proposal the city is working on to bring fiber optic to the city of Charlevoix. If the city decides to bring fiber optic to the community, it would be run out of the electric department, according to Brandt.

Charlevoix City Council decided to take no action on the 2005-2006 budget at this time, saying it needed more time to examine the budget. A work session has been scheduled for 5:30 p.m., March 1 at the Charlevoix City Hall. The council is expected to take up the budget issue again at its March 7 meeting.

Amendments face public

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Depending on the decisions made by the Charlevoix City Council after the March 7 hearing on two Downtown Development Authority amendments, two petitions may start circulating around the community seeking a referendum.

"It should not be up to eight people when it comes to that kind of money," Charlevoix resident Jill Picha, who is one of the people behind a possible petition for a referendum drive, said. "It should be up to the people of Charlevoix."

According to the latest figures, the cost to construct a new Charlevoix marina and renovate East Park will be over $11 million. The Michigan Waterways Commission has said it would fund 75 percent of the cost, with the city's DDA funding the rest.

The hearing on March 7 is on two amendments to the DDA plan dealing with the proposed new Charlevoix marina and changes to East Park. The DDA needs to add these projects to its development plan in order to provide funding for it.

The first, called the "fourth amendment," deals mostly with the marina portion of the project, but includes funding for a harbor master's office and an ice rink. The second, called the "fifth amendment" deals with the marina and East Park by including the

The Charlevoix City Council will be discussing two amendments to the Downtown Development Authority's development plan March 7. The amendments deal with proposed renovations to East Park and the Charlevoix Municipal Marina. Some have said they will try to get a referendum on the amendments.

Minorities talk about treatment

For several area residents, not enough was done to commemorate Black History Month in Charlevoix.

Mike Dixon, 32, is half African American and half Native American and ready to help educate those who will listen.

"A lot of people say racism will never change, but I think it will through education," he said.

Black History Month has been a struggle each year to stay ac-knowledgeable, Dixon said. Bigger strides have been taken to educate the public more, but Northern Michigan is lacking.

"Northern Michigan needs to wake up to Black History Month," Dixon said. "Downstate is more aware."

Education is a top priority for Dixon, who remembers reading "Huckleberry Finn" by Mark Twain as an elementary school student in Saginaw. He said the word "nigger" is used as a part of the language of the book, but it also keeps a negative connotation toward African Americans alive.

Dixon said schools should have students read something that helps portray a more positive image of African Americans and doesn't enable them to think it's OK to use derogatory language.

"I can walk in a lot of places up here and feel the negative energy," he said. "You have to be strong."

The negativity can change, Dixon said, because there are new generations being born each year that can grow up colorblind.

In order to promote Black History Month more, Dixon said restaurants could feature authentic Soul Food for the month of February or a cook off could occur downtown.

There could also be several school and community activities involving bringing African American speakers to the library and schools and artistic groups could come up and display their

East Park break down shows $2,500 benches

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

As Charlevoix City Council gets ready to hear public comment on plans for a new marina and renovations to East Park, some are questioning a break down of the costs for the park that show, among others, table and chair sets for $6,000 a piece.

The break down of costs detailing what the city could get for its huck in East Park was given to the Courier by Charlevoix resident Jill Picha, who received it under a Freedom of Information Act Request on the city. It gives further insight into what is included in the over $2 million price tag on East Park.

"I was blown away," Picha said she thought when she first saw the break down. "I am now referring to this as the East Park Yacht Club."

The total city marina and East Park project is estimated to cost over $11 million, with the state Waterways Commission picking up 75 percent of the tab and the city's Downtown Development Authority picking up the rest. Most of the tab being paid for by the DDA will include renovations to East Park, which take up around $2 million of the total project cost.

Of that $2 million, a break down dated Oct. 22, 2003 from the city's paid consultant Pollack Design Associates, gives estimates on what the city could get.

Included in the break down are costs for common work such as concrete steps, estimated to cost $45,600, concrete retaining walls, estimated to cost $88,000, and other items. But, what has Picha and some other residents and council members who have seen the break down upset, are items such as flower baskets for $350 a piece, with 44 planned, totaling $15,400; and benches for $2,500 a piece, with 31 planned, totaling $77,500.

Other costs include the table and chair sets mentioned above, with 30 planned, totaling $180,000; bicycle hoops at $450 a piece, with 20 planned totaling $9,000; post-top grills at $400 a piece, with six planned totaling $2,400; picnic tables at $1,000 a piece, with six planned totaling $6,000 and flagpoles at $5,000 a piece, with three planned for a total of $15,000.

Charlevoix City Manager Mike Wiesner said these costs are just estimates and the actual design of the park has yet to be decided. Once the plan gets to the design stage, then some of those costs can be clarified.

Wiesner said the design stage should begin soon after the funding questions are answered after the March 7 city council meeting. At that meeting, council will decide on two amendments to the Downtown Development Plan adding to proposed marina and East Park renovations to the DDA's list of projects, thus allowing the DDA to provide funding for it.

Charlevoix Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson said he had not seen the break down in East Park costs. He was surprised at some of the items included in it.

"It means that park side should be a heck of a lot cheaper than what we have been lead to think," he said.

Carlson said some of those items included in the break-down are "preposterous."

"To me that is over the top," he said. "There is an image of Charlevoix, but it is certainly not to waste money."

Charlevoix Council Member Boh Timms also had not seen the break down before.

"It is a lot of bucks. You don't want to short-change the park, but to me it seems like an awful lot of money," he said.

Timms pointed to the cost of grills in the park saying, "East Park isn't a picnic park."

Council Member Sherman Chamberlain also had not seen the break down.

"Sounds like we are talking about something pretty elaborate," he said.

But he pointed out the city has not gotten to the design stage and can address those concerns then.

Carlson said if costs in that break-down came to the council in the design stage, he would say the city should take a step back.

"We do have options," he said.

School out early due to bomb threat

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix High School was dismissed early Monday due to a bomb threat.

According to Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater, a note was found written on a boy's bathroom wall above a urinal around 10 a.m. saying the school was going to be blown up on Tuesday. Lasater said school officials erased the note before police arrived, but they did take pictures.

Bomb sniffing dogs from the tribal police, Grand Traverse County Sheriff's Office and the Michigan State Police were called in and checked the school — nothing was found.

Meanwhile, students were brought into the school gymnasium and told of the situation by the school principal Gary Grundman and school Superintendent John Strock. The students were given a chance to confess to writing the note, but none came forward.

Lasater said he is now actively investigating the matter and the perpetrators will be charged with making a false bomb threat.

School was in session on Tuesday, but Lasater said he assigned a deputy to the school all day.

OPINIONS

Partisanship invades our views of president

Jeremy McBain

'Just a thought'

Recently the polling firm Gallup released the results of a poll asking who Americans believe is the greatest United States president ever.

Modern Americans chose Ronald Reagan and Bill Clinton as the top two greatest presidents ever. Ahe Lincoln came in third, Franklin Roosevelt and John F. Kennedy tied for fourth and George W. Bush tied with George Washington for fifth.

It's polls like these that make me question what kind of history is being taught in our schools and the overall intelligence levels of my fellow Americans.

Come on! Reagan and Clinton as the top presidents ever? Reagan, a

B-movie actor who was president during the Iran-Contra scandal, and Clinton, an embarrassment of a president who didn't know the definition of "is," heat out Lincoln, who fought to keep the country from dividing, and Washington, the man known as the father of our country.

What really hurns me is that Washington is tied with George "Weapons of Mass Destruction" Bush for fifth. First, Washington's leadership is a big reason we won the Revolutionary War, gaining our independence from England. He is one of the main men responsible for our freedom today. Second, the man was asked to be the king of the United States and refused. Third, the man reluctantly accepted the presidency because he knew he was needed to help guide the country in its birth. Lastly, he is George Washington.

So here is the great Washington tied for fifth with a man who used his family connections to avoid serving in Vietnam, has divided the country with his with-us-or-against-us politics, supports measures taking away our civil liberties in the name of safety, sent us to war using false information and believes 51 percent of the vote is a mandate.

After calming down some and taking my finger off the trigger of this machine gun of angry words flowing from my head, I find the most odious part of this poll is not that it shows Reagan and Clinton at the top, but that it shows the partisanship that has invaded our modern lives. We have become a country divided between two political parties — who in reality have not much to offer different from one another. And because of this rift which has been pounded into our heads by the national media and the spin doctors of the political parties, we think we must believe in the greatness of Reagan or the greatness of Clinton above all others.

We have become blinded to the realities of our history by the unreality that are sold to us on a daily basis — with the help of the 24-hour cable news channels that seem to cater to one side or the other — that we can no longer understand what a truly great man or woman is unless they abide by the political dogma that we subscribe to.

Politics is not a religion and the political parties do not have all the answers. The fathers of our country understood that, which is why they created the system of checks and balances. They knew that compromise should be the winner of the day.

But now, we cast aside those men who held us together in times of need — men like Washington, Lincoln, Thomas Jefferson and Franklin Roosevelt. These were men who valued the country and its future. There was a greater good to their work and life.

In their place we have put up power fiends like Reagan, Clinton, Bushes I and (ugh) II and even Richard Nixon. Men who put politics above all else and are drunk on its power. While each had their shining moments — Reagan with the fall of communism and Clinton with the booming economy and peace — they left a bitterly divided country.

I fear for our country when we forget our past. When we forget the real great men and women of our history. When we blindly follow a party or dogma without question.

I can only hope that opinions like this will someday change and show the true intelligence of the American people. The kind of intelligence that seems to have been lulled into hibernation, perhaps by our endless fascination with short-hurst-thinking media like reality television, talk radio or "commentators" who tell us what to think on the cable news channels.

Maybe someday soon we will say no to the political parties and their spin machines, turn off the cable news, reality show or loud-mouth radio personality and get back to the business of creating the greatest united nation on earth.

Hopefully, then, Washington will stop spinning in his grave and rest in peace.

public from the board. I would like to be the voice foremost for our kids, their parents and the entire community who all have a stake in our school system bringing their concerns as well as compliments to the board. If we can create a team between the community and the board we can make a district that is envied by others.

I am not looking at my running as a race against Mr. Boss and Mr. Way because my intent was to run no matter whose seat was available. I am running for everyone else and hope to bring the only change I feel I can guarantee which at this point is a different voice.

I feel a need to get involved so I can see how the system really works. Everyone is always a better coach or a referee from the stands and you can see that by going to any Charlevoix sporting events.

But when you put yourself out there it becomes a whole different ball game and you find out it really wasn't as easy as you thought. I will give fully of myself and listen completely if elected.

Johnson leaving hospital foundation

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation's Executive Director Kathy Johnson has announced she will be leaving her post in order to help out a family member in need.

"I would not be leaving were it not for the fact that I have family and I put my family first," she said. "I really like what I do, I love working with our volunteers and donors."

Johnson will be leaving April 1 and will be moving from Charlevoix to just outside Charlottesville, Va. by the middle of June. Johnson said she has an elderly uncle living in that area who she is the caregiver for. Recently, she had to put her uncle in an assisted living facility and she realized he needed her help more.

In addition to this, she has purchased her family home in the area, which was built by her grandfather in the 1800s and she wants to fix it up. "Hal (Johnson's husband) and I made the decision to move to Virginia and be there for him (her uncle) and live in the family home," she said.

Johnson said her uncle is the only family she has, besides her husband and her children. Johnson and her husband have seven children.

Johnson has been with the hospital for 14 years and been living in the Charlevoix area for 25 years. When she started, she was the first director of development for the hospital, but two years ago she was chosen as the director of the Hospital's foundation.

She said she loves Charlevoix, loves the hospital and the people who volunteer and work at it.

"To work on a regular basis with people who do things just to make things better, that's a real privilege," she said.

She added she is proud of the changes the hospital has gone through with the help of volunteers and donors.

"We are just so fortunate we have so many that work on it with us," she said.

Once she makes her move south, Johnson said she will definitely spend some time doing a little gardening, but she wants to go back to work for another non-profit.

"I am hoping to do the same sort of thing in central Virginia," she said. "I would work for another non-profit if it was something I believed in."

She is also hoping to do some volunteer work.

Johnson added she will miss Charlevoix.

"The biggest difficulty we have with leaving is leaving all the friends we have made with the volunteers. They are an incredible bunch of people," she said.

Powerlifting group visits schools, churches in area

It was standing room only in the crowd of over 375 people as The Stand Powerlifting Team performed their grand finale at the Charlevoix Assembly of God church on Sunday night.

With names like "Shrek," "Big Buck," "The Mountain," "Crush" and "Ironman," these huge men brought down walls of bricks doused in flames, tore through phone books, mangled steel bars, created a human sandwich in a bed of nails with 600 pounds pressing down, crushed cans of pop, blew up hot water bottles and shattered wooden bats with ease.

Over 1,200 people attended this five day event to watch The Stand present the gospel of Jesus Christ through feats of strength.

In addition to the evening programs at the church, The Stand visited area schools to present their message of making right choices, saying no to illegal drugs, alcohol, violence and the importance of a good education, honoring parents and authority and serving others. School assemblies were given in the public schools of Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City and Boyne Falls. They also visited the Fellowship of Christian Athletes at the YMCA in Petoskey. VIP passes were distributed after each assembly to enable kids to exchange it for an autographed poster of The Stand Powerlifting Team at the evening programs.

At each of the school assemblies audience participation was often a humorous highlight. Students, school staff and others tried to rip through phone books, were lifted in the air on steel rods and generally used as object lessons to teach values of perseverance, self worth, achieving goals, getting rid of negativity and choosing healthy friendships.

Principal Keith Haske at CMS said, "Our kids received the message of The Stand well. It was really cool, the message was awesome, and their presentation captivated the attention of all the kids."

He added, "It was fascinating to watch kids scramble to take home pieces of the phone books, indicating that they really wanted to be part of it."

T.A. "The Shrek" Nalian commented during an evening program that, "Charlevoix is one of the closest knit communities they have ever seen" and "the students at the school assemblies were some of the most well mannered, respectful and attentive students" they have encountered in their 14 year school assembly experience.

Pastor "Ryp" Hankins of the Charlevoix Assembly of God church, said, "This outreach was made possible by the hard work of many people in our congregation and the team work of area churches, businesses, schools and sponsors in our community."

Student honored for her set design work

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

One Charlevoix High School performing arts student envisioned a set for "Into the Woods" deserving of two awards.

Suzanne Curtis, 17, received an award for excellence in set design at the district level and then a superior award for set painting at regionals.

"I've never really won very many things," Curtis said. "I had to walk up in front of six other schools and it was nice to get recognized for hard work."

Curtis is a three year member of the performing arts department and this was her first year to head up the set design team.

The design for "Into the Woods" came from Performing Arts Director Connie Ford's daughter, Beth Sherman. Curtis said Sherman was inspired by a fairytale set she saw while watching the Summer Olympics.

The idea was handed off and Curtis took it and helped create a pop-up book. The book features the portraits of each cast member and then opens up to reveal a forest. Small trees are brought on stage and the effect looks like a pop-up fairy tale story brought to life.

"It was really cool to see everything come together," she said.

The design paid off and helped create the magical world for the actors to inhabit.

However, it wasn't pulled off by Curtis alone.

Everyone helped with the base painting, but Curtis received help from two mothers who donated time and talent to the project.

Curtis said her first year heading up the set design team took a lot of extra hours and dedication, but the competitions will help her grow as a designer.

"It's neat to see other people's ideas and interpretations of the same play," she said. "You gather future ideas."

Now that "Into the Woods" is under wraps, Curtis said she is looking toward the future and her senior year.

"I'm really excited what we're going to do for next year's show," she said.

Chamber wants $50,000 from city

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

During the Feb. 28 meeting of the Downtown Development Authority, many concerns were raised over the proposed cut in funding for the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

According to Charlevoix Chamber Director Jacqueline Merta, chamber members are concerned since funding is tight as it is. They highlighted several events such as the Taste of Charlevoix that was a huge hit and brought people to the area.

Hugh Mason, chairman of the DDA, said he wants to help the chamber but doesn't know if the funding is there. The chamber is asking for almost $50,000 to keep promoting Charlevoix.

Both sides argued about the role of the Downtown Coordinator and decided that the issue will be tabled until the next DDA meeting.

James Huffman Hisey: Aug. 23, 1919 - Feb. 19, 2005

James Huffman Hisey, of Charlevoix, died of a cerebral hemorrhage on Feb. 19, 2005. He was 85.

Mr. Hisey was born Aug. 23, 1919, in Wayne, the son of Ventry and Lois (Huffman) Hisey. He attended public schools in Wayne and later graduated from Michigan State University.

He married the late Beverly Grace Simpson and with her had three sons: James Hisey II of Fairfield, Conn., Jon Arthur Hisey of Charlevoix, and Jerrold Ross Hisey of Garden City. He had seven grandchildren and eleven great-grandchildren.

Following his divorce from Beverly Hisey, he married the former Darleen Williams. In their later years he and Darleen were world travelers. After her passing in 2000, he traveled with his beloved friend, JoAnn Clow.

Mr. Hisey was publisher of the Wayne Dispatch, founder of an international student exchange program, and the Center for International Studies.

In Charlevoix, Mr. Hisey lived on the Marion Center Centennial Farm. He was active in the Rotary International, Roy Harris Rotary, Michigan Farm Bureau, Charlevoix Historical Society and Republican Party.

Services will be at the United Methodist Church in Charlevoix, on March 19, details to be announced prior to the funeral. The Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix is serving the family.

Crandall to be added to officers memorial

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Former Charlevoix City Police Officer Earl William Crandall will be added to the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial in Washington D.C. on May 13.

"I am very pleased to announce Officer Crandall's honor," said Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson at the Feb. 21 city council meeting. "After 40 years we are going to have an officer that will be remembered as he should be."

Crandall is the only Charlevoix Police Officer that died in the line of duty in 100 years. On July 20, 1966, Crandall received a call of a motorcycle accident near Kipke Field and went to the scene.

A motorcycle with a driver and passenger was found laying on its side at the field, with the driver pinned under it. Crandall lifted the motorcycle off of the driver and when he did, the driver grabbed the bike and attempted to get away.

Crandall got into a scuffle with the driver when he tried to take him into custody as another police officer arrived on the scene and helped. Once the driver was in custody, Crandall walked over to the driver of an ambulance that arrived on the scene to say he was not needed, when Crandall collapsed.

Crandall was taken to Charlevoix Area Hospital where he was pronounced dead of an apparent heart attack.

"It did not appear right to the department that Officer Crandall's life would be forgotten," Halverson said. "I am extremely proud that Officer Crandall's death will not be forgotten."

Halverson said the police chief at the time, Joseph L. Smith, said Crandall, "was one of the best officers I worked with. He liked people, especially kids, and he was known as strict, but fair."

Crandall was born March 12, 1909 in Charlevoix and attend Charlevoix schools. He was married to the former Esne Blohm in 1947 and had three sons and a daughter.

He had been with the Charlevoix police for 15 years.

Crandall's name will be added to the memorial during an annual candlelight vigil as part of National Police Week. The ceremony honors our nation's law enforcement officers and pays special tribute to those who have given their lives in the line of duty.

Strawbridge takes honors at regional

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

One Charlevoix High School student received high honors when the performing arts department took "Into the Woods" to regionals.

Anne Strawbridge, 17, received the Superior Acting Award for her portrayal of the baker's wife.

"It was definitely really, really neat," she said. "I couldn't attend the award ceremony, but it was really nice to win."

Strawbridge received honors in acting for an ensemble performance along with the entire cast of last year's production of "The Sound of Music." They received top honors in acting as a group for their portrayal of the Von Trapp children.

However, this is the first year she has received individual honors in acting.

"I like the challenge of being a character, but I also like just being the character," she said.

Portraying the baker's wife was challenging, Strawbridge said, because her character's motives stem from the desire to have a child, which is something Strawbridge doesn't have plans for anytime soon.

"I enjoyed the role just because it gave me a chance to develop the character," she said. "She really has depth. To delve into a character with so much depth is really nice."

Strawbridge was born into the arts as her mother has always been involved in community theater, which is something Strawbridge wants to continue.

It depends on which university she chooses, but she may pursue theater in college or else just stay active in the community realm.

"I like the theater atmosphere," she said.

"There's something to be said for the live atmosphere."

Strawbridge joined the performing arts department three years ago when several friends a year ahead of her in school persuaded her to join.

Strawbridge was also involved in the Ragamuffins Theatre for two and a half years.

However, acting and singing is something Strawbridge has been doing since she was three years old.

"I just really like doing all of it," she said.

Cormorant hurting area fishing populations

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The double-crested cormorant is not only in danger itself, but is causing danger to the Great Lakes fishing industry.

Kevin Speer, owner of "Michigan's Hooks & Baiters Magazine," had his magazine do an article on the birds in an attempt to inform the public.

"I want people to know who to write to and e-mail," he said. "These programs may be canceled without community interest."

The programs Speer spoke of are attempts to control the cormorant populations. The object isn't to destroy the population of Cormorants in Michigan, but to control them.

The bird is a relative of the loon and resides in several areas surrounding the Great Lakes including Michigan. The fishing industry has taken a hit due to the large nesting populations that flock to the Great Lakes region.

Cormorants originally settled near the Great Lakes in 1913, according to information provided by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Some migrated to the Gulf of Mexico, but others came north to raise their young.

The information also states that the population was hit hard in the 1960s due to pollution from a chemical called DDT. The chemical was affecting fish, but since the birds prey on fish they were consuming a lot of DDT.

Human interruption and nest destruction also aided in the decline.

However, in 1972, the cormorants became protected under the 1918 Migratory Bird Treaty Act. Their population still declined until recently with the numbers reaching the highest ever recorded.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service also states that scientists don't think the population will keep on growing, but will eventually stabilize.

Their resurgence, however, has caused concern in the fishing industry as they are preying on newly stocked fish.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service information states that an adult cormorant eats about one pound of food per day, but chooses fish that are easiest to catch.

The birds usually feed on steelhead, lake trout and brown trout.

"Population level effects from cormorant predation on lake trout, salmon or steelhead are not apparent though, as diet studies indicate the birds consume very few of these fish in open waters," as stated by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is going to reduce the damage of Cormorants in Michigan by enacting an Integrated Wildlife Damage Management plan.

The information states that the plan will focus on cormorant damage dealing with aquaculture, property, natural resources and human health and safety.

THERE ARE GOOD REASONS WHY

PUBLIC NOTICE

APPEARS IN YOUR NEWSPAPER.

Currently, and historically, it is the responsibility of state and local government to publish public and legal notices here in Michigan's newspapers. This paper you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. And its pages hold your right to know what the government is doing in your community. In fact, it's law.

In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. That is why you have, and read, your newspaper, where public notices are published with accountable circulation and presented to you on these pages in clear black and white.

Library group forming

In its quest to provide the best possible library service for the community, the Charlevoix Public Library has begun a yearlong planning process.

Library Director, Valerie Meyerson, said, "A library is a tremendous source of information. Our goal is to determine what this community needs and then adapt our services to meet those needs. The new facility opens up new opportunities and we want this library to be relevant and responsive to the people who live here."

The first step in the process is the formation of a community-planning group. Members represent education (students and educators), business, the library, community groups and families in the community. This group will be asked to review current library services, trends in library service and community issues. They will be asked to give the library input on the types of services they believe are needed most in Charlevoix.

The following people have agreed to participate in the March planning meetings: Mary Ann Chew, Joe Seidel, Kay Heise, Toni Feller, Jill Haan, Dennis Halverson, Connie Marshall, Suzanne Klinger, Todd Thompson, Marina LaBlance, Hugh Mason, Jim Berlage, Caitlin Taylor, Beth Strawbridge, Julie Burgess, Laurie Hodgson, Betty Henne and Elisa Lindgren.

The March meetings will culminate in service recommendation to the library staff and board. These ideas will lay the foundation for future goals and objectives. They will guide the rest of the planning process and eventually result in a plan of service for the new library.

How to get news in the courier

If you have a news item you think would be perfect for the Charlevoix Courier, feel free to call 547-6558, e-mail news@charlevoixcourier.com or visit the Courier office located at 112 Mason Street in downtown Charlevoix.

News items include events sponsored by non-profit organizations. Please inform us of your event at least two weeks in advance.

Our coverage area is the city of Charlevoix and its immediately surrounding areas, including Beaver Island.

Because of space limitations in the newspaper, we generally try to avoid publishing "check-handing" pictures or "ribbon-cutting" pictures. However, we will work with your organization to get a picture that reflects the event and is visually interesting to our readers.

Due to time constraints on the staff, we cannot attend every event of which we are notified. If you have a picture of your event, we will gladly consider it for publication. But, please, contact us before your event.

It should be noted, each story and picture is dealt with on its individual merits. Any policies outlined above may be suspended by the editor or general manager of the Charlevoix Courier if necessary.

Learning about Jordan

Grace Whitley, a student in Sara Jonker's second grade class, presented her biography on Michael Jordan to her classmates. The project was to read about a famous African American and then write a biography on them in order to commemorate Black History Month.

LOSING SLEEP?

If you're devoting enough time for sleep and still feel tired during the day, a clinical sleep disorder could be the cause.

First African American woman to fly

Parker Elowsky, a student in Sara Jonker's second-grade class at Charlevoix Elementary School, informed his classmates about Bessie Coleman, the first African American woman to fly a plane. In honor of Black History Month Jonker had her students write a biography of a famous African American after they read one about the person.

Hospital's Sleep Center to have open house March 9

If insomnia, snoring or restless ness are preventing you from getting a good night's sleep, Charlevoix Area Hospital's new Sleep Center might be just what the doctor ordered.

Operated under the direction of Board Certified Sleep Specialist David A. Walker, DO, and N. Craig Boss, MD, the Sleep Center is equipped to diagnose and treat a variety of common sleep disorders.

To introduce the new facility to the public and give area residents an opportunity to learn more about the importance of good sleep, the hospital will host a free open house, "Everything But the Pajama Party," from 5 to 7 p.m. on Wednesday, March 9.

Those who attend will be given a tour of the center, see how sophisticated sleep monitors work, and meet the staff.

Representatives from various medical equipment companies will also be on hand to demonstrate breathing apparatus that can aide those with sleep disorders. Attendees who currently use a C-PAP or other sleep equipment are invited to bring it with them for a complimentary pressure check.

"As many as 10 percent of American adults are affected by sleep disorders," said Sharon Smorch, a registered sleep technologist and respiratory therapist who helps staff the center. "Yet most sleep problems are easily corrected."

Smorch says sleep is essential to good health, affecting learning, concentration, coordination, blood pressure — even appetite, mood and sexual function.

"Our patients comment on how much better they feel after treatment. Not only do they have more energy, they often lower their blood pressure, lose weight, feel happier and perform better at work," she said.

Reservations for the open house are not needed. The Sleep Center is located on the first floor of Charlevoix Area Hospital, across from the Cardiovascular Lab.

REPEAT

It bears repeating...

Repetition is a great way to build recognition and credibility in your community. By consistently advertising in our newspaper, you can put your message in front of thousands of readers each day, and that brings results. So bear in mind that print advertising is the best value for the money!

Dale Hull to resign from arts center

Dale Hull, Executive Director of Crooked Tree Arts Center, Petoskey, announced to the Board of Directors of Crooked Tree Arts Center on Friday, Feb. 18, that he plans to resign his current position with the arts center within the next 12 months.

"I thought it important to let my board members know my relatively short-term plans now, to give the organization the time necessary to make a smooth transition in staff leadership. This is an exciting and healthy organization. The Arts Center's reputation is such that this opportunity will draw qualified candidates from all over the country. It will be an exciting process," he said.

The Crooked Tree Arts Center has become a strong and valuable community resource during Hull's tenure. Together, the Board of Directors and staff have tripled the number of memberships, more than doubled the operating budget, raised more than $4 million to restore and expand the facility that is now considered among the finer resources in our community, and have developed programming that is recognized across the State of Michigan (through its Anchor Organization designation) as among the highest quality programming offered by a non-profit arts center in Michigan.

"The future looks very bright for the Crooked Tree Arts Center. I am proud of what we have accomplished together."

Dale Hull,
Executive Director of the Crooked Tree Arts Center

"I have an opportunity to leave my work here on a high note," said Hull. "And there is so much more to do. Before I leave this job, my personal goals for programming include having Crooked Tree Arts Center play a pivotal role in the creation of a new ballet based on the music of The Peterborough Suite by Michigan composer, Lynne Palmer Warren. In June we will produce a new play called No Problem by northern Michigan playwright, Bill Wheaton. We also have an opportunity to strengthen our relationships with Interlochen Public Radio, the Bay View Association, Blissfest, the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra, and a host of local arts and cultural organizations with whom we collaborate."

Within the following 13 months, the galleries at Crooked Tree Arts Center will have on display the most prestigious, juried watercolor exhibition in the State of Michigan. At least two nationally recognized art exhibitions are also currently on the schedule: one celebrating the work of Ansel Adams and the other brought to Crooked Tree by Art Train, USA.

"The future looks very bright for the Crooked Tree Arts Center. I am proud of what we have accomplished together," Hull said.

Steve Palmer, President of Crooked Tree Arts Center, said he would miss Hull's creative leadership and dedication.

"Dale is a master of programming," claims Palmer. "And has been a major force behind the significant growth of the organization. He will be missed. As we move forward from here, we will develop a candidate profile, put together a selection committee, and create a time-line for finding a replacement for Dale. These next few months will be a busy and exciting time for Crooked Tree Arts Center."

For more information, please contact Dale Hull at the Crooked Tree Arts Center 347-4337.

- Since it was founded by a group of local citizens in 1992, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation's net assets have grown to almost $15.4 million.

From the Ethel W. Coeling Environmental Fund

- A charitable organization dedicated to improving and enriching life in the area, the foundation accepts gifts from individuals, families, businesses, and organizations and manages them as permanent endowments. Every year, a portion of the endowment's investment income is used to support programs in education, the environment, the arts, human services, health and wellness, youth activities, community development and various civic projects. The principal of the endowment continues to grow, providing charitable capital to perpetually benefit Charlevoix County residents and nonprofit organizations.

Castle hosts fund-raiser for Women's Ski Tour

An wonderful evening awaited guests who visited Castle Farms in Charlevoix on Saturday, Feb. 26. A Winter's Night at The Castle featured winter wine tastings, fine cuisine and strolling musicians. The event was from 2 until 11 p.m. Northern Michigan vintners presented tastings of the grape from the Leelanau Peninsula. Cuisine was crafted by Grey Gables of Charlevoix with an eclectic mix of food, wine and musicians. The sounds of Luther Gravy & The Soul Biscuits got underway at 6 p.m. for a evening of music and dancing. Admission was just $10, which included a commemorative glass and two tastings — wine and/or food. Hundreds took part in the complimentary Castle Tours that were given on the hour by owner Linda Mueller. There were even those who were hungry for a "taste" of the outdoors — snowshoe and cross-country ski tours were available at no charge to explore the Castle grounds all afternoon and evening. The event benefited the chosen charities of the Charlevoix Ladies' Tour, which was given the following day.

Pre-school sign up planned

Northwest Michigan Human Services Head Start, Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District Early Education Be-For Programs, East Jordan PREP Program, Little Traverse Bay Bands Head Start, Women's Resource Center Project Free, and the Central Lake Early Education Programs will be holding joint recruitment activities for the free preschool programs in the Char-Em ISD service area. This region includes Charlevoix, Emmet, and northern Antrim counties. Recruitment activities will take place during the months of March and April. Children ages 3 and 4 are eligible to apply, including children with special needs. The basic goal of these programs is to encourage well-rounded development. The development goal is accomplished through teaching health, language, self-help and socialization skills, large and small muscle movement, and cognitive skills. Teachers, community professionals, family service staff, and parents (whose insight is extremely important) work together to meet this goal through center and home-based activities. Preschool programs are available to families residing in Charlevoix, Emmet, and northern Antrim counties. Those interested in applying must call to make an appointment through the Stepping Stones to School Network, locally at 547-6217 or toll free at (877) 866-3714. Recruitment times and dates for Charlevoix students are 1 to 7 p.m., March 8 and 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., March 9 in the Charlevoix Elementary School computer room.

Ragamuffins move into open Bridge Street space

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Ragamuffins Theatre & Company has found a home on Bridge Street where the public can come and get a taste of the arts. Kathleen Whittaker, creator of Ragamuffin Theatre & Company, said she has always had a passion to see people discover their gifts. "I was so saddened by the loss of the arts in our culture by mindless TV and endless hours on computers," she said. This sadness caused Whittaker to create the Ragamuffins, a children's theater group, and to open an art haven where anyone can come to get a taste of the arts. "One thing Charlevoix lacks is a strong cultural presence," she said. Prior to the new location, Whittaker had used several area churches for space where the Ragamuffins could rehearse and perform. But now with more space, she can keep the Ragamuffins going and open up options for members of the community and those who visit during the summer. "I see this as a place the community can use," Whittaker said. Aside from the Ragamuffins, Whittaker said she wants to host events such as family improv night where families can come and have fun and also an event called Aged to Perfection that focuses on the creative arts in senior citizens. Other planned activities include a mystery theater night, book club events, art symposiums and weekend seminars on subjects such as marriage. There will also be a poetry night, dance classes, art classes and much more. No matter what the event, everything is possible since the Ragamuffin Theatre & Company now has a building to host events in. The building was donated for the use by the Ragamuffin Theatre & Company, but is open for rent once summer comes. However, Whittaker said fund-raising ideas are forming in order to raise money to keep the building. The idea to use the empty space came from Ragamuffin member Meagan Sell. Sell, 15, said she saw the place after driving by with her mother and envisioned the Ragamuffins using it. She said her mother then called Whittaker and a lot of prayer was given over the idea. "It's been a really exciting journey for us," Sell said of the move. The new location, 511 Bridge Street, has housed the Ragamuffin Theatre & Company for a couple of weeks now. The open house for the new location was on Feb. 26 and the Ragamuffins were there to entertain and showcase what the new building will be used for while they inhabit it. Whittaker said several area people and businesses have donated items such as mirrors, furniture and even the building itself. PER RESOLUTION #93-02-01, LOCAL RESIDENTS MAY PETITION THE BOARD OF REVIEW BY LETTER.

	ESTIMATED MULTIPLIERS	TENTATIVE RATIOS
COMMERCIAL	1.11657	44.78
INDUSTRIAL	1.02817	48.63
RESIDENTIAL	1.05507	47.39
PERSONAL PROPERTY	1.00000	50.00

Equalization Ratios, as shown, are the percentages of assessed valuations to true cash value as determined by a survey of individual assessments. The Multipliers are those necessary to bring the Ratios to the required 50% of estimated true cash value. The Multipliers, as shown, are tentative and subject to change as the result of possible adjustments by individual assessing officers. Assuming that no adjustments are made, the Multiplier may be applied to each individual valuation.

Note: These multipliers replace those of 2004 and are not an addition to or subtraction from them.

Crooked Tree to host culinary art series

Back by popular demand, after the great success of last year's culinary classes, Crooked Tree Arts Center will host a Culinary Arts Series with Chef Vincent De Paulis.

Classes are scheduled for every Tuesday evening in March. You are invited to register for any number of classes as each evening is booked individually. Students will explore cooking techniques, learn trade secrets, participate in hands-on learning and enjoy a five-course dinner.

Students are encouraged to bring a French knife, Boning Knife, Paring Knife, Apron and two hand towels and a beverage of choice.

The fee for the class is $40 per student and includes dinner. Class size is limited to 12 people. The class will meet in the Bob Forman Kitchen of the Crooked Tree Arts Center. The arts center is located at 461 E. Mitchell Street, downtown Petoskey. For more information and to enroll, call the arts center at (231) 347-4337.

Elementary school to have dental screening for students Friday

Local dentists Dave Strawbridge, John Merrill and Jeff Porter will provide the annual free dental screening for children despite not having a district school nurse.

The free screening is in observance of National Children's Dental Health Month and was in jeopardy as the school board had made the decision to let go of the district nurse, Sue Dixon, and several aides due to budget concerns.

Strawbridge said the Charlevoix Lions Club will be donating Spongebob Squarepants toothbrushes to the children during the screening.

The screening will take place at 9:30 a.m. on March 4 at Charlevoix Elementary School.

Winter retreat

This Snowy Owl has set up winter residence at the Charlevoix airport. Commonly called the "Arctic Owl," it is strictly a bird of the open country. Rarely seen in a tree it prefers to sit on the ground, a rooftop, or other exposed resting place to sit and wait for food. Snowy Owls summer as far north as the Arctic Circle where they breed on the tundra and feed primarily on lemmings and other ground animals. They are opportunistic feeders who use their sharp talons and beak to subdue their prey. Employees at the airport state that this is the second winter that the owl has called the airport its home.

Center to host marketing program for non-profits

Crooked Tree Arts Center is partnering with the Michigan Association for Community Arts Agencies to present MasterMinds: Strengthening and Sharing Arts and Cultural Knowledge, a series of workshops for arts and culture administrators.

MasterMind Ellen Rosewall will present a workshop on marketing and audience development from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Thursday, April 14 at Crooked Tree Arts Center in Petoskey.

The last few years have seen an increase in the number of nonprofit and service organizations making the role of marketing and audience development vital in the sustainability of arts and cultural organizations.

This workshop will provide participants with the latest research results on audience participation and highlight best practices used in applying these findings to gain future audiences and partnerships.

Ellen Rosewall is a nationally recognized expert on the issues of arts and cultural participation and community development.

Using practical, hands-on activities, Rosewall will help organizations of all sizes understand why people participate in the arts and highlight effective strategies to:

- Develop compelling messages and take advantage of current trends.

- Work with community partners to foster new audiences and enhance existing ones.

- Create an effective, measurable marketing plan.

- Put this training and new ideas into action.

Rosewall is assistant professor of arts management at the University of Wisconsin-

Green Bay.

As a consultant and speaker, she has worked with arts and cultural organizations throughout the nation.

Rosewall was a featured clinician at the 2004 National Arts Marketing Conference and also presented at the 2003 National Convention for Americans for the Arts. She is owner of Art for Pete's Sake!, a business that provides marketing, fund-raising and strategic planning services to arts and cultural organizations and performing artists.

You may register on line at www.maca.org. Save by registering by March 31 for the marketing session. The fee includes all materials, refreshments and lunch.

Locally you may contact Charlevoix and Emmet County Cultural Coordinator Mary Wiklanski at (231) 347-4337 or mary@crookedtrec.org.

Island volleyball beaten in district final Game three saw two big service runs off the hits of Timsak and Adams as the Islanders sailed to a 14-4 lead. The teams then traded points until

"We were excited to play against a really, really good team. Harbor Light is ten times tougher than anyone Game two was much closer in the early going as the Islanders led 3-2. Harbor Light grabbed a 5-3 lead, but the Islanders battled back to tie at 5-5 and trailed 7-6 before the Swordsmen launched an 8-0 run to take control. A 5-0 Harbor Light run made it 19-7. The Islanders netted the next three points, including an ace by Leaha Cary, but Harbor Light closed out game two on a six-point run for another 25-10 decision.

Coach Boyle acknowledged the recent success the Islanders have shown with back-to-back district championship appearances. "For years we never could win one of three games at districts. A few years ago we finally won one game in a match. Then we won a match. And now this."

The two district matches wrap up a successful Islanders season with an impressive 14-2 overall record.

Volleyball season ends for Rayders

By B. JON GOHS
Sports writer

"I think the whole team played really well. They pushed to the end on every point."

Liz Grunch,
Volleyball coach

The Rayders netted their second varsity volleyball conference win in two years and despite early elimination from districts, Charlevoix is pleased to end the season on a high note.

On Thursday evening the lady Rayders secured their 13-1 conference winning record against Kalkaska with scores of 21-25, 26-24, 25-15 and 26-24.

"It was a nice accomplishment for our program and our senior girls, who worked so hard all season long. They definitely deserved the win," said coach Liz Grunch.

The Rayders started out slow, but came on strong in close competition.

"I think the whole team played really well," she said. "They pushed to the end on every point."

Players of mention were Zita

Anderson with 26 assists, Betsey Dennis with 15 of 16 serve-receives, five blocks and 23 digs, Teresa Martin with 22 digs, 11 kills and Kari Way had 16 kills, 16 digs and three blocks.

On Saturday, still fired up from their conference win, Charlevoix met East Jordan in the first round of district play.

"We came out strong," Grunch said. "It was a good team win."

Charlevoix advanced to the second round with scores of 25-19, 25-9 and 25-16.

Two heading to state swim meet

From 3:30-5 p.m. every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, Alex Gooch and Evan McCormick can be found at the Charlevoix Area Community Pool training as members of the Charlevoix Stingrays Swim Team. McCormick has been a swimmer in the Stingray program for almost a year, while Gooch has been competing for five years. Both Gooch and McCormick are 10 years old, both stand about 4 feet tall and both are among the fastest breaststrokers in their age group, in the state of Michigan. Gooch and McCormick have both qualified, in the 50-yard breaststroke, for the Michigan Team Swim League State Championships, which will be on Sunday, March 6 at Alma College. This will be the first time that two Stingrays swimmers have qualified for the state meet in the same event. This will be Gooch's second time at the state championships — he qualified two years ago. Residents: Other cultures should be taught racial characteristics.

HISTORY

"Up here, it's just vacant," Dixon said.

Black History Month isn't about African Americans only. Dixon said, it's about honoring all races that helped shape America.

"I feel we should have more, but if we get just one month then let's make it a good month," he said.

Dixon said he is not about going out and fighting the white culture, but is only asking for respect. He is also concerned about his daughter knowing who she is while growing up in a predominantly white world.

Dixon has had three encounters with direct racism while living in Charlevoix. In three separate incidents while in area restaurants and bars Dixon faced fights due to his skin color.

As a young man in Saginaw, Dixon grew up learning that everyone should be treated how he wanted to be treated. Dixon carried this to heart and doesn't see color when he meets people.

"I don't see color, I see human beings," he said. Larry Denemy, 30, is half Native American and half Caucasian and said Black History Month is important and should be commemorated more.

"You've got to have a reminder," he said. "You got to have something to serve as a reminder."

Denemy said he hasn't seen a lot to remind him of Black History Month in northern Michigan. There aren't signs or posters, but Denemy said there was a little recognition on CNN.

Personally, Denemy tries to keep up to date with what is going on with other cultures and their stories.

In Charlevoix, Denemy said there definitely wasn't much recognition, if any at all, of Black History Month. However, he said the popular decision making process doesn't see a need for it because of the demographics of the city.

"It seems like the smaller towns are more accepting," he said.

Denemy grew up with a mother who taught him about other cultures and went to South Haven High School where different cultures were accepted. But, in northern Michigan white people haven't been that open to learning about cultures different from their own.

The older generations, who lived through the Civil Rights Movement, aren't passing on new knowledge to the younger generations. Curtis said many of them don't necessarily hate people of other cultures, but are passing on a limited view to their children and grandchildren.

As a child, Curtis grew up with a mother who accepted everyone and taught her daughter to do the same.

"I think I have a lot of different opinions than other people," she said. "I feel more mature about other cultures."

Curtis has faced racism for her father's cultural heritage being Spanish and Mexican and said people don't realize the contributions other cultures have made to the country.

"We wouldn't have anything without other cultures," she said.

Meghan Vogel, 21, is Caucasian, grew up in Charlevoix and graduated from Charlevoix High School. She said she can't believe Black History Month isn't honored more in the area since it is very important.

"We have to avoid ignorance with all that we've got," she said.

As a white society, Vogel said it is even more important to commemorate Black History Month.

"I don't want my children to think a black hero is a rap star," she said. "He hasn't done something for humankind."

Martin Luther King Jr. and other figures have done much more for human strength and should be honored and admired, Vogel said, and not rap or sports stars.

Vogel said more should be done to honor Black History Month in Charlevoix, but she doesn't care how someone goes about educating themselves.

Reading a book or watching a film are two ways to self-educate, but Vogel said the importance is doing it.

"As intelligent people we need to do something," she said.

As a child, Curtis remembers always getting Martin Luther King Jr. Day off from school, but also learning why she had the day off.

"Even though you grow older you still need to learn," she said.

Charlevoix High School puts up posters for Black History Month, but doesn't really do much else.

"None of the teachers take the time to make sure people understand," she said.

Educating others is very important, Curtis said, as most of the racial problems she's seen in Charlevoix stem from people not understanding a culture different from their own.

Denemy and his cousin were thought to be robbers when walking into a motel lobby when they only wanted to rent a room.

In another incident, Denemy and his cousins were stopped by a police officer because they had medium-length hair and were walking around in East Jordan.

However, the police gave them a ride home after a group of white men wanted to pick a fight because they were talking to some girls.

"I definitely identify with black people first before anyone else," he said. "They've struggled more than most white Americans. I'm a sucker for the underdog, I am the underdog."

Suzanne Curtis, 17, is half Spanish and Mexican and half Caucasian and said nothing is really done in Charlevoix to promote Black History Month or any other culture for that matter.

Curtis grew up in Las Vegas and was surrounded by people of varying walks of life, but when she moved to Charlevoix in the middle of sixth grade she realized not everyone was open to others.

A junior at Charlevoix High School, Curtis said not much is done to commemorate Black History Month or Martin Luther King Jr. Day.

"Martin Luther King Jr. Day is just another day at Charlevoix High School," she said.

Amendments could be petitioned demolition of the current band shell and construction of a new one.

The city designed these two separate ordinances due to rumors of a possible referendum based on plans to tear down the current band shell. The city feared this would impact its funding from the Waterways Commission, so it designed to amendments with the hopes that if a referendum is brought to the people it will be on the "fifth" amendment only.

But, because Charlevoix City Manager Mike Wiesner added plans for an ice rink in the "fourth" amendment, if the city council does not take out the rink, there may be two petitions seeking a referendum.

The city council can make changes to the amendments before passing them.

Picha said she has no problem with fixing the sea wall at the marina and no problem with floating docks.

But, she said she thinks by cutting back the East Park project the community would be better off financially.

"I think the DDA could pay for that with less money than what they are going to pay to turn this into the East Park Yacht Club," she said.

Picha said the feedback on possible petitions has been very positive.

"I think that is what made me continue to pursue this," she said.

Another resident behind the possible petition drive is former mayor Gabe Campbell. Campbell said a petition drive is not set in stone.

"If they pull out the rink and leave the band shell alone, I don't think they will have a problem," he said.

Campbell may get half of his wish as many council members have expressed concern over the fourth amendment's inclusion of an ice rink.

Councilmember Bob Timms said, "I want to cut that ice rink out before it even gets that far."

Council member Sherman Chamberlain and mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson agreed and both said the current ice rink by the Charlevoix Middle School works just fine.

All three said the plans for a new band shell will probably stay, amendment five will probably pass and there will probably be a referendum on it. But, all three did say the band shell is not their biggest concern.

Timms said, "The band shell probably would be better by Antrim Street, but if enough people are upset about moving it, I don't really care if it stays in the middle of the park."

Chamberlain said the current band shell has bad acoustics, but said maybe it should go to public vote.

"If a majority of the people don't want us to touch the band shell, that is fine by me," he said.

Carlson said personally he would like both amendments to go before the public, but said council must be the ones to make a decision on this.

As for the band shell, if the fifth amendment does pass and it does go to a referendum, he said, "Whatever way the people vote I would be in full support. I see both sides to the band shell argument."

The public is invited to speak about these two amendments to the DDA plan at 7 p.m., Monday, March 7 at Charlevoix City Hall.

Council mulls park, marina

Decision on amendments to be decided on March 14

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix City Council has pushed back its decision on two amendments to the Downtown Development Authority plan dealing with a new marina and changes to East Park to a March 14 meeting.

The decision to wait until that meeting came in light of the latest of the Monday meeting — which did not adjourn until around 11:30 p.m. — and many public comments given at it.

"After getting all the public input, they (council) wanted some time to come to a decision," said Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson.

About 70 people attended the Monday night meeting, many to give their opinion on the two amendments to the DDA plan. Most of the opinions revolved around amendment four's inclusion of an ice rink and moving of a submarine memorial and amendment five's plan to tear down the current band shell and replace it with a new one near Mason Street.

Carlson stressed to the audience that individual designs in the park, such as the size of the harbor master's building and various items in the park, like park benches, are only conceptual. Those items will be examined more in the design stage of the park and marina planning.

Charlevoix veteran Charlie Butcher spoke to the council about the submarine veteran's memorial located in East Park possibly being moved to a new location in Veteran's Park.

"The submariners under no circumstance want that memorial moved. The Veteran's of Foreign Wars would support the submariners if they do not want that memorial moved," he said.

Bill Henne, vice president of WATCH, spoke out about the storm water controls in the plan. He said the plan shows storm sewers draining into Round Lake with no treatment.

"Round Lake has always been a target of all storm sewers in Charlevoix. As a consequence it is polluted," he said.

Henne said he would like to see the plan address storm water treatment, which he said is relatively easy to do and there are several

Will city get a new ship?

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

According to Coast Guard Acacia Captain Keith Bills, Charlevoix has a chance to get a new ship in the coming years.

Bills said this during a discussion on the city's marina plans Monday night. The Acacia is slated to be decommissioned or transferred from Charlevoix in May 2006. Officially there is no ship that is slated to replace the Acacia, but Bills said a request has been made to bring the 140-foot Morro Bay to the Great Lakes. He added other ports on the Great Lakes will be vying for it.

"In order to make Charlevoix more appealing, I think some modifications have to be made. Then again, there is no official word that it is coming," he said.

Bills added, "The decision for a home port will be based on a lot of factors, such as the existing infrastructure and the proximity of where it will be needed. Charlevoix is certainly one of the potential home ports, but Cheboygan and others are also in the running."

The Morro Bay is currently located in New York harbor, where it has been stationed since around Sept. 11, 2001, and is slated for ice breaking.

Bill said a request for the ship in the Great Lakes was made sometime last summer by Admiral Ron Silva. He is since retired. He added he believes a second request has been made.

A replacement may be in the works for the Acacia.

Bills is not sure when a decision will be made on the Morro Bay. He said the Coast Guard is undergoing some restructuring and "the whole plane is contingent on New York receiving additional patrol boats."

"There are a lot of things that have to happen before a final decision can be made," he said.

Under the proposed marina plans for Charlevoix, the Morro Bay could dock in Round Lake, but it would have some difficulty in heavy ice conditions.

Lexalite to sell US-31 property

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The property of Lexalite in Charlevoix on US-31 north, near the Big Rock nuclear power plant, is planned to be put up for sale by Summa Industries.

Summa Industries announced on March 3 that it plans to sell the Michigan parcel of its property. That parcel is Lexalite in Charlevoix and is approximately 13.6 acres, including about 1,700 linear feet of shoreline on Lake Michigan.

Jim Swartwout, of Summa Industries, said Lexalite will not be leaving. He said Summa Industries owns several other facilities and the Charlevoix site is merely one of them.

As stated in a press release by Summa Industries, the Charlevoix property is expected to generate a lot of interest because of the tourist town attraction. The statement said that the tourist town atmosphere has potential to attract those inter-

Chamber, DDA spar over funding

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce and the Downtown Development Authority are at odds over the position of a Downtown Coordinator in Charlevoix and a request for $50,000.

The position, whose salary is shared by both the chamber and the Downtown Development Authority, was created in the early 1990s. The chamber is a private business group.

Authority chair Hugh Mason said, "We have been funding the downtown coordinator since 1992, and we haven't heard back from the chamber on what the downtown coordinator has done."

According to the authority, its purpose was to bring more businesses to the downtown area, but it has changed into one that concentrates more on bringing more tourists, groups and events to the downtown area. Because of this, the authority decided in December to not fund its portion of the position — $13,000.

"It is not getting accomplished what we want it to accomplish. So, we are sitting back and saying, 'Let's take another look at it,'" Mason said.

Charlevoix mayor and authority member Norman "Boogie" Carlson added it all comes down to the chamber communicating with the authority.

"I would like to know what the money is being used for," Carlson said. "I want to know what the downtown coordinator is going to do."

But, the chamber maintains that the downtown coordinator still works on bringing business to the downtown, but has added the duties of bringing more people to the downtown area through groups and events. Therefore, the chamber is protesting the removal of that funding.

"I believe and we believe the economy in Charlevoix needs additional promoting in the off season," said Jacqueline Merta, chamber director. "We would like to put in some events in the off season that would bring additional people in downtown."

Merta said the cut in funding for the downtown coordinator comes at a bad time for the chamber as it only has $4,000 in the bank. The chamber has an annual budget of around $300,000.

Merta said this is due to drops in membership, which she blames on a poor economy.

She said she will not start billing members until August, but said the chamber does have various events until that time that generate revenue for it. Merta also added dues are volunteer payments and not all the members pay them.

"I have never had to borrow money to make payroll and I sure hope I don't now," Merta said.

But, to help them out, the chamber is asking the Downtown Development Authority not only to reinstate its funding for the downtown coordinator, but it is taking on an additional $10,000 to cover expenses to continue for the summer concert series — which has been discontinued by the Charlevoix Convention and Visitor's Bureau — and an additional $27,000 to "promote Charlevoix." This comes to a total of $50,000.

Carlson said he hopes the chamber and the authority will come to a compromise on the downtown coordinator positions, but he does not know if the authority will fund that additional amount of money.

And, Carlson said, he is hoping the chamber communicates more with the authority than it has in the past. Carlson added authority members did not even know who the current downtown coordinator was.

Merta said the downtown coordinator is Cindy Martin, who was employed with the chamber in a clerical position before. She said Martin was hired in September last year.

She said she asked the chamber board of directors and Charlevoix City Manager Mike Wiesner before hiring Martin.

The Downtown Development Authority will have a special meeting on the chamber matter at 5:30 p.m., March 15 in Charlevoix City Hall.

Stay safe on the ice this spring

While it seems nature is teasing us this March with warm and cold weather, sometimes in the same day, this changing of temperatures brings to light a safety issue on the ice.

Since the weather is warming — we hope — the ice on the lake around Charlevoix will be starting to diminish, thus making it very unsafe to venture out on the lakes. While one portion of the lake ice may be nice and thick, it could be only a half-an-inch thick just a few feet away.

Recently Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater suggested some safety tips for those who insist on going out on the frozen water.

"If you do break through the ice, there are some things you can do to avoid serious injury or death.

"First try not to panic and thrash about. The air in your clothes will help you float. Yell for help. Turn toward the direction that you came from. The ice is likely to be stronger there. Place your arms on the edge of the solid ice. Keys, a pocket knife, ice pick, or a belt buckle will help you grip the ice."

"Once you've got a grip on

EDITORIAL

the ice, kick your legs hard and pull yourself up on the ice. If the ice breaks, move forward and try again. When you're out, do not stand up, but roll away from the break and stand only when you've reached solid ice.

"Go to a place of shelter and warm up immediately."

The United States Coast Guard adds people who venture out on the ice should go prepared.

The public can bring several items with them that can aid in survival including a life jacket, ice awls, signal mirror, whistle, strobe lights, boat pole, a 15 to 20 foot line and flares, according to the Coast Guard.

It should be added that you should under no circumstances be driving vehicles of any type out on the ice. We see this very thing happening on area lakes every winter and it makes us shudder each time.

For more information on keeping yourself safe on the ice, contact the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department at 547-4461 or the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station at 547-2565.

Writer sings praises of natural feel-good drug

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

It is probably not a good idea to publicly announce that I use a powerful, addictive drug, but I have a reasonable explanation.

My drug of choice is an outstanding pain reliever and has very pleasant effects on mood and satisfaction. More importantly, it doesn't cost anything. I have used this drug since late childhood and I make it myself. This drug is really a group of drugs called endorphins and they are made in the pituitary gland of my brain. Endorphins are made in the brain of everyone and are freely available with only a little effort. They are at least part of the reason that work is something like its own reward.

I grew up in an agricultural community where the word "work" meant physical labor. Most often moving something heavy from one place to another or building something or splitting wood and piling it up. I can still recall my confusion when faced with an image in my second-grade reader of a father picking up a brief case and going to "work." I knew by that time what work was and going to an "office" did not count.

Much of the work I knew about involved things that had to be done, such as caring for animals or harvesting crops. The animals, plants and weather determined just when and how much work needed to be done. The worker had few individual choices and certainly had no set working hours.

I was surrounded in those early years by people who had spent lifetimes doing difficult, often exhausting physical work and who were not worn down by that effort. Many of them enjoyed their work and seemed to derive pleasure from being able to do it. It is only in the last couple of decades that research caught up with the reasons for their satisfaction. They were feeling the effects of their self-made, pleasure-producing, pain-dulling drugs: their endorphins.

Most of us have heard of a "runner's high," that feeling of pleasure that comes after you have jogged more than a couple of miles. I am pretty sure that all those people around me during my childhood years were familiar with the feeling. We could call it a worker's high, although no one in the 1940s or 50s would have used that language. Prolonged aerobic exercise causes the brain to increase production of endorphins and those endorphins cause us to feel good about ourselves and the world.

Now, that is a drug we can all use with safety and at no cost. Endorphin is described as a natural opiate and has many of the same effects as artificially supplied opium or its derivatives, morphine and heroin. And since endorphin is almost as addictive as other opiates, once you have felt its effects you will want to feel them again.

I am reminded of the power of endorphins every time there is a significant snowfall. I am the proud possessor of 180 linear feet of driveway and parking area and 50 feet of front sidewalk.

If it has 6 inches of new snow on it I walk nearly a mile in the 40 minutes it takes to clear it all with a snow scoop. About halfway through that activity, I begin to feel really good about what I am doing and finish the work on that mental high. My endorphins have kicked in and are not only shutting off any small pain I might feel, but are encouraging my brain to feel pleasure.

Having spent nearly my whole adult life carrying a briefcase and sitting in an office, I am pleased to be periodically reminded that physical work can be its own reward.

There is an additional positive aspect to physical labor. What could be called mindless work carries the possibility of freeing the mind for great thoughts. While it is true that I have as yet had no great thoughts while shoveling snow, such thoughts are at least possible during those times — I await the revelations.

It is only fair to point out that the same pleasure-inducing drugs are made by our brains when we meditate or pray. Prayer and meditation are also, it seems, their own reward. Psychologists commonly prescribe physical activity of some sort as partial treatment for depression, at least partly because it can increase the production of endorphins. And finally, endorphins can enhance the activity of the immune system and help us to resist disease and infection.

The rewards for work can be far more than economic. Networking does not increase endorphins.

Stress does not increase them, nor do extra hours at the computer station, no matter how much those may be related to economic success. What we might be tempted to call drudgery can make us feel good about ourselves and the world. Work on.

Respect McSauba

Editor:
As parents of three avid snowboarders, Mt. McSauba is an affordable way to enjoy this sport frequently.

We want to acknowledge and thank Bo Boss and his entire staff for all their hard work in providing this opportunity. With the ever-increasing discovery of this sport, he and his staff are working diligently to build a much needed snowboard park. It is the future of this ski hill to remain vibrant in this community and this snowboard park will help maintain that. It is breathing new life into Mt. McSauba.

Recently I had the opportunity to spend the day on the back hill. I watched these kids — and some adults — do what they love best — catch air! It was a great time to watch all the snowboarders and skiers enjoy the jumps. The snowboard park is a good addition to the ski hill; it should be respected by all who enjoy it and use it.

Most of the time that is true but sadly enough there are a few who have chosen to abuse this privilege. Parents of snowboarders please take time to stress the importance of respecting the rules and those in authority at the ski hill.

Many hours of hard work go into Mt. McSauba to make it a safe place to ski and snowboard. Please tell your kids to be respectful and to set an example of being a responsible snowboarder and skier. The rules are in place for the safety of everyone.

Enjoy Mt. McSauba, respect it and it will be here a long time!

Budget decision tabled to March 14

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix residents have a little more time to give their opinion on the city's proposed 2005-2006 budget before the city council makes a decision on it.

Instead of deciding on the budget Monday night, council voted to table the matter to a meeting on March 14. Council will be accepting written comments from residents on the budget until 5 p.m., Wednesday.

However, council will not be taking any more public comment at its meetings on the matter. According to the city attorney, the council has already had a public hearing on the budget and cannot reopen the hearing.

The proposed city budget for 2005-2006 shows a total of $29.9 million in it, but 57 percent of that is money for capital improvement projects such as the marina and East Park and much of that money is from federal and state grants. Because of this, the budget shows large increases in both revenues and expenditures as compared to the 2004-2005 budget.

In 2004-2005, the city budgeted $16,994,531 in revenues and $16,989,288 in expenditures. However, the 2005-2006 proposed budget shows $30,101,033 in revenues and $29,822,470 in expenditures because of construction projects the city will tackle this year and the grant money it has received for them.

The marina and East Park project is at the top of this list with a cost of $10,570,200. While this debt sits in the city budget, the state Waterways Commission will be paying for 74 percent of it and the Downtown Development Authority will cover the rest.

The second largest capital project is the airport snow removal building slated to cost $1,954,000. Grants are paying for a large portion of that project too.

Also included in the proposed budget are increases in the electric, water and sewer rates.

According to the proposed budget, residents who use city water, sewer and electric services will see an average increase of about $3.76 per month with the addition of a $1.40 per month "ready to serve" charge for sewer users and a 40 cent user charge for electric and water users.

City officials say these increases are needed to help the funds break even over the next few years. Without them, the funds will exhaust their fund balances quickly.

Council will meet at 7 p.m., Monday, March 14 to decide the fate of the budget.

Skate park to have McSauba fund-raiser

In a year's time the fund-raising group known as Charlevoix Community Skatepark, Inc. has helped raise almost $32,000 toward their goal of a local custom built skatepark for area kids.

They are partnered with the City of Charlevoix to provide a safe and challenging skate area for the area's enthusiast's of skateboarding, inline skating and BMX cycling. The city is providing the land and the liability insurance but no other financial support. The skatepark design chosen by the students is on display at the Mt. McSauba Ski Hill.

It is a unique park designed only for Charlevoix by skatepark designer and builder Surburbanrails of Ohio. It will be located by the Carpenter St. ball fields. Hopefully ground-breaking will take place in the spring.

At this time the fund-raising group is applying for grants at local and national levels. As recently as last week they received a $500 grant from the Grand Traverse Bay Bands of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians for their endeavor. Previously they have been awarded a grant of $10,000 by the Charlevoix County Community Foundation. Locally the Charlevoix Lions Club purchased a skate table for the park.

Recently a fund-raising letter went out to area businesses to solicit funds and according to the group the response has been encouraging thus far as to donations from this mailing.

The next big fund-raiser will be Sunday, March 13, at Mt. McSauba. Registration will start at 11 a.m. with the first event starting at 1 p.m.

It is the "Charlevoix Skatepark Snow Challenge" and will feature two competitive events: boarder-cross and snowboard scramble and a freestyle snowboard exhibition on the front hill for parents and spectators to enjoy.

Currently the snowboard park is on the back hill and cannot be seen unless you walk to the base of the back hill via the cross-country trails.

Mt. McSauba Manager Bo Boss has agreed to build a jump for that day on the front for them.

Separate concessions provided by the Skatepark Committee will also be available. T-shirts and "hoodies" will also be available for purchase.

For information on the event please call 547-8063.

Lyla Pearl McMillan Arvilla: Oct. 9, 1914 - March 6, 2005

On Oct. 9, 1914, in Indian River, Lyla Pearl came into this world she grew to love so very much, the second daughter of Dr. F. F. and Hazel McMillan. She left it, March 6, 2005, at 6:30 a.m., with the sun dawning the new day. She left it much better than she found it.

Lyla Arvilla

Lyla Pearl was preceded in her now elevated position duly warranted, by her sister Freda, brother Albert, mother and father, Hazel and Fray, son Albert named after her brother, and grandson Erik, all of whom she joins with our Lord.

During Lyla's journey of the Earth, she graduated Charlevoix High School as valedictorian and Albion College, Summa Cum Laude as Phi Beta Kappa in Alpha Chi Omega.

During her marriage, she delivered into her community three sons, Joel, Erik and Albert and identical twins daughters, Erin and Ellen.

Lyla continued her move forward joining Eastern Star traveling the chairs more than once to become Worthy Matron. She was prominent in the Mary Jean Tenet Circle, UMC of Charlevoix and UMW of Petoskey. She was President of the WSCS, the Shakespeare Study Club and numerous community boards and church groups. Within this, as an accomplished pianist, violinist and cellist, she concertized and taught many students the joys and wonders of great, good music.

In the mid 1950s, St. Francis schools in Petoskey solicited her immense talents to substitute teach music and history and soon thereafter, English. This temporary position became a 25-year commitment to excellence, witnessed by the hundreds of past students who have continued to communicate with her in their own lives.

Lyla's tremendous hold on life and her faith guided and stayed the course all these precious years. Her participation in and financial support of the First United Methodist Church in Charlevoix is visible everywhere you look in and out of the building.

Lyla's fiduciary responsibilities extended to physical and financial support of the Charlevoix Area Hospital which her Father Dr. F. F. McMillan, M.D., Co-founded.

Lyla's enjoyment of life was absolutely boundless and she was involved in her community at all levels for nearly 91 years, including softball, selling popcorn and hotdogs, also traveling, bird-watching and reading full moons and sunsets.

Lyla Pearl McMillan Arvilla was loved by generations and loved generations. We all will miss her.

Charitable contributions can be made to Lyla Arvilla Trust For Mitral Valve Research, P.O. Box 201, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

A funeral service will be at 3 p.m., Saturday, March 12 at the Charlevoix United Methodist Church. The family of Lyla McMillan Arvilla — Joel and Erik, Erin and Mel, Dana Ellen and Mary Rose, Andy and Stacey, Dave and Sharon — hopes you will come to share memories and love.

A special thank you to Compassionate Care and Hospice Angels. A full memorial service, with all the music Lyla loved so much, will be given in May.

Daphnia Luella Dennis: June 14, 1915 - March 3, 2005

Daphnia "Dee" Luella Dennis, 89, of Ellsworth, formerly of Charlevoix, passed away March 3, 2005, at Grandview, in the company of her loving family.

Dee was born June 14, 1915, in Gladwin County, to William and Mary Baumgardner.

The family moved to Charlevoix, where she grew up and raised a family of her own. In 1933, she married William Brodin.

They had four children, three sons and a daughter. They divorced in 1950.

On Oct. 25, 1955, she married Jules Gordon Dennis. They made their home in Ellsworth, where they attended the Wesleyan Church.

They enjoyed spending winters in Florida.

Dee's favorite pastime was spending time with family, especially her grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Being grandma was a special role to her. She was a wonderful and loving grandmother.

Dee enjoyed gardening, cooking for family and friends and baking her famous pies.

Survivors include three children, Bill (Ginny) Brodin of Charlevoix, Nancy Higbee of Ellsworth, Gary (Rita) Brodin of Charlevoix; two stepsons, James Dennis of Wisconsin, Robert Dennis of East Jordan; two sisters, Sylvia Krehak of Charlevoix and Bonnie Cabana of the Detroit area; 12 grandchildren, Ernie and Vincent Brodin, Scott (Celeste) Muma, Holly Higbee, James (Julie) Higbee, Jeff and Bill Brodin, Debra Erickson, Gary and Steve Brodin, Teresa (Ronald) Baker, Tonya (Sean) Russell; 31 great-grandchildren; four great-great-grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by her parents; sisters, Violet Boyd and Cassie McCash; brother, William Baumgardner; first husband, William Brodin; son, Larry Brodin; husband, Gordon Dennis; stepson, Charles Dennis; son-in-law, Richard (Nancy) Higbee; grandchild, Dawn Brodin; great-grandchild, Thomas Brodin.

Dee was a kind and loving person who will be greatly missed by all whose lives she touched.

Visitation was Sunday, March 6, at Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. A funeral service was Monday, March 7, at the funeral home.

Barbara J. Eckhold: Dec. 28, 1922 - March 6, 2005

Barbara J. Eckhold of Charlevoix died Sunday March 6, 2005 in Midland at the home of her son with her family in attendance.

The only child of Frank R. and Elizabeth H. Jackson, she was born Dec. 28, 1922 in Detroit.

After graduation from Eastern Michigan University in 1943, with a degree in Special Education, Barbara taught in Detroit.

She married John (Jack) C. Eckhold Jan. 11, 1947 in Bowling Green, Ohio and stayed home to raise her two sons, John and Scott.

The family lived in the Detroit area and Cologne, Germany until Jack's retirement from Ford Motor Company in 1982.

Barb and Jack made their retirement home in Charlevoix, wintering in Bradenton, Fla.

Barbara leaves behind her sons John (Peggy) of Midland and Scott (Carrie) of Petoskey and grandchildren Erin, Patrick, Reed and Duncan.

She was predeceased by her parents, her husband Jack in 1989 and grandson, John III in 2003.

Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. on Saturday, March 12 at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix with Elder Cliff Denay of The First Presbyterian Church of Petoskey presiding. The family will greet friends from noon until the time of the service.

Burial will be at Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Those wishing to make a donation in memory of Barb are asked to consider The John C. Eckhold, III Memorial Scholarship Fund at the Midland Area Community Foundation, 109 East Main St., PO Box 289, Midland, MI 48640.

Friske Orchards names winners of recipe contest

Friske's Second Annual Cherry Recipe Contest was the culmination of a month long celebration of National Cherry Month.

Family, friends and passersbys looked on as the judges tasted and selected the winners. Twelve finalists in two categories, entrees and side dishes, brought their prepared dishes for judging. This year's judges were Chef Pet Peterson (Tapawingo-Ellsworth), Food Editor Babette Stenuis (Petoskey News-Review), Assistant Food Editor Emily Tyra (Traverse Magazine) and food connoisseur Jack Stolz (Petoskey).

In the entree category the finalists were Sandy Barnes, Eastport, Bethany Bowman, Boyne City, Diane Bowman, Boyne City, Katie Bowman, Boyne City, Betty Renner, Central Lake, and Virginia Rubingh, Ellsworth. First place was awarded to Virginia Rubingh with her cherry chicken salad using frozen red tart cherries. Katie Bowman took second place with her chicken with cherry sauce dish using frozen black sweet cherries. Third place went to Betty Renner for Betty's north country meatballs using red tart cherry juice concentrate and Friske's cherry mustard.

The finalists in the side dish category were Sandra Biagini, Northport, Shawn Biddle, Eastport, Anne Chaffee, Petoskey, Gayle Gennett, Charlevoix, Janice Harvey, Charlevoix, and Helen Heitman, Bellaire. First place was captured by Anne Chaffee for her dried cherry couscous using dried red tart cherries. Gayle Gennett took second place with her cherry cheese pierogi using frozen red tart cherries. Third place was awarded to Shawn Biddle for her cherry pecan pilaf using dried red tart cherries.

Culinary art series offered

Back by popular demand, after the great success of last year's culinary classes, Crooked Tree Arts Center will host a Culinary Arts Series with Chef Vincent De Paulis.

Classes are scheduled for every Tuesday evening in March. You are invited to register for any number of classes as each evening is booked individually. Students will explore cooking techniques, learn trade secrets, participate in hands-on learning and enjoy a five-course dinner. Students are encouraged to bring a French knife, boning knife, paring knife, apron and two hand towels and a beverage of choice. The fee for the class is $40 per student and includes dinner. Class size is limited to 12 people. The class will meet in the Boh Forman Kitchen of the Crooked Tree Arts Center. The arts center is located at 461 E. Mitchell Street, downtown Petoskey. For more information and to enroll, call the arts center at (231) 347-4337.

Geraldine L. Goss: June 2, 1921 - March 7, 2005

Geraldine L. Goss, 83, of Charlevoix, died March 7, 2005, at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Private family services will be given at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Gerry was born June 2, 1921, in Detroit, the daughter of Charles J. and Mary (Gregory) Spare. In 1943, she graduated from Wayne State University with a bachelor of science in education.

Gerry taught school in Detroit for three years and married Robert Goss there on May 30, 1947. They moved to Charlevoix in 1949, where she continued to teach, retiring in 1980.

Gerry is survived by two daughters, Toni (Vance) Wood, and Mari (J. C.) Bascom, all of Charlevoix; three grandchildren, Travis (Kelly)

Wood, and Corey Bascom of Charlevoix, and Jess Wood of Chicago. Her husband Bob preceded her in death in 1969.

Her family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Charlevoix Public Library or the Charlevoix Area Hospital. A graveside service is planned for spring at the Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Milford L. Hayward: Feb. 18, 1925 - March 4, 2005

Milford L. Hayward, 80, of East Jordan, died at his home on March 4, 2005.

A funeral was Tuesday, March 8, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Dan Gilmore of the Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene officiated, and interment will be in Marlette Cemetery in Marlette.

Milford was born Feb. 18, 1925, in Brown City, the son of Floyd L. and Ula E. (Smith) Hayward. He married the former Marjorie A. Harris on July 27, 1946, in Pontiac.

They lived in Pontiac where Milford was employed at the General Motors Pontiac Plant for over 38 years. He was a member of UAW Local 653.

They moved to northern Michigan eight years ago. Milford attended the Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene, and was a member of the Charlevoix Senior Citizens.

He is survived by his wife, Marjorie A. of East Jordan; daughter, Ellen "Ellie" Hisey of Charlevoix; sons, Rodney (Ruby) Hayward of Charlevoix and Gary (Mari) Hayward of Auburn Hills; grandchildren, Wayne (Aimee) Eubanks, Mike (Lisa) Annes, Debra (Chad) Minton; great-grandchildren, Brandon, Jaimee, Bradley, Laurel, Kyr, Elaine and Andrew; sisters, Joyce A. Reichard of Pontiac, Eunice (Julian) Baker and Shirley (Robert) Jimeron all of Tarpon Springs, Fla.

Milford was preceded in death by a sister, Alice Shue, and a brother, Leonard.

In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to the Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene.

Grace Boyle Matela: Sept. 9, 1937 - March 1, 2005

Grace Boyle Matela, 67, of Beaver Island, died unexpectedly in Grand Rapids on March 1, 2005.

A Mass of the Resurrection was Saturday, March 5, at Holy Cross Catholic Church on Beaver Island where she was a member, with the Rev. Patrick Cawley officiating.

Cremation will follow the service and interment will take place at Holy Cross Cemetery.

Grace was born Sept. 9, 1937, on

Beaver Island, the daughter of Jack and Beatrice (O'Donnell) Boyle. She moved to Chicago as a young girl where she graduated from Mercy High School.

On Oct. 13, 1956, she married Raymond A. Matela in Chicago.

Grace was a selfless community volunteer, and always put others' interests before her own. She will be greatly missed by her wonderful family and friends.

Grace is survived by her husband, Raymond A.; sons, Raymond M. (Nancy Jo) Matela of Hemet, Calif., Thomas E. and John D. of Beaver Island; daughters, Vicki Lynn (Dana) Smith of Puyallup, Wash., Elizabeth A. (Mark) Davis and Joan T. (Ashley) Gilpin all of Hemet, Calif.; grandchildren, Jamie, Theresa and Tommy, Hunter and Parker Matela; Amanda and Adam Smith; Zachary and Tory Davis and Shay; mother Beatrice Boyle of Beaver Island; brothers and sisters, Daniel Morris (Sally) Boyle of Crete, Ill., John (Marge) Boyle of Bloomington, Minn., Jean (Gary) McDonough of North Fort Meyers, Fla., Bernie (Kathy) Boyle of Reno, Nev., Donald (Chris) Boyle of Tinley Park, Ill., Theresa Gackel of Scottsdale, Ariz., Steve Boyle of Beaver Island, Timothy Boyle of Chicago, Susan (Doug) Heyning of Grand Rapids, Neal (Connie) Boyle, and Patrick Boyle of Beaver Island; sister-in-law, Romaine (Boh) McCarthy of Marco Island, Fla.

A daughter, Christine, and sister, Sharon Simpson, preceded Grace in death.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Holy Cross Catholic Church on Beaver Island or to the Beaver Island Preservation Society.

Marguerite O. Makel: May 4, 1910 - Feb. 28, 2005

Marguerite O. (Goodrich) Makel, of Okemos, and formerly of Charlevoix, beloved wife, mother, grandmother, great-grandmother and educator passed from this life at Burcham Hills Health Center in East Lansing on Feb. 28, 2005.

She was born 94 years ago in Gaylord on May 4, 1910, the eldest of six children to Dan and Daisy Goodrich. She graduated from Gaylord High School in 1926 and borrowed $100 from the Gaylord State Bank to attend Central Michigan College, where she earned her teacher's certificate.

She began her lifelong career in the field of education at the Red School in Gaylord. It was at this time that she met and married John Makel, her loving husband of 44 years, during his tenure as high school athletic coach in Gaylord.

She subsequently earned her bachelor of arts and master of arts degrees in elementary education at CMU.

She taught elementary and junior high students at several Michigan schools including Gaylord, Elmira, Lansing, Haslett, Boyne City and Charlevoix.

Marguerite and her family resided in Charlevoix from 1959 to 1970 where she was actively involved in many community activities. She also resided for many years at Grange Acres in Haslett and recently moved to Burcham Hills Retirement Community.

She was a member of the Burcham Hills Choir and was honored as Resident of the Month in December 2004. Marguerite was also a life member and past Worthy Matron of the Chrysanthemum Chapter Order of the Eastern Star in Gaylord. She loved to knit, crochet and do other handiwork and made many lovely gifts for friends throughout her life.

She took great joy in music, had a wonderful smile and witty sense of humor that kept her young at heart.

She touched many lives and will be greatly missed.

Marguerite was preceded in death by her husband, Judge John Makel (Charlevoix County Probate and Juvenile Court Judge 1959-1970), her sisters, Dorothy Nenece and Marian Moffett, and her brothers Jack, Roberts, and Alan Goodrich.

She is survived by one daughter, Marianne Hruska-Linton (Robert III) of Okemos and Charlevoix; one granddaughter, Sandra Lynn Rabideau (Robert) of Okemos; and her two great-grandchildren, Tara and Jacob Rabideau, the loves of her life — whose "Grammy Day" visits each Sunday for games and treats brought her such joy. She is also survived by her beloved niece Judith Arnold of Saginaw.

Due to her lifetime commitment to education and research, Marguerite has chosen to donate her remains to Michigan State University for anatomical study and as such a memorial service will be given at a later date. Any memorial donations may be made to a charity of your choice in Marguerite's name.

Local man grows furniture as a business

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Chuck Leazier followed his heart and is now living his dream.

Leazier, owner of White Cedar Rustics near Bayshore, started out with generic tools and some knowledge of wood and has created a business with an artistic flare and style.

"The greatest outcome can be taking chances," he said.

Leazier didn't know anything about logs and is completely self-taught. His only knowledge stems from his background in carpentry and the time he worked for Town and Country.

However, Leazier has surpassed his own expectations starting out and can create log furniture without having to sketch what it will look like.

"It really isn't just me anymore," he said. "It's what the wood does to me."

What the wood does is inspire creative log designs such as an outdoor swing and an ornate dresser that Leazier created for his family.

No matter what the creation may be, Leazier has come a long way to get to this point.

Leazier grew up in the Boyne City area and always loved the nature he found himself surrounded by when venturing into the cedar swamps. His interest in using wood as his artistic medium stems from those adventures during childhood.

During his adult life, Leazier found himself going through a divoorce and living in a small room in his father's house with his daughter. In that room, Leazier envisioned the log home that he had always wanted and decided that it was time to live that dream.

It took four years to remodel a modular home into a log house, but the cold nights, loss of money and frustration have paid off.

"I dream high," he said. "I just refused to not pull it off."

Leazier pulled it off and lives with his family in a home they all worked together on to complete.

No longer afraid to take a chance, Leazier has seen his business grow and also his talent as an artist.

"I will always thank God for that gift but he only gives you the tool," he said. "You have to do something with it."

And so he did. Coming from nothing, Leazier has created everything for himself and has more dreams he wishes to accomplish.

"What separates living it or wanting to live it is the dedication and passion," he said. "It took years of my life."

Leazier said his focus now is on creating more unique furniture to fill his log home and satisfy his creative passion. However, art won't support his family alone.

He creates artistic pieces, but also has standard beds and dressers that he sells at a more affordable rate.

Leazier said he enjoys seeing a single mom finally have the log bed she's always wanted, but also enjoys seeing people who want an elaborate piece of furniture get what they've always wanted.

Some of the items Leazier has created include a console table, television stand with built-in shelves, coffee table with magazine holder, canopy bed, dining room table and chairs and much more.

"I'm strictly a guy that wouldn't be here if he let reality and tough times get to him," he said.

Leazier is proud of his accomplishments and has even started a new project unique to this time and era: growing furniture.

During the 1800s people grew furniture and Leazier decided to try his hand at it after looking over a book he was given about the subject. Never one to borrow a design, Leazier took off into the woods to create his own grown furniture.

Grown furniture consists of hending and cutting so the trees actually grow in the design the artist creates. Then, when the trees get the appropriate thickness, the artist cuts out his piece of furniture that is connected without any glue, twine or nails.

"I don't know anyone in modern day growing furniture, but I am," he said.

Leazier knows he hasn't reached his peak of artistic talent and will only continue to experiment and take chances on his art.

"I want to be the best I can possibly be," he said. "To push log creations to the highest level I possibly can."

Leazier said he is a totally different person than who he was nine years ago. Now, he's a man who has accomplished a dream and gained more confidence because of it.

"I accomplished higher than my expectations," he said.

Leazier is his own competitor as there's nothing he's not willing to try and no leap too large for him to take.

"When I take a jump, I take a big one," he said.

City gets MDEQ permit for new marina

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix has passed one of the main hurdles in its efforts to construct a new marina in Round Lake.

On Feb. 24, the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality issues a permit to the city to "reconstruct the existing marina with a floating dock system consisting of four main piers, 31 finger piers and two shopper's docks. Reinstall 845 linear feet of bulkhead. Dredge 490 cubic yards of sediment and place no greater than 2,750 cubic yards of fill between the existing and the new bulkhead."

The city still must get a permit from the United States Army Corp of Engineers and get funding for the project in order.

Charlevoix City Manager Mike Wiesner said, "This is a critical step. Now you can focus on what the MDEQ and Core of Engineers will allow you to do. It defines what you are allowed to do."

The proposed reconstruction to the marina that was approved by the MDEQ does differ slightly from the city's original plans.

In the original plan, the four piers extending into Round Lake were to all be 12 feet in width. Now only the north pier will be 12 feet in width, while the other three will be 8 feet in width.

At the end of the piers, the plan shows each with a "T" section. The northern pier will be 16 feet in width on the "T" and the three other piers have a 12 foot section of the "T."

The plan also shows 68 slips that can support various sizes of watercraft, from 30 feet to 100 feet.

The marina project is part of a bigger plan to renovate both the marina and East Park.

The total projected cost of the project is estimated around $11 million. Of that, 75 percent is being paid for with funding from the State Waterway's Commission. The remaining 25 percent of it will be paid for by the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority using existing funds.

Under this plan, the City of Charlevoix will not have to pay for the project using its taxpayer funds.

In a previous story, John Winn, Charlevoix resident and member of the Waterway's Commission, said he is hoping the bulkhead will be replaced next fall and new docks put in over the winter and spring of 2006, with a completion date of that following summer. After the summer, he said, work on the park portion could begin that fall.

Gas prices climb in Charlevoix, around state

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Gas prices have reached astronomical heights and they aren't predicted to lower anytime soon.

Jim Rink, spokesperson for AAA Michigan, said the high gas prices are a reaction to the high oil prices. The average price per barrel is $53.89, Rink said, which is 52 percent higher than what it was a year ago.

Rink stated in a press release that the statewide average price for regular gas in Michigan is up 2.4 cents per gallon from last week. However, that is a total increase of 27.5 cents since January 2005.

In Traverse City the average gas price is $2.107 per gallon compared to $2.059 a week ago. Rink also stated in the information that this time last year the average gas price in Traverse City was $1.749 per gallon.

Rink said it's always tricky to tell whether the gas prices will keep increasing. But with the summer driving season coming up Rink said prices can be expected to rise.

However, Rink said AAA Michigan can't predict how much they will rise because that depends on several factors.

The next few months may show a decrease in the price per gallon for gas.

"We see some price moderation in the next couple of months," he said.

Ed Hoffman, director of petroleum marketing with Holiday Stores, said there are several factors that cause gas prices to increase.

For one, the price per barrel of oil is now $53 and this is the time of year when refineries convert from high vapor pressure fuel to low vapor pressure fuel.

Hoffman said the refineries have to do this to prepare for the gasoline needed in the summertime, but the transition from selling the old product and preparing the new can have an effect on prices.

Also, Hoffman said China and India are consuming large portions of petroleum products creating an increase in the world demand.

Hoffman said another factor affecting prices is that during February and March many refiners undergo a turn-around or a partial shut-down in order to get required maintenance done.

These shut-downs impact the availability of supply, which can affect the cost per gallon.

The cycles of gas prices tend to go in a cycle and not stay consistently up or down.

Hoffman said the funds in the bull market also affect gas prices just as much as other factors.

When those with funds buy and sell, they usually do so in a group, which causes the gas prices to go up or down.

"They tend to buy and sell in groups, which has a major impact on pricing," Hoffman said.

Robert Simpson, owner of Quickie Cab Company in Charlevoix, said the high gas prices have affected his business a little.

"I haven't really worried about it," he said.

So far, Simpson said his rates haven't changed and he doesn't plan on raising them yet.

However, if the prices of gas keep rising things may change.

"If it goes up another dime I'll have to do something," he said.

Ron Hayward, owner of All Star Taxi & Shuttle in Charlevoix, said the gas prices haven't affected his business.

Hayward said he hasn't raised his rates and hasn't planned to.

Charlevoix is a small area and Hayward said he mostly shuttles people a short distance. However, there are times when he makes a trip to Traverse City for clients.

Hayward said he isn't worried since the mini van he drives as a taxi gets very good gas mileage.

However, it has affected Hayward's paper route. Hayward is a delivery person for the Petoskey News-Review and the Charlevoix Courier.

The increase in gas prices has caused Hayward to let go of his Petoskey News-Review route.

Hayward said he grossed $160 per week on his route for the Petoskey News-Review, but would pay over $60 for gas that week.

"I'm down to below minimum wage due to gas prices," he said.

When he started his paper delivery route, Hayward said the gas price was $1.17 per gallon.

Despite the increase in gas prices, his Charlevoix Courier paper delivery route is not affected due to the short distances he's required to drive.

John Martin, street superintendent for Charlevoix, said the department is paying the gas prices just like everyone else and will continue plowing snow.

He said there hasn't been a cut back in the amount of trucks sent out and there won't be since the department has to do what they need to do no matter what.

If the gas prices should continue to rise, Martin said not much would change.

"I'll have to take a look at what happens, but I don't see a change in the city services," he said.

Pat Harmon, road commission manager for Charlevoix County,

Charlevoix residents and visitors are paying a higher price at the pump.

said the gas prices haven't affected service.

"The fuel prices have affected us drastically," he said in regard to the cost.

Harmon said the commission is currently paying three times more for gas compared to what they paid three to four years ago.

The road commission pays for gas without tax and Harmon said it used to cost .52 cents to .55 cents per gallon compared to the current rate of about $1.72 per gallon.

Harmon said the service will remain the same for now and the job will have to be done despite the prices.

"I'm sure somewhere along the line it will affect some part of the budget for sure," he said.

Charlevoix Zonta names Fritsch as award winner

Michelle K. Fritsch, a senior at Charlevoix High School, was named the winner of this year's Charlevoix Area Zonta Young Women in Public Affairs Award.

The Zonta Young Women in Public Affairs Award competition is designed to encourage women to pursue decision-making positions in their communities in order to impact the policies that affect the lives of women locally and throughout the world. The Zonta Young Women in Public Affairs program looks to the young women of today who will be the leaders of tomorrow.

Fritsch was chosen as the Charlevoix Area Zonta winner because of her involvement with her community, her focus on her career goals and her understanding of and involvement with global issues and cultures. Fritsch has a 4.0 grade point average and plans on attending St. Mary's of Notre Dame Women's College.

Fritsch demonstrates her commitment to the community through her volunteer work with the community food pantry, canned food drives, playing the flute and caroling for the senior citizens and working on roadside clean-up projects. She is also very involved in school activities, including National Honor Society, marching and pep band, French club and the ski team.

Zonta is a worldwide service organization of executives in business and the professions working together to advance the status of women. The Charlevoix Area Zonta Young Women in Public Affairs Award is one of the many programs for young women sponsored by Charlevoix Area Zonta.

Applications for next year's award will be available from Charlevoix Area Zonta in late fall of 2005.

Home health, hospice program gets high rating

The area health department's Home Health and Hospice Program achieved its highest rating from a national certification program recently.

Public health officials recently received an unannounced visit from the Community Health Accreditation Program, which certifies home health and hospice agencies for Medicare, Community Health Accreditation Programs report to the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, the health department that serves Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego counties, notes "no deficiencies," their highest level of quality of home health and hospice care.

"We're delighted with the results of our survey," said Nancy

Bottomley, who directs home health and hospice services for the health department. "Our home care and hospice teams work hard to provide the highest quality of care and it feels great for all of us to continue our CHAP accreditation — their survey is like a big test and we passed with flying colors."

Community Health Accreditation Program has been the accreditation and certification agency for Northwest Michigan community health agencies since 1993. Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, established in 1930 as District Health Department No. 3, has been a Medicare certified home health agency since 1967. "Certification" means that the skilled home care services provided in conjunction with physicians' orders will be paid by insurers such as Medicare, Medicaid, and Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan, according to individual's policies.

Unlike other Medicare health care providers, surveys for certification of home care agencies are unannounced and usually take place every one to three years. The surveys are an intensive process involving review and scrutiny of all aspects of a home care agency, including organizational structure, management ability, policies and procedures, long-term viability, quality control measures, and joint home visits with agency staff.

According to Bottomley, accreditation and certification site visits are only one way of measuring the quality of the health department's home health and hospice programs. For example, surveys completed by clients and family members consistently indicate 95% are "very satisfied" or "satisfied."

Home health care brings quality health services to individuals in the privacy of their home and helps them to remain in familiar surroundings. Services including skilled nursing care, speech, physical or occupational therapy, and personal care services can be provided to individuals of all ages. The professionals at home health agencies work with the client, his/her family, and the physician to improve health in the quickest and safest way.

A good home health agency will always provide: Evaluation of the patient's needs by a registered nurse or therapist; development of a plan of care by the nurse or therapist; care provided by qualified health care personnel; and assurance that care is treated confidentially.

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is the local health department serving Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego Counties. Its staff is dedicated to preventing disease and injury and promoting healthy communities.

For additional information about home health and hospice services, call (800) 551-4140 or (231) 547-6092.

Student to spread word on real Americans

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

One Charlevoix High School senior is enjoying her time in the United States before heading back to Pakistan.

Anam Minhas, 16, is a foreign exchange student from Pakistan who has been in the United States since Aug. 3. Minhas will be staying until June 7, but will graduate with the Charlevoix High School class of 2005.

"I've enjoyed my high school and I've enjoyed the experience of a new culture," she said.

When she came to the United States, Minhas said John Prescott, counselor at Charlevoix High School, placed her as a senior so she could experience everything an American high school provides.

However, upon returning to Pakistan she will be a junior and then a senior. Minhas said the education systems in both countries are similar, but Pakistan doesn't accept other degrees, which is why she will return to junior status.

Since August, Minhas has been immersed in American culture and has found that almost everything was new to her.

"I like the people here," she said. "They're really nice."

Minhas said she came to the United States with the stereotypes of how Americans are in the back of her mind. But, after a short while, she learned that those stereotypes aren't true.

"I've found they're really loving people," she said of Americans. This misconception is something that Minhas wants to change when she goes back to Pakistan.

The cultural differences between the United States and Pakistan have placed Minhas in a unique position of teacher for both sides.

Minhas has gotten to share her culture with American students and plans on sharing American culture with friends and family in Pakistan.

While attending Charlevoix High School, Minhas said she has noticed several differences between here and her school back home.

Minhas said in Pakistan high school students are expected to study hard and are treated like adults. Here in American, Minhas said she noticed that there are a lot more extra curricular activities available to students since the studying isn't so demanding.

Pakistani student enjoying stay in America

"Here, a freshman is considered a kid," she said. "In Pakistan you're considered a grown up."

She has also noticed that seniors in American high schools feel independent and start to pull away from their families and live their own lives.

In Pakistan, Minhas said people in their 20s are considered adults since they are no longer teenagers.

Minhas said the age someone has to be to do things like driving are lower in America than in Pakistan.

"Other than that, Americans are just like we are," she said.

In Pakistan, young adults get their learner's driving license when they are 19 years old and their official license when they turn 21 and head off to college.

In the United States, Minhas said she learned about a Sweet 16 party and that students can drive when they are 16. This isn't something Minhas likes since the age difference between a 16-year-old and someone who is 19 years old is a lot in terms of experience.

Minhas said several students she's talked with agree that 16 is too young to be handling a car.

One of the biggest surprises to Minhas was finding out that public education didn't cost anything. She said this is one benefit American students get that students in Pakistan don't.

"Some kids don't go to school in Pakistan because they don't have any money," she said.

Minhas said she has also noticed that Americans can easily get done what they want such as putting in a new roof. Also, disposable items are not readily available in Pakistan.

"Even a sandwich bag inspires me," she said.

Since being in Charlevoix, Minhas said she hasn't experienced a lot of discrimination.

Minhas said students asked her a lot of questions while she was fasting during Ramadan. Most of them, she said, were interested in learning about her culture.

However, she has gotten silent moments and strange looks especially when students find out she's Muslim.

With the war in Iraq underway, many Americans have stereotyped all Middle Eastern people under the same category as terrorists.

Minhas said many people ask her if she is from Afghanistan or Iraq, which she isn't.

"People talk to me here then won't talk to me if I say I'm a Muslim," she said.

Minhas said all religions have hypocrites and those people shouldn't be thought as the norm.

"I think it's really sad what people are doing," she said of Muslim radicals. "They're spoiling our religion, causing the misconceptions."

Minhas said people like Osama Bin Laden are teaching young children to hate Americans, which is something Minhas said she'd probably believe if she was raised that way.

"God is not happy," she said.

"God is really, really angry because they're misinterpreting the religion."

To Minhas, misinterpreting the religion is the biggest sin.

However, when she returns to Pakistan, Minhas said she wants to tell everyone how she was treated well by Americans.

Minhas said her family views everyone as human beings and doesn't see them according to their religion or culture.

"If Sept. 11 hadn't happened, people would be living in peace," she said.

Minhas said she has enjoyed her time in the United States and will take back with her the knowledge to help break stereotypes of America and the people who live there.

"Most people like Americans," she said of Pakistan.

Divers don't stop just because of ice

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

On March 6, several members of Scuba North in Traverse City braved the icy waters for a view of a shipwreck in Lake Charlevoix.

Jack Spencer, owner of Scuba North, has his team out on the ice cutting holes in the ice to dive from, but also doing various safety techniques.

The group cut another hole in the ice as a safety precaution and also shoveled the snow so the ice appeared in the shape of two large arrows.

This is to ensure that should a diver come loose from their safety rope, they can look up and follow the arrow back to the hole they dove through.

Spencer said Scuba North came to the Keuka to dive just because it's there.

"It's like Mt. Everest...it's there," he said.

The shipwreck is located about a mile out in Lake Charlevoix from the Irish Boat Shop docks. Spencer said the ship was originally named the A.J. Stewart after being built in 1889. Then in 1917 the name changed to H.J. Macavoy and then around 1928 became known as the Keuka.

When the Keuka became too old to be seaworthy anymore, it became the transporter of produce between Boyne City and Charlevoix.

However, in 1931 and 1932 the Keuka underwent a transformation. Her deck was constructed into a maple wood dance floor that was completely enclosed, Spencer said lights were added and then the Keuka became a party boat.

Spencer said the Keuka was run by the Belvedere Club during the prohibition era. However, the weight of so many people would sink the ship enough to allow water to rush in.

The water was dumped out and the Keuka was prepared for the next evening. However, soon the manpower couldn't keep up with the water.

In August 1932, the Keuka sank quietly in Lake Charlevoix.

Spencer and Scuba North members take part in ice diving because the water is very clear and doesn't have the level of algae blooms that are found in the summer season.

"It's more fun this time of year because you can see the entire wreck," he said.

Since 1976, Spencer said divers with Scuba North have made the annual visit to the Keuka. But, only if the ice is six inches thick or more.

Tracy Veltkamp, a member of Scuba North, had just become certified on the weekend of the trip to the Keuka.

Veltkamp said she likes to scuba dive because of the shipwrecks, as it's the only way to see them.
"I have a list of things in life to do and that was on it," she said of scuba diving.
Veltkamp was the only woman to dive this past weekend. She enjoys the ice diving aspect because it's unique.

Bob Thorpe, a dive master, said 1 percent of the world's population dives and less than 1 percent of that does ice diving.

Veltkamp said she enjoys the outdoors and the more extreme sports. She said the water was very clear and tons of fish were swimming about.

Despite preferring to dive alone in the water, Veltkamp enjoyed another person with her. The community atmosphere of Scuba North is one thing Veltkamp enjoys.

"You really rely on each other," she said.

Renew your boat registration on-line

With the start of boating season just weeks away, Secretary of State Terri Lynn Land is encouraging residents to take advantage of the convenience and timesavings provided by online watercraft registration renewal.

Owners of boats, including personal watercraft, may renew online at www.michigan.gov/sos beginning March 1. Registration decals are mailed within 10 days.

The web-based program allows residents to renew from their homes or offices anytime of the day or night. Watercraft registrations may also be renewed by touch-tone telephone, mail or at a branch office. Internet and touch-tone renewal options are available through Aug. 31.

"It's easy to save time by renewing online," said Land, who oversees the registration and titling of more than a million watercraft. "That way you can spend time on your boat, not in line. Watercraft renewal is just one of many convenient online customer services provided by the Department of State."

All watercraft on Michigan waters, including privately owned lakes and waterways, must be registered except: Watercraft 18 feet or less, propelled by oars or paddles and not used for rental or commercial purposes. Nonmotorized canoes and kayaks not used for rental or commercial purposes. Rafts, surfboards, sailboards and swim floats, regardless of length. Watercraft registered in another state and used only temporarily in Michigan.

The notices include instructions for renewing online, along with a personal identification number needed to use the system. Payment can be made by VISA, MasterCard or Discover credit cards. Nearly 300,000 renewal notices will be mailed this year.

Residents will also find information about ordering a Great Lakes Protection Fund decal with their renewal notice. The decal costs $35. It is decorative only and not required for watercraft registration or identification purposes.

Proceeds from sales will help fund research and education to control invasive species, such as zebra mussels, in the Great Lakes and other Michigan waters. This special decal may also be purchased online at www.michigan.gov/michiganecore using a Visa or MasterCard credit card.

Annual egg hunt in East Park

The Easter Bunny is coming to Charlevoix!

The Fourteenth Annual Easter Egg Hunt will be at 2 p.m. on Saturday, March 26 in East Park in downtown Charlevoix. Prior to the Egg Hunt, Stafford's Weathersvane restaurant will be hosting the annual Easter Bunny Luncheon from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Children may have a "free photo" taken with the Easter Bunny, compliments of Charlevoix Camera and then the whole family can stay for a special lunch. Call 547-4311 for reservations.

Following the luncheon and photographs, the Easter bunny will be in East Park for the Easter Egg Hunt, which begins promptly at 2 p.m. There will be three different age categories: 3 years and under, 4-6 years and 7-10 years.

There will be 6,000 eggs with special prizes inside. The Easter Egg Hunt is sponsored by the Charlevoix Retail Promotions Committee of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

For more information, contact the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce office at 547-2101.

Congratulations!

Save Your Vision Week

Sunday, March 6 - Saturday, March 12, 2005

How often should you have your eyes examined? The American Optometric Association generally recommends that infants have their eyes screened for congenital eye disorders and disease at birth before leaving the hospital. Eye examinations for children are recommended at six months, three years, and before the child enters first grade. Most school-age children and teens should see their doctor of optometry every one or two years, and adults benefit from eye examinations every one to three years (as recommended by the optometrist). Annual eye examinations are always a good idea for those over age 60. If you or a loved one is overdue for an eye examination, why not schedule one soon by calling any one of the fine professionals in your area. - Michigan Optometric Association

Students who took part in the Charlevoix Indoor Soccer League.

The Charlevoix Indoor Soccer League concluded its winter season with a season ending tournament Tuesday night at the middle school. The Orange Team won the regular season with a 5-1 record. Orange Team members were: Jake Pace, Bini Choi, Dan Branson, Rick Branson Taylor Witthoef, Katy Conlan, Andrew Tillotson and Nick Wimmer. The season ending tournament was won by Green in a tough final against Maroon, which made the final despite finishing in the cellar during the regular season. Green team members are: Andrew Mailloux, Matt Mailloux, Mike DiMartino, Mick Papp, James Conlan, Adam Ulrich, Sarah Cross and Ezra Bakker. All 32 players had a great season and join together to thank Marvin Witthoef for organizing the league.

Boyne area hockey team beats Saint Ignace squad

On Saturday, March 5, the Boyne Area Hockey Paul Bunyan Lanes Midgets hosted the St. Ignace team. The game was a defensive battle as it remained scoreless until the last minute of the second period when Russell Williams scored two consecutive power play goals on blasts from just inside the blue line. Ryan Hennessy assisted on both, and Darren Looze the latter. Troy Scarbrough, assisted by Matt Kopke, found the net just 14 seconds into the third period and later Eli Barsy ripped the twine with a pass from Gabe Korthase. At the buzzer the scoreboard read 4-0. Outstanding defense gave shutout goalie Nick Ferree 9 shots to save, while Boyne put 28 on St. Ignace's net.

Charlevoix Yacht Club to host racing rules seminar

This seminar is designed around the concept that knowing the racing rules of sailing, makes racing an enjoyable and safe contest when using one's skill, seamanship and applying the principles of sportsmanship and fair play. The conversation will include all elements of a race and the 2005-2008 rule or rules that apply. Seminar handout material will be given to each participant. The event is open to all sailors, including those racing under one-design and handicap rating systems. The seminars are hosted by yacht clubs around the shore of Lake Michigan. Panelists include US Sailing Senior and International Judges: Allan A. Teske, Don Glasell, Robert Sargent, Ted Jones, Warwick Coppleson, Dean Cady, Andrew J. Kiener and Nancy Glover. The cost of the seminar is $25. A lunch is included in the cost of the seminar and will be provided by the host club. The starting time for all sessions will be 9 a.m. local time and end at 4 p.m. Bring your rule book. Session dates and host clubs: • March 19, Charlevoix Yacht Club, 209 Ferry Ave., Charlevoix. Public debates ice rink, band shell and memorial PLANS grants available for it. Carlson said he has gotten a few calls on this matter and it is being looked into. Charlevoix resident and member of the planning commission John Hess agreed with Campbell. He also said the ice rink in the fourth amendment does not belong in the park, thinks the memorial should be left alone and he believes the band shell should be renovated, not removed. Hess said the bandshell was built using private donations in the early 1990s. He said a lot of engineering went into its design and its acoustics were worked out with an acoustical engineer. But, many people also spoke out in favor of an ice rink in East Park and the band shell. Eric Kammerman said he supports the plan with the ice rink and with the band shell. Jacqueline Merta, Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce director, said the chamber supports the marina plan and also supports an ice rink in East Park. "Having activity down there in the winter is vital," she said. John Yaroch, a Charlevoix resident and member of the DDA, said the ice rink appeals to the second home owners in Charlevoix, who he believes are in the majority. He said the voting public in this community makes up a minority of the tax payers in this community in comparison to second home owners who, he says, pay more in taxes. "Represent the interest of those taxpayers as well as the smaller voting taxpayers," he said. Yaroch said the second home owners expect certain amenities such as the ice rink plan. As for the band shell, Yaroch said leaving it in the middle of the park with no road up to it does not make sense. The city must decide on these two amendments before they can be added to the DDA's plan. The DDA must have the marina and East Park added to its development plan in order to pay for it. However, it will extend the life of the DDA by about 10 years. The city created two amendments, four and five, due to rumors of a petition seeking a referendum on plans to tear down the East Park band shell. Amendment four deals mostly with the marina side of the project, while amendment five deals with the marina and East Park. It is hoped, if both petitions pass, that any petition drive will be started on amendment five, thus allowing the marina portion of the plan to proceed. Charlevoix City Council will meet at 7 p.m., Monday, March 14 to decide the fate of these amendments.

ested in residential or commercial redevelopment of the property. This site is also considered the most valuable parcel up for sale, as stated in the press release. Swartwout said the property will become something else and not remain Lexalite. "Summa Industries expects to receive preliminary proposals from bidders in April. The Michigan parcel is one of several up for sale by Summa Industries because they are or will become excess due to several consolidation and restructuring initiatives, as stated in the information provided by Summa Industries. The sales of all the parcels is estimated to result in a book gain of $5 million to $9 million and generate cash, net of taxes, between $9 million to $14 million. Swartwout said there is plenty of space in other manufacturing facilities near the US-31 site where the current employees can go.

Writer continues to reminisce about 1940s

Marilyn Boss
'Days gone by'

In continuing my articles on the people who lived here in the 1940s, I find I enjoy reminiscing about their lives as I put the words to paper. To those of us who knew them, we know every person was valuable in making Charlevoix what it is today.

Lloyd and Geneva Huett lived at 112 Palmer Street. He was in the Coast Guard and Geneva was a receptionist for Dr. Fralcy McMillan. Their children were Virginia Mae, Eugene L., who was in my class at school for the years they lived here and Ester Elaine. Emerson and Lillian Hull lived at 204 W. Upright. Their daughters Edna and Imogene and son, Richard also lived there. Lloyd Hull and his wife, Margaret, lived at 1224 State Street. He was a caretaker. Charles and Grace Hyers lived on Robinson Ave. With their daughter, Patricia, a student.

Carlton Ikens was my uncle, and he and his wife, Marguerite, lived at 207 1/2 West Hurlbut with their daughter, Donna, who is now Mrs.

Mark White, Sr. Another daughter, Judy, was born later. My grandfather, Floyd W. Ikens and his wife, Matilda, lived at 203 Antrim, which was the county jailhouse. They had nice living quarters there. He was the sheriff for 22 years, and my grandmother was the matron. She did all the cooking and wash for the prisoners. When I was born, my mother was considering naming me for my two grandmothers, but decided against it, because my maternal grandmother's name was Jessie Matilda, and it would look like I was named only for her. (I'm so glad they decided against it!). Their daughter, Helen, also lived there. My dad and mother, Glenroy and Dorothy Ikens lived at 207 W. Hurlbut. I was the oldest child, and my sister Beverly Kay and my brother, Glenroy Jr. My younger sister Sally, was born later. My dad operated Ikens' Standard Service on the corner of State and Antrim, where he sold gasoline, oil, tires and also lubricated and washed cars and trucks.

Henry Isaksen and his wife, Anna, lived at 204 Mason. Their son, Harold, and wife, Lucille, also lived there. Henry was a marine engineer and Harold was a sailor. Their daughters, Helena and Signa, also lived with them. Henry and Florence Jacobs owned the Birch Lodge Rooms, located at 902 Bridge Street. They lived there and rented out rooms.

George and Anna Mac Jardine lived at 316 Mason. Della Jeffery owned the Moonlight Gardens, which is where Giuseppe is now located.

Della was a widow (Allan). Theo Jeffery was Della's son, and he and his wife, Anna, also lived at 807 State Street with Della. Theo was a painter. The Moonlight Gardens was a dance hall. It had a large mirrored ball in the center of the ceiling.

When Dale and I were dating, they had roller skating there once a week. The town kids were able to enjoy it. You had to skate in a round circle, because the floor wasn't very big. It was lots of fun, and a very popular place. Later on, in the 60's when Dale was on the school board, roller skating was revived again, and it was in the Mason Street gymnasium. The late Dell Terrill was instrumental in promoting it, and Dale helped getting it started. Del always had a saying that Charlevoix was the easiest place in the world to raise money for a good cause. This still holds true today.

Guy John and wife Susie lived on W. Carpenter, two houses west of State Street with children Arlene, Betty Lou and Angeline. Alvin John and wife Dorothy, and son, Alvin Jr. also lived there. The reason for stating the number of houses from State that the residences were, is because there were no other houses on Carpenter at that time. Thus, no numbers. Paul Jonecheck and wife Anna lived at 202 E. Lincoln. He was a light-house keeper.

I was in the middle of writing this column, when I received a letter from Anne and Franklin Olmstead who live in La Crescenta, California. They are both Charlevoix natives, and wrote to thank me for writing this series about the people they knew in the 1940s.

Anne worked at the Charlevoix Courier, and remembers the funny old man who did the directory. He really did a great job cataloging all the residents. I have only found a few errors in all the work he did. Anne and Franklin are still very much interested in Charlevoix, and are subscribers to the paper. Anne is a sister of LaRue Gill, whose husband, Bud, worked with my dad at Ikens' Standard Service in the forties. Anne's niece, Ann Gill Puffpaff was in my class at school, and is still a good friend.

It is nice to know Charlevoixians all over the country keep up with all the news and memories.

Public Notice?

Without it in your newspaper, you're left guessing what the government's doing in your community.

Public notice is the people's right to know the issues that affect them directly, and people know the place to find public and legal notices is in the newspaper. What you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. Public notices have been posted here since the days of colonial America. In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. Why guess? That is why you have, and read, your newspaper... where your right to know is already being served.

Charlevoix County Recycling Program

Volume 2, Issue 1

February 2005

Bright Recycler

This issue:

- Appliances collected 1
- Recycling Reports 2
- What we take 3
- Committee Members 4
- Cardboard Credit 3
- We're on the web 4
- We're watching for... 4

Special Notes:

- Office Paper Plus can be recycled at the Melrose Township & East Jordan Transfer Stations. Strip-shredded paper allowed in clear bags (poke holes letting air out). NO cross-shredded paper please!
- June 18th will be the next HHHW Drop Off Day. Calls will be taken to schedule a time slot beginning June 1st.
- You MUST call for a time slot or voucher ticket! Contact Kelly: 582-6193 or 582-7341.

New for 2005!

- In conjunction with the ever popular Household Hazardous Waste Drop Off Days, the Charlevoix County Recycling Program will also accept appliances.
- Beginning with the next HHHW Day scheduled for June 18th, Charlevoix County residents will have the opportunity to dispose of any old appliances in a responsible manner and at no charge! Here's how it will work:

- Call the Charlevoix Conservation District to either schedule a time slot for common HHHW drop off, to request a voucher ticket, or both!
- All appliances will be accepted.
- The voucher ticket will cover freon removal from 2 appliances for free.
- Appliances will be dropped off at a DIFFERENT location than HHHW Day.
- Appliances will be dropped off at East Jordan Auto Parts located at: 210 Elm Street, East Jordan.
- Residents will have until the end of the month in which HHHW Day is held to drop off their appliances and use their voucher ticket.
- East Jordan Auto Parts will collect the stub end of the voucher when you drop off your appliances.
- Remember - you only have until the end of June to redeem your voucher for FREE freon removal from up to two (2) appliances.

If you have any questions, don't hesitate to contact any committee member for more information.

2004 Recycling Report

Total Cubic Yards of Recyclable Materials in 2004: 7,447
Total estimated weight of materials in 2004: 1,359.35 tons

Material	Cu. Yards	Lbs./ C.Y.	Est. total lbs.	Est. total tons
Cardboard	1,559	500	779,500	389.75
Colored Glass	76	600	45,600	22.80
Clear Glass	337	600	202,200	101.10
Office paper	6	300	1,800	0.90
Newspaper	2,522	600	1,513,200	756.60
Plastic #1, #2	2,503	35	87,605	43.80
Tin, aluminum	444	200	88,800	44.40
Contaminated	50	N/A	N/A	N/A

Estimated Resource Savings: Based on average energy use figures from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, recycling by Charlevoix County saved over 12.3 billion BTUs of energy - enough to power 122 households for a year.

Recycling reduces pollution from extraction and manufacturing processes. In 2004, Charlevoix County recycling prevented an estimated 1,587 tons of emissions to the air and 6.3 tons of emissions to water resources. Also, Charlevoix County recycling caused an estimated reduction of Greenhouse Gas Emissions of just over 823 Metric Tons of Carbon Equivalent (MTCE).

From the 1,147.25 tons of newspaper, other paper products, and cardboard recycled by Charlevoix county in 2004, close to 13,800 trees were saved.

Educational Recycling Program

Education is the key. Learning about the benefits of recycling (protecting the environment, reducing landfill space), the merits of purchasing items made from recycled materials (completing the cycle), and just how EASY it is to recycle, are key components of recycling education.

Committee member Michelle Rick-Biddick is currently working on an educational program for the Charlevoix County Recycling Program. This PowerPoint presentation will be used in school classrooms as well as for service groups and organizations. She has put together a nice collection of items made from recycled materials which are incorporated into the presentation. Michelle has visited the Mall of America Recycling Center in Minnesota. Did you know the carpeting in the Mall is made of recycled tire material?

If you are interested in such a presentation, please contact Michelle at 547-4369.

Recycling is the smart thing to do!

Return on cardboard

As a taxpayer you should appreciate the fact that recycling cardboard also generates a return based on the current market rate for recycled cardboard. Credit received from cardboard Feb. - Dec. 2004 was $5,155.50. Office Paper Plus was added to the recycling program this year and has the potential to generate a return as well. You can help by recycling your junk mail, office paper, etc. at the Melrose or East Jordan sites. Good participation will help support the program by generating additional credits.

Committee Members

Committee members represent groups, agencies, and organizations throughout Charlevoix County.

Band shell fails

Ice rink plans also out

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Changes to the band shell in East Park are out, as well as an ice rink, according to a vote by the Charlevoix City Council Monday night.

The council was voting on two amendments — amendment four and amendment five — to the Downtown Development Authority's development plan that would allow the authority to pay for 25 percent of the marina and East Park project and extend the life of the authority to 2026. However, council members took out a planned ice rink in East Park in amendment four and failed to pass amendment five that dealt with a new band shell, effectively killing the proposal.

Jill Picha, a Charlevoix resident who threatened to petition the amendments for referendum if they included an ice rink or changes to the band shell, said, "I don't see any need for petitions at this time. I will be watching them though."

The removal of an ice rink and any plans for changing the band shell does not affect plans for the marina. Amendment four, which dealt with the marina — but included an ice rink in it — was passed unanimously with the ice rink removed. Council member Sherman Chamberlain abstained from voting.

Council members also changed amendment four by adding a baffle to collect storm water runoff from the city before it drains into East Park through the sewer system under the marina and added language saying the submarine memorial in East Park will not be permanently moved without prior approval from the council.

As for amendment five, this will probably not be the last of the band shell issue. According to Charlevoix Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson, a group of five citizens can circulate petitions to have an "initiative action" on the band shell.

What this would do would force the council to reconsider the amendment with the band shell — amendment five — or send the matter to a vote of the public.

To do this, a group of five citizens must submit petitions to the city, signed by 15 percent of the total registered voters in the city of Charlevoix from the last general election — 356. Once council re-

Residents who use the city's water, electric and sewer systems will see an increase in their bills in the newly passed 2005 city budget.

The city budget was passed unanimously Monday night after about an hour-and-a-half of negotiations between council members over increases in utility rates and the inclusion of about $400,000 for a fiber optic system. Council member Bob Timms was adamantly opposed to the idea of raising the utility rates and the fiber optic system, but council member Sherman Chamberlain insisted a utility increase is needed for the health

Beaver Island named top place for St. Patrick's Day

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Beaver Island has been named the best place to be in the world to celebrate St. Patrick's Day by a British men's magazine.

The magazine, FHM, named Beaver Island in its March issue for the island's annual St. Patrick's festival that includes tossing frozen fish, shopping cart races and many other games. The festival also includes plenty of people celebrating their Irish heritage through music and other general merriment. Beaver Island gained the top spot in the list above Chicago, Ill. and Dublin, Ireland.

Beaver Island Chamber of Commerce Director Steve West said the honor may bring more people to the festival but he doesn't "imagine a plane load of Brits will be flying over here for St. Patrick's Day."

FHM publishes men's magazines throughout the world, but the one with Beaver Island

"Any publicity is good as long as they spell the name correctly."

Steve West,
Beaver Island Chamber Director

is only in the publication's British edition. West warned the magazine is a little racy.

"Any publicity is good as long as they spell the name correctly," he said. "It is not the type of publication the chamber of commerce goes out of its way to solicit."

West said he tries to help any publication seeking information on the island. In the case of FHM, he said he received a call from the United Kingdom from someone working at the magazine saying they would like more information on the island's St. Patrick's Day festival and some pictures.

He said he thought it was a travel magazine, but found out otherwise when he received a copy of the issue in the mail.

"I opened it up and wondered why I was receiving this magazine. Then I found a card thanking me and telling me to go to page 213," he said.

Beaver Island was featured on that page. West said he has been showing the magazine to his board members, with a slightly censored cover.

Beaver Island's annual St. Patrick's Day festival starts at 1 p.m., Saturday, March 19 outside of the Shamrock Bar in downtown St. James.

For more information on the island's St. Patrick's Day celebration, call (231) 448-2505.

Irish vs. Scottish and green events

Jeremy McBain

'Just a thought'

Some Celtic themed thoughts from your kilt-wearing, bagpipe-playing, caber-tossing, editor.

St. Patrick's Day

The beloved Irish holiday is upon us once again. And once again, I am writing a piece on Irish culture and its differences to the Scottish culture.

As many of my readers may recall, I am of Irish/Scottish lineage with a smattering of Mexican (for spice). I have been a bagpipe player for the past 11 years and have competed in the Scottish highland games (a strongman type of competition) for the past three years. I have studied Scottish history and customs for the past 20 years (yes, since I was 10) and was briefly a history major in college.

I love St. Patrick's Day. People are cheery and I get a kick out of all the green and the playing of bagpipe music.

In case you don't know, St. Patrick is the patron saint of Ireland and St. Patrick's Day is the Irish holiday that honors him. Traditionally it was a holy day in Ireland, but we Americans bastardized it to mean a day of fun, drinking and wearing green — sometimes to very gaudy measures.

But, there are some misconceptions in America on what is Irish and what is Scottish. I write about these misconceptions every year and every year, someone argues with me about them. I guess I enjoy the punishment, so here goes:

1) The bagpipes we commonly hear on St. Patrick's Day in parades are a Scottish instrument of war. To play them, you stand up, blow into a blowstick, fill up a bag, and use your arm to control the pressure, thus making sounds out of three drones and a chanter. There is an Irish bagpipe, but to play it, you sit down, press in a bellows strapped to your side, fill up a bag and make sounds out of drones and a chanter. The sounds are different.

2) The kilt is of Scottish origin. Even so, the kilt we wear today is a cut-down version of the original kilt from about 12 yards of wool to about 8 yards. The modern kilt, by most accounts, was created in the mid-1700s, because the big kilt was too hard to fight in.

3) The tartan (plaid) on a kilt is generally Scottish. The different patterns stand for different SCOTTISH clans. Even so, the creation of patterns for individual Scottish clans is not ancient and was created by an English mill owner in Edinburgh, Scotland in the early 1800s as a way of selling more wool. Until that time, there were regional tartans, based on the dyes from plants common to that area. The creation of Irish tartans started in the twentieth century and is generally based on a regional basis — meaning there is a tartan for Ireland or Dublin, but not one for an individual Irish family. There may be a few newer family tartans out there that I have not seen yet, as the Irish are really just entering this area of trade.

4) Evidence shows that St. Patrick may have been born in Scotland. Therefore, both Irish and Scottish can enjoy the day to its fullest. Add a dislike of English and you see the two cultures are brothers at heart.

5) There are such things as leprechauns. I have seen them. Sure, it was at 11:30 p.m. on a Monday, after a particularly long council meeting that involved plenty of mind-numbing budget numbers. And, yes, I had been at work since 9 a.m. and was starting to go cross-eyed while looking at my computer screen. But, I saw a little green man in the corner of my office trying to hide a pot of gold. Almost caught the bugger, too.

6) Even with all these misconceptions I have pointed out, you will probably still find me wearing my kilt on St. Patrick's Day along with some sort of funky green shirt and playing my Scottish bagpipes. Why? Because I want to join in all the fun, too, and I am a hypocrite.

Beaver honors, pub crawls

Once again I will be making my trip across the water to "cover" the annual St. Patrick's festival on Beaver Island — my favorite. Beaver Island will celebrate the Great Day with its usual fun games — frozen fish toss, fish stop, shopping cart races and others — and plenty of song and merriment. It is a popular location for people with strong ties to the mother land.

In fact, the racy British men's magazine FHM, recently named Beaver Island top place in the world to be to celebrate St. Patrick's Day. The island topped Chicago and even Dublin, Ireland.

In regard to a pub crawl, Charlevoix will have another pub crawl on St. Patrick's Day this year.

The event will start and be led by the Sault Ste. Marie Bagpipe Band at 5 p.m. at the Weatherlane Restaurant. It will then go to the Townhouse Bar, then Whitney's Oyster Bar — both on Bridge Street — and end at the Grey Gables Inn on Belvedere Avenue.

Crawlers will spend an hour at each location, where they will enjoy specials provided by the restaurants and receive beads. It should be a fun time, but aren't heads a Mardi Gras thing?

At the same time, the Village Pub will be having its own St. Patrick's Day party complete with an Irish band. Have fun, but be safe! Slainté!

Keep the roads safe on March 17

Chief Dennis Halverson of the Charlevoix City Police Department announced recently that his department is joining with other federal, state and local highway safety and law enforcement officials in reminding all of those who plan on using alcohol during this year's St. Patrick's Day festivities to act responsibly by designating their sober drivers before the parties begin.

"St. Patrick's Day has become a big night out for many Americans, particularly young adults, but it is also a very dangerous night out due to impaired drivers. That is why we are reminding all of those seeking a little luck of the Irish this year to be sure and designate their sober driver in advance before the festivities begin," said Chief Halverson.

"Whether you are just meeting a few friends after work at the corner pub or attending a local party, if you plan on using alcohol, don't drive impaired; and never let your friends drive if you think that they are impaired," he said.

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), 32 percent of all traffic fatalities on the nation's highways around St. Patrick's Day in 2003 were the result of impaired drivers with blood alcohol content levels of 0.08 percent and above.

Chief Halverson said, "Designating a sober driver before the local celebration begins and making sure friends don't drive drunk are just two of several, simple steps to help avoid a tragic crash or an arrest for impaired driving."

If you are attending a St. Patrick's Day celebration and plan on using alcohol:

- Designate your sober driver before the party begins and give that person your car keys.
- Don't starve yourself before or during the party. Enjoy the food as well as the drink.
- Avoid drinking too much alcohol too fast. Pace yourself, eat, take breaks, alternate with non-alcoholic drinks.
- If impaired, don't even think about getting behind the wheel. Ask a sober friend for a ride home; call a cab, friend or family member to come and get you; call your local sober rides program; use mass transit; or stay where you are and sleep it off until you are sober.

• Friends Don't Let Friends Drive Drunk. Take the keys and never let a friend leave your sight if you think that they are about to drive while impaired.

If you are hosting a St. Patrick's Day party:

- Serve lots of food — particularly high-protein dishes — and be sure to include lots of non-alcoholic beverages, desserts and coffee.

• Be sure all of your guests designate their drivers in advance, or help arrange ride-sharing with sober drivers.

• Keep the number for local cab companies handy and take the keys away from anyone who is thinking of driving while impaired.

Impaired driving is one of America's deadliest problems. Nationally, more than 17,000 people died in alcohol-related highway crashes during 2003. Every 30 minutes, nearly 50 times a day, someone in America dies in an alcohol-related crash. Hundreds of thousands more are injured each year. According to NHTSA, about three in every ten Americans will be involved in an alcohol-related crash at some point in their lives.

"Driving impaired or riding with someone who is impaired is simply not worth the risk because the consequences are serious and real," said Halverson. "Not only do you risk killing yourself or someone else, but the trauma and financial costs of a crash or an arrest for driving while impaired can be really significant."

"Don't test your luck this St. Patrick's Day. Designate your sober driver in advance, before the festivities begin."

Pub crawl returns

Charlevoix restaurants will be celebrating St. Patrick's Day, March 17, with their own pub crawl this year.

At 5 p.m., the Sault Ste. Marie Bagpipe Band will perform at the Weatherlane Restaurant to start off the Charlevoix pub crawl for the Irish holiday.

Around 6 p.m., the bagpipe band will then march to the Townhouse Bar on Bridge Street, then leave around 7 p.m. for Whitney's Oyster Bar on Bridge Street, leaving again around 8 p.m. for the final stop at Grey Gables.

Each restaurant will have their own specials for the holiday. Beads will be given to the participants of the pub crawl.

St. Patrick's Day is the Irish holiday celebrating St. Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland, for bringing Christianity to the nation.

Festival of Tables to help Child and Family Services

If you have a taste for fresh entertaining ideas and exciting table designs to help spring come just a little bit sooner, mark your calendar for the fourth annual Festival of Tables, an event benefiting Child and Family Services of Northwestern Michigan.

The event is set for 10 a.m. - 2 p.m., Saturday, May 7, at the Grand Traverse Resort and Spa.

More than 200 northwestern Michigan businesses and civic organizations are participating in this year's Festival. 40 of them are designing displays guaranteed to help you plan the perfect table for any occasion, and to share entertaining tips and ideas. Table themes include: "Blossoms and Butterflies"; "Wildflowers and Wine on Old Mission Peninsula"; and "Springtime in a Northern Forest".

Samplings include the Great Wolf Lodge, Ethnic Garden Catering, American Spoon Foods and Chateau Chantal (wine tasting). Demonstrations include Nawbin Bead designs for the table and hand-painted glassware by Lindalee Foresman.

You'll have the opportunity to select your favorite table, as several of those you'll see will be part of an exciting raffle. For the price of a $10 ticket, you may be the winner of a table with all the trimmings worth a minimum of $350 and as much as $2,000. Tickets for additional "dream" raffle packages are available now and at the event through Festival of Tables committee members.

Tickets for the Festival of Tables are $45 each. Proceeds will benefit Child and Family Services, a nonprofit organization specializing in foster care, adoption, counseling and prevention services in northwestern Michigan since 1937.

Tickets are available now at Elements in Charlevoix, Details of Traverse City and Petoskey, Wildflowers of Glen Arbor and Traverse City and Betsie Bay in Frankfort or by calling Child and Family Services at (231) 946-8975.

Seminar to help you with estate

With longer life expectancy and typically lower lifetime earnings, money management can present a greater challenge to women.

A free Estate Planning and Money Management Seminar, specifically designed for women and discussing money management, emergency funding, employer-sponsored benefits and other financial topics, will be given starting at 2:30 p.m. on Wednesday, March 23. This free program will be held in the large conference room on the lower level of Charlevoix Area Hospital and is open to women of all ages.

Some of the topics in the seminar will include planning for a child's or grandchild's education, savings, insurance, a review of monthly spending, savings accounts, CDs, taxes, planning for retirement, money management and steps to an effective estate plan.

Katrina Martin, attorney with Joseph, Corcoran, Telgenhof & Snyder; John Doskoch, certified financial planner practitioner; and Craig Leppien, financial advisor with Waddell & Reed will present the program.

This estate planning seminar is provided free of charge to the community by the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation Planned Gifts Committee and is the first in a series of estate and financial planning seminars that will be held this year.

For reservations or for additional information on the program, call the foundation office at (231) 547-8502.

How to get your event news into the Courier

If you have a news item you think would be perfect for the Charlevoix Courier, feel free to call 547-6558, e-mail news@charlevoixcourier.com or visit the Courier office located at 112 Mason Street in downtown Charlevoix.

News items include events sponsored by non-profit organizations. Please inform us of your event at least two weeks in advance.

Our coverage area is the city of Charlevoix and its immediately surrounding areas, including Beaver Island.

Because of space limitations in the newspaper, we generally try to avoid publishing "check-handing" pictures or "ribbon-cutting" pictures. However, we will work with your organization to get a picture that reflects the event and is visually interesting to our readers.

Due to time constraints on the staff, we cannot attend every event of which we are notified.

If you have a picture of your event, we will gladly consider it for publication. But, please, contact us before your event.

It should be noted, each story and picture is dealt with on its individual merits. Any policies outlined above may be suspended by the editor or general manager of the Charlevoix Courier if necessary.

Christian faiths to worship at annual Good Friday service

By THE REV. TOM NEIS
St. Mary's Church

Beacons of Blessing

Thanks to our Christian calendar, the Charlevoix School Board, its administration, teachers' Union and the Michigan High School Basketball Tournaments, there is no conflict this year — for the first time in seven or eight years — between the "March Madness" of basketball, the annual Spring vacation, and the holiest week in our Christian calendar.

Sunday, March 20, is called "Palm Sunday," a celebration of Jesus' triumphant entry into Jerusalem. We join in singing our Hosannas in the highest in praise of Christ, our redeemer king. Our prayer is that we be among those who honor our triumphant King as we lift high the branches of palm trees that we carry. These words of blessing are found in Matthew's Gospel, 21:1-11. May all who claim to be his followers shout Hosanna to the Son of David!

Thursday, March 24, calls Christians to celebrate the Day of the Lord's Supper. As Christ blessed the bread, he told his disciples to "Take and eat," and of the cup of wine, "Drink all of this." ... "Do this in remembrance of me."

But even before we are called to eat and drink in the name of the Lord, Jesus invites his followers to allow him to wash their feet! The Lord has set an example for all who claim to be his followers to serve one another indeed, to serve others. Reflecting on John's Gospel, 13:1-15 may help us to take up the pitcher and towel to serve others.

Friday, March 25, is called "Good" because it is good for us to be redeemed by the blood of Jesus' sacrifice. You're invited to share in an Ecumenical service of Worship of Christ, our redeemer, beginning at 12 p.m. with a procession of carrying a cross, of assembling at the local Congregational Church to hear the accounting of John's recollection of Jesus' passion and death 18:1 - 19:42. This brief service will conclude at one o'clock so that many will be able to return to their own church to complete the treasure of liturgies.

March 27, Easter Sunday, the Resurrection of the Lord. "Alleluia! Alleluia!" A day to be celebrated even more so than Christmas because it announces the completion of Christ's journey here on earth — the day of our Redemption! Some churches make certain that we don't miss out on the thoroughness of the celebration by beginning after dark on Saturday, just as some of the early Christians did.

The scripture of this glorious day tells the whole story: Acts of the Apostles 10:34-43, Colossians 3:1-4, 1 Corinthians 5:6-8, Matthew 28:1-10, John 20:1-9 and Luke 24:13-35.

All of the Christian churches in our town cordially invite you to join in the retelling of the story of our Redemption and in the praising of our God whose love had the Father send his Son to show us how to live forever!

Resident wants mayor to change or abolish time limit

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Dave Scott believes he, and other citizens, need more than three minutes to speak at Charlevoix City Council meetings and he wants the mayor to fix this.

Scott, a former candidate for city council and a regular at the meetings, was recently cut off by Charlevoix Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson during a public hearing on the city's budget for going over the city's three minute speaking rule for public comments — Scott claims others at that hearing spoke longer than him and he was singled out. Scott asked to be on the agenda for the March 7 meeting to specifically ask the mayor to rethink the three minute rule.

"There is no demonstrated need for such a time limit. A time limit only discourages participation in city affairs," Scott said.

He pointed out very few people come to the meetings to speak and, on the night he was cut off, only six people had spoken on the budget.

As for his being cut off in mid-sentence by Carlson, Scott said, "That was the first time a member of the public was cut off."

He added, "What happened at the last council meeting was unfair and unjust. It was not because of the length of what I said, but because of the content."

When Scott was cut off, he had started to speak about the portion of the city's electric fund that will pay for a fiber optic network in Charlevoix. He claims this money — $428,300 — should not be in the electric fund, especially considering the budget proposes increases in the electric rate.

While he did compliment Carlson on his use of parliamentary procedures and Robert's Rules of Order to run a smooth meeting, Scott proposed an abolishment of the time limit.

However, he did understand that some time limits are necessary for speakers.

"Let's change the rules tonight. Put 5 or 6 minutes in place of abolishing it all together," he said.

Councilmember Sherman Chamberlain pointed out that other cities have time limits. In Traverse City, he said if someone goes over the 5 minute time limit, the chair of the commission immediately stops them.

"It's forcing you to get right to the point instead of bringing in other items," Chamberlain said.

Councilmember Bob Timms agreed with Scott's idea of extending the time, saying 5 or 6 minutes would be good.

Councilmember Shirley Gibson added to Carlson, "Just be a little more flexible with the time limit."

In response to all this, Carlson said, "I am more than happy to listen to everybody."

He said he wanted to think about the matter and discuss it further in the future.

Commission votes for smoking ban

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The Charlevoix County Commission voted 4 to 2 in favor of a smoking ban proposed by the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency.

The Public Health Clean Indoor Air Regulation has been passed by Charlevoix, Otsego and Emmet counties, but it will take the approval of Antrim county to go into effect.

The regulation aims to ban smoking from public and private places and businesses where harmful second-hand smoke could be inhaled by those who do not smoke.

It was a unanimous vote to adopt the regulation by Emmet and Otsego counties. Antrim county is scheduled to consider the regulation at their April meeting.

Charlevoix County Commissioner Shirley J. Roloff said she is in favor of having clean, smoke free environments, but didn't support the regulation.

"I don't want anybody to smoke and want everyone to have good, clean health, but I don't think it's my right to tell them how to run their business," she said.

Roloff said it bothers her that one more regulation is placed out there over the people.

"I don't believe in regulations you can't enforce," she said.

Roloff said there are other options that could have been taken such as more education.

To quit smoking, drinking or overeating are all hard, Roloff said, but education could be more effective than a regulation.

"I have really mixed feelings about the whole thing," she said. "I definitely want to make a clean environment."

SMOKING

Charlevoix County Commissioner Chairman Victor R. Patrick said he supported the regulation because of the good it could have in the workplace.

"I just think that with all the cancer we should," he said. "People who don't smoke should be entitled to a smoke free environment."

Commissioner Ronald L. Reinhardt said he voted against the regulation.

"The government is being too evasive on private businesses," he said. "Most businesses and industries are taking care of that problem themselves so why make a law?"

Reinhardt said when the commissioners were told that about 25 people die from second-hand smoke each year, he asked the health department if that total could be divided between someone's residence, business or restaurants and bars.

"They wouldn't or couldn't give me an answer," he said.

Reinhardt said he hasn't changed his mind on the matter.

Commissioner W. Randolph Frykberg voted in favor of the smoking regulation as the issue is about health.

"I think there's certainly ample evidence of smoke being a class A carcinogen and it's not fair for someone to infringe on the rights of others," he said.

Frykberg said people are still allowed to smoke, just not inside the work place or in company vehicles. When smokers go outside, they must now stand a good distance from the entrance to the building.

Frykberg said after the vote he received mail, probably from smokers, who stated they were angry their rights were being taken away.

However, Frykberg said it's not their rights that are being taken away as the right to breathe smoke free air is the object of the regulation.

The regulation doesn't affect private residences or vehicles.

The purpose of banning smoking in public and private work places is to protect the public's health and welfare.

The regulation will ban smoking in several places including all enclosed areas of worksites and public places that are owned, rented, leased or otherwise under control of a participating county. This also includes motor vehicles.

Other places where a participating county will ban smoking is restrooms, lobbies, reception areas, hallways and other common areas.

Public transportation, service lines, retail stores, public places used by the general public, galleries, libraries, museums, theaters, cinemas, sports arenas, convention halls, both public and private meeting facilities and school buildings also have to ban smoking on their facilities.

Hospitals, professional offices, motels, hotels and places where bingo is played will also have to comply.

Restaurants, bars, casinos and tobacco specialty stores will not have to adhere to the ban.

Any violations to the regulation once put in place will be a warning for the first violation.

However, there will be a $50 fine for a second violation, $100 fine for a third violation and a $500 fine for each additional violation within the one year from the first violation.

For more information and to read the entire regulation go to the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency's website at www.nwhealth.org.

Charlevoix man can keep your computer healthy

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Carlos Lopez can help keep you from tossing your computer through the window.

Lopez, of Charlevoix, opened his business Ideas Computer Services on March 6 with the plan of helping people in Charlevoix keep their computers running smoothly, free of glitches, viruses or other nasties that make us hate technology at times.

"I can help people with their problems. I can deal with any kind of computer trouble," Lopez said.

Lopez, who is also a staffing specialist at Northern Staffing, said he came up with the idea for the new business when he was helping out a friend with his computer troubles. He said at that moment he realized this was a service that is needed in this area, especially with the upgrades to the internet that are bringing this tool into more homes in Charlevoix.

"I see a lot of people who have problems with viruses or spam. To me the internet is not a toy anymore. You can be on the internet for only 5 minutes and can do serious stuff to your computer," Lopez said. "I like to help you get rid of all the viruses on your computer that I find."

In addition to cleaning your computer of viruses and helping to protect you from these little beasts of the internet, Lopez can also give your computer a tune-up, do repair on it, get your systems set up and create networking systems.

As background, Lopez has a degree of applied science degree in computer information systems from North Central Michigan College and a bachelor of arts degree in management from Spring Arbor University in Traverse City.

Lopez has been a resident of Charlevoix for the past seven years, when he came here from Honduras.

He said he came to Charlevoix, because his father, Carlos Lopez Sr., lived here and he did not know anyone else in the states.

"I liked the area and decided to stay," he said. "It is quite a nice community."

Ideas Computer Services, that Lopez has based out of his home for the time being, is available from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, but after-hours appointments are available.

Lopez can be contacted by calling (231) 547-6505 or e-mailing caralopezmi@hotmail.com.

Charlevoix PTO makes changes to spring carnival

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

With budget cuts across the state hurting local schools, the Charlevoix Elementary Parent Teacher Organization is preparing to give the Annual Spring Carnival a new twist with Operation Basket and a new location and time.

Stacey Stewart and Suzy Fenwick, Operation Basket co-chairs, said Operation Basket involves having students, teachers and the community at large donate items geared toward certain themes that will then be made into gift baskets.

"If it works we want to do it every year and we can always change the theme," Stewart said.

This year's themes include Pasta Night, Chocolate Lovers, Stationary, Kids Tub Time, It's a Boy, It's a Girl, Gardening, Movie Night, Adult Spa, Coffee and Tea, Baking Basket, Hair Basket, Dog or Cat Lovers, Kitchen Essentials, Mother's Appreciation, Book Basket, BBQ Basket, Birthday Basket, Wrapping Basket, Game Basket, Travel Basket and Arts and Crafts.

The silent auction will replace the yearly raffle and will occur on April 22 at Charlevoix High School. Everyone is encouraged to participate as Operation Basket is not limited to parents.

The funds raised through Operation Basket will be split evenly with 50 percent going

"If it works we want to do it every year and we can always change the theme."

Stacey Stewart,
Operation Basket co-chair toward the PTO and 50 percent going to the teachers.

Cuts in funding have resulted in the loss of teacher's aides and the school nurse. The monetary loss has also affected the money available to teachers to purchase supplies for their classrooms.

"With the budget cuts they can't afford to do special projects," Stewart said.

The teachers will use the money to buy needed items for their classrooms and to help fund special projects.

The PTO will use the money to continue funding author visits, the Santa supper, the family night barbecue, teacher appreciation week, the fourth grade graduation and more.

Fenwick said this is the primary fund-raiser for the school and the money received through the auction will help supplement what the school has lost due to cuts in state funding.

The idea to change the raffle into a silent auction with gift baskets featuring different themes, came about when Stewart's friend informed her on the success of a similar project.

Stewart and Fenwick said similar projects done at other schools in the area have been successful and the idea was worth a try since the raffle was not successful last year.

Typically only merchants are asked to donate to the raffle, but this year Fenwick and Stewart are sending out 600 letters asking everyone that owns a business to participate in the fund-raiser.

Businesses are asked to donate something that would fit one of the many themes, but are also asked to make a monetary donation if they don't have a product that fits a theme.

The monetary donations will then be used to purchase needed items for the gift baskets.

Once all donations are received, the baskets will be created and will then be displayed in the windows of downtown merchants so people can view them before the silent auction.

Donations are due by March 25.

For more information about Operation Basket or to have a donation picked up call 547-0511.

Also, donations can be mailed to 13551 Clark Road, Charlevoix, MI, 49720. Checks can be made out to Charlevoix Elementary PTO.

Christmas lights may cost city over $32,000 this year

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The Christmas tree lights in Charlevoix invite visitors to the downtown area, but also cost the city when it comes time to replace them.

City Manager Michael Wiesner said the $32,700 allocated in the 2005 budget for the replacement of the Christmas lights is more expensive than last year because a larger number of bulbs are being replaced.

"This year the plan is to remove all of the lights from Belvedere Avenue to the bridge," Wiesner said.

The city is going to see if the Downtown Development Authority can pay for the lights this year. If the authority can't, then the city will pick up the tab.

The cost is high but Wiesner said the lights are more economical than other options.

"The major overhaul is due since the lights are good for two years until they need to be replaced," Wiesner said.

The Christmas lights on the north side of town are not being replaced, but refurbished, Wiesner said.

However, next year those lights will have to be completely replaced while the lights from Belvedere Avenue to the Bridge will only have to be refurbished.

Wiesner said the cost for replacing the lights next year is estimated at $20,000.

The Christmas lights in downtown Charlevoix have been around for a while and have become more extensive over the years, Wiesner said.

For the past three years the current abundance of lights has been downtown, which features 50 percent to 100 percent more lights than were shown in the past, Wiesner said. Wiesner said the amount of lights was left up to the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce and the downtown merchants as the city worked with both.

Wiesner said he is not aware of any other options that could be as extensive.

Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson, said the cost can get high when replacing the lights since it's not just the bulbs but the wires as well. Carlson said other options could possibly be to look at different types of lights that might last longer.

However, Carlson said a company that replaces Christmas lights all over Michigan gave the city advice.

Bob Timms, first ward city council member, said the suggestion was to have the lights taken down and replaced with completely new strands.

"They claim they're good for only a couple of years running them how we do," he said.

Timms said he hasn't delved into the longevity of lights, but the lights may be able to last a third year with only minor replacements.

The cost to replace the lights is similar to the funds spent on the city's petunias, Timms said, which both make the city look nicer and can draw people to downtown. However, they aren't vital to the city.

"If things get tighter, it's not necessary," he said.

Timms said the citizen's committee Mayor Carlson has proposed would look into issues such as this and determine what needs to be cut.

Timms said if taxes were to be raised in order to finance the Christmas lights downtown he would be against it.

"I don't agree with raising taxes," he said. "Cut out some other things first."

Dominic writes, performs from the heart

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

One Charlevoix native is following his dream of becoming a singer and songwriter.

Chris Dominic, 25, has been dividing his time between Charlevoix and Nashville for the past seven years as he works on albums, creates new lyrics and composes new songs. However, over the past year he has spent more time in Nashville.

"It's almost like a therapy," he said. "I try to write from the heart or from other people's experiences."

Dominic, the son of Charlevoix residents Dennis and Bonnie Dominic, has been singing most of his life and enjoys performing, but loves the artistry of creating a song from his own heart.

Dominic's album, "The Bible and the Medicine Bag," features six original songs that describe moments in his life and situations he has helped his friends through.

The personal side of writing music has proved to be quite the challenge.

"It's hard because you want to say a lot, but it's still a song," he said.

Dominic has had to cut some information out of his songs, but never the meaning behind them.

Each song starts out with either a working title by Dominic or just simply ideas written down on a sheet of paper. However, Dominic doesn't go it alone.

F.L. "Chip" Stead, owner of Homestead Productions in Onaway, has been collaborating with Dominic for about two years and Eddie Fellabaum also helps write.

"We get together, maybe sit and ponder and come up with something, but we have fun along the way," Dominic said.

"We say what we have to say and put it in songwriting form."

Dominic, Stead and Fellabaum create the lyrics and Stead composes the melody leaving Dominic to carry the song with his vocal talent.

"I'll come in with a title and sit down at the computer and write one verse then the other," Dominic said.

Once the song is written, Stead plays whatever instrument is needed for the feeling of the song that Dominic wants.

Stead said he has always been in a band, which helps him hear what the song will sound like without any music on at all.

Compared to other producers, Stead said he prefers to creating authentic music and not just playing a track behind Dominic's voice. Authentic music and lyrics keep fans coming back for more.

Dominic performs for his audience and has them take an active role in the performance. But the draw to the work behind the scenes is something that has always been with him.

"I have an interest in everything in the music industry," he said. "I want to be well-rounded."

Dominic said he wants to get more involved in the producing and engineering side of music but wants to continue singing as much as possible.

"I want to share what I have to say," he said.

Dominic said he gets enjoyment out of creating songs because everyone knows that one song that helped them out when they were in a tough situation or going through hard times or just made them feel good.

"It lets a feeling out," he said. "Expresses something."

Throughout his time spent in Nashville, Dominic has come in contact with a lot of musical talents both in front and behind the scenes, and has had the constant support of friends and family.

Dominic and Stead are currently working on an upcoming album that should be released in June. He is also working on a web site that will list release and performance dates.

Until that time, everyone can see Dominic sing his own original work and popular songs of others at Victories Hotel and Casino in Petoskey.

Dominic will be performing in the hotel lounge every Friday starting at 5:30 p.m. until early April.

Opera 'Carmen' coming to high school stage

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The auditorium at Charlevoix High School will become its very own opera house as "Carmen" will be coming to Charlevoix on March 25 as a part of the Virginia McCune Performing Arts Series presented by Crooked Tree Arts Center.

Mary Wiklanski, cultural coordinator for Crooked Tree Arts Center, said the opportunity to present "Carmen" came up as the Opera Verdi Europa is currently traveling the United States.

"There's not a lot of opera up here," Wiklanski said, aside from the Cheboygan Opera House and the Bay View Association.

And "Carmen" will provide the perfect opportunity to bring more opera to northern Michigan.

Opera Verdi Europa was founded by Ivan Kyurkchiev in 1996.

The company is comprised of Bulgaria's best singers, musicians and dancers, who perform more than 70 performances a year.

"Carmen" was first performed in 1875 at the Opera Comique in Paris. The opera was written by George Bizet and follows the story of a young gypsy girl who lives by her own rules even if that means hurting others.

"Carmen" follows the young woman named Carmen and one of her lovers, Don Jose. Carmen easily tires of men, but Don Jose wouldn't give up despite her change in attitude toward him.

However, in a jealous rage he stabs her to death while attending a bull fight.

"Carmen" will be presented in French, but English subtitles will be projected above the stage.

On March 24, in preparation for "Carmen," Crooked Tree Arts Center and the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library will host a lecture about opera and specifically, "Carmen" at the Charlevoix Public Library.

Wiklanski said the lecture is intended to help prepare the audience for what to listen for when attending an opera and to get a general idea of what happens in an opera.

Dr. Robert Pattengale, professor emeritus of music from Minnesota State University, Moorhead, will speak about the general history of opera and also specifically "Carmen."

Pattengale retired to northern Michigan in 1997 and has been involved in the Bay View Music Festival and area arts along with his wife, Alice.

Since retiring, Pattengale actively helped to develop the Crooked Tree Youth Orchestra and the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra. He also was involved in forming the Baroque Consort from members of the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra. The Baroque Consort offers school programs in the region.

The lecture will start at 7:30 p.m. on March 24 and "Carmen" will be performed at 8 p.m. on March 25.

For more information on Carmen visit www.crookedtree.org.

Tickets for the March 24 lecture are $10 and refreshments are included. Tickets for "Carmen" on March 25 are $50 for patron seating, $25 for non-member adults, $10 for students, $20 for member adults and $8 for student members.

Tickets are available at Crooked Tree Arts Center in Petoskey at 347-4337 or online at www.crookedtree.org.

The Covenant Players will bring Christian drama into the setting of any church event and they are coming to Charlevoix.

Founded by playwright Charles M. Tanner, this international repertory company has performed over two million times in its 40 year history, with more than 3,000 plays written specially for the organization by its founder. With over 60 touring units performing throughout the world, Covenant Players challenge people to take a closer look at themselves and the practice of their faith.

The Covenant Players will perform at 11 a.m. on March 20 at Charlevoix United Methodist Church.

Sheriff warns of scam in the area

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater would like to warn citizens of a scam currently circulating in the area.

Potential victims are contacted via mail by a person claiming to be a Nigerian attorney for the former Liberian president currently in exile. For a 30 percent fee of a "large sum of money" your assistance is solicited in order to move this money out of the country.

An e-mail address is referenced for the potential victim to make contact. Once contact has been established the scam will next involve the con men obtaining bank account numbers which will then be used to scam the victims out of money.

Lasater reminds citizens to never provide their bank account numbers, social security number or other privileged information to strangers. If you or some one you know has been involved in a swindle, please contact the sheriff's office for assistance.

City, school district to look into fiber optic

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The City of Charlevoix and the Charlevoix Public Schools may team up to fund a study that would look into the feasibility of putting in a fiber optic network.

City Manager Michael Wiesner said the new study would expand on a previous study.

If the study shows a benefit to the city, the city council may add it to the new budget.

As of Monday night, fiber optics was removed from the 2005 budget.

A fiber optic network would be cheaper in the long run, Wiesner said, and is quicker with more capabilities than other systems.

City Treasurer Rick Brandi said if the city and schools agree to work together on the option of fiber optics, it would be cheaper and more cost effective for both.

Brandi said there was $428,300 set aside in the electric budget to fund the whole operation.

However, the study would only cost about $11,000. Council agreed to the study earlier this month.

The city will fund two-thirds of the study leaving the school to fund only one-third.

However, Charlevoix Public Schools have not committed to anything at this point.

Superintendent John Sturock said if the schools agree to go ahead and help fund the new study, the funds would not be covered by the general funds, which oversee operations.

The estimated cost the schools would pay is about $3,000, but that isn't a permanent figure as the real figures are still unknown.

Sturock said until the school can see what the scope of the work will cost they aren't committing to anything.

However, the fiber optic option of working with the city would be cheaper than going the wireless route alone, Sturock said.

Scott Mays, technology coordinator for Charlevoix Public Schools, said the fiber optic network would increase the speed and capacity of what could be sent over the system.

Mays said some drawbacks to fiber optics are that they have to be constructed point-to-point whereas a wireless network only requires antennas.

Despite any drawbacks, Mays said the fiber optic route is the preferred option for high bandwidth connections, which is how much information can be sent through the system.

Mays said the school is looking toward the long-term investment and believes the fiber optics will give the most capabilities.

Some of the benefits of fiber optics to the schools would be improved access to online education information and will reduce costs stemming from leasing telecommunications services.

The city will be able to provide video conferencing at City Hall and a connection to all city departments.

The electric department in particular would have an improved electrical system and the ability to monitor and identify power outages in a more timely manner.

The benefits to the community are an improved electrical system, lower costs for school system and area businesses and the possibility of attracting new business to the area.

City Hall costs higher than thought

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Cost overruns on the City Hall renovations were unanimously approved by City Council and will be taken care of.

Jim Shull, project manager for City Hall renovations, said there were some problems that were discovered during the process of demolition.

One problem was with the drain lines, which ran to the street differently than what was laid out in the as-built plans. Shull said things had to be moved around in order to work with the actual line up of the drains.

Some larger issues came about when the city began working on the fire department and police department portion of the building, which were caused by a stairway.

The stairway was the original from 1939, Shull said, and didn't meet today's code. In order to make the stairway safer the middle rail was removed, which widened the stairs to help with emergency exit use.

Shull said the city asked for a variance on this stairway, but met with one condition that stated all the other stairways should be in compliance as well.

Shull said the stairway in the fire department was not designed for emergency use and a corridor from the council chambers had to be built in order to make it compliant with today's code.

These changes created the abundance of cost overruns, but some benefits came with it.

Shull said Fire Chief Paul Ivan wasn't here when the drawings were first started so he was able to make changes to the fire department side that would benefit them in the long run.

With the old plan the fire and police departments were intermixed, but will now be separate.

The original construction contract was $2,067,000 and with the inclusion of $52,875.16 it was changed to $2,119,875.16.

Shull said council passed the building request for an additional $109,640 to cover the cost overruns, bringing the total construction contract to $2,229,515.16.

City Manager Michael Wiesner said the construction costs were around 7 percent over the original bid, but most renovation projects can go over by 10 percent.

"To me, on a remodel project, you just expect surprises," he said.

Costs to renovate city hall are higher than previously thought.

The American Red Cross will have a blood drive from 9 a.m. to 1:45 p.m., on Thursday, Mar. 17, at the Charlevoix High School. Donor appointments may be arranged through any student council member or by calling advisor Gail Cherry at 547-3222, ext. 2032.

Brother Sun, Sister Moon

Christ Episcopal Church invites you to watch a free showing of the movie "Brother Sun, Sister Moon" at 7 p.m., Friday, March 18, in the fellowship hall. They are located at the corner of State and Clinton in Charlevoix. This movie has beautiful photography, wonderful music, and an inspiring story of the life of St. Francis. The film lasts approximately 2 hours and there will be time at the end, if you wish to stay, to share the spiritual message. Popcorn will be provided.

Singles for Christ

A new group called Singles for Christ will meet at 6 p.m., Saturday, March 19, at Zion Lutheran Church.

located at 500 West Mitchell in Petoskey. After the meeting they will have dinner at Big Boy's. Their events are planned at 7 p.m. for each first and third Saturday throughout the year with a few exceptions. For more information call Frieda Lewitt at 547-5747 or call 231-632-1095.

Tip Night

Please come and join Sarah "Brussie" Goodrich for a Tip Night Fund-raiser at Charlevoix Pizza Hut from 5 to 8 p.m., Sunday, March 20. Sarah was recently diagnosed with an advanced stage of cancer. She is the mother of four and grandmother to seven, with one child living at home. Many know Sarah through her work at Charlevoix Area Hospital. To help Sarah with her expenses and responsibilities the Pizza Hut staff will be donating their tips to the Sarah "Brussie" Goodrich Trust Fund.

Praise and Prayer Healing
Christ Episcopal Church and the Tree of Life Healing Prayer Ministry of Traverse City will once again sponsor a Praise and Prayer Healing Service at 4 p.m., Sunday, March 20, for Palm Sunday. It will be in the fellowship hall at the corner of State and Clinton in Charlevoix. Music will be provided by the God Only Knows praise band. Everyone is invited and prayer ministers will be available.

Safe Harbor program

Safe Harbor Baptist Church will present a special program at 7 p.m., March 25, for Good Friday Service. Their address is 06046 Old US-31 South, Charlevoix near the intersection of U.S. 31.

They will also host an egg hunt at 12 p.m., on Saturday, March 26, rain or shine. Hot dogs and chips will be served as well as plenty of eggs to hunt. Children of all ages are welcome.

There will be a sunrise service at 6 a.m. on Sunday, March 27, at Ferry Beach to honor resurrection Sunday, followed by breakfast at the church's fellowship hall. In addition they will have a special service at 11 a.m. to celebrate the resurrection. All are welcome.

If you have any questions, please call them at 547-6283.

Sunrise service

Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene welcomes you to a Sunrise Service at 7 a.m. March 27, Easter Sunday. A delicious breakfast will follow for all to enjoy. Following the breakfast fellowship they will celebrate the resurrection of Jesus Christ at 9:30 a.m., during regular morning worship service.

DOWNTOWN CHARLEVOIX

Council passes 2005 city budget

of the system and he was interested in the fiber optic idea.

"It's an interesting kettle of fish, isn't it?" Timms said about the need to raise utility rates.

The city said it needs to raise the rates on utilities to rebuild the fund balances, help pay for future improvements to the system and pay for increases in the cost of providing the services.

City Manager Mike Wiesner said, "We don't want to raise rates. This isn't any easier for the city as it is for the council, but I don't think it is a good long term business view to ignore that."

According to Charlevoix City Treasurer Rick Brandt, what this means to the consumer of Charlevoix's electric system is you would see an increase of about 3.9 percent, or, on average, $1.96 — this includes a proposed $1 a month service charge.

In addition to this, the sewer rates are proposed to be increased by 5.5 percent, with a $1.40 a month service charge and water rates are proposed to increase 2 percent, with a 40 cent service charge. This would be an average monthly increase of $3.76.

However, Timms pointed out that the electric fund has the inclusion of about $400,000 for a fiber optic system. He believed that by taking out that fiber optic system, you would not have to raise the rates this year.

"I think they will balance out nicely," he said.

But, Chamberlain pointed out the city is already paying for a study on fiber optic to see if it will have any benefit to operations.

"I would like to keep it in the budget to see if there are financial benefits to it," he said.

Wiesner responded, saying the estimated cost of fiber optic, as indicated in the budget, is higher than it actually will be. He said he could lower the budgeted cost to $200,000.

As for its effect on utility rates, he said by taking out fiber optic in the electric budget, it will have minimal impact overall on the cost issues the city is facing.

Timms began to agree with Wiesner on the utility increases saying, "I suppose if we are going to have to have a rate increase, I guess we have to."

Council member Shirley Gibson, who was also against a utility increase, also began to relent.

"We need to keep the city in line — I guess we have to do it," she said. "It does look a little fishy with the fiber optic (in the same fund)."

Timms would not relent on the fiber optic plan.

"I still don't want it. Right now I would rather stay out of the fiber," he said. "Take fiber out and I will go along with the electric plan."

Wiesner added fiber optic could be eliminated from the budget and brought back up after the fiber optic study is completed. If the study shows a great benefit to the city and the council wants to go forward, it can still be added to the city's budget.

Council ended up removing the fiber optic from the budget, but keeping the utility rate increases.

Council members were in agreement on most other changes, including reducing a proposed $76,000 landscaping project to an electric substation north of Charlevoix to $10,000 and seeing if the Downtown Development Authority can pick up the $32,000 tab for Christmas lights.

The city budget for 2005-2006 shows a total of $29.9 million in it, but 57 percent of that is money for capital improvement projects such as the marina and East Park and much of that money is from federal and state grants.

Because of this, the budget shows large increases in both revenues and expenditures as compared to the 2004-2005 budget.

In 2004-2005, the city budgeted $16,994,531 in revenues and $16,989,288 in expenditures. However, the 2005-2006 proposed budget shows $30,101,033 in revenues and $29,822,470 in expenditures because of construction projects the city will tackle this year and the grant money it has received for them.

The marina and East Park project is at the top of this list with a cost of $10,570,200.

While this debt sits in the city budget, the state Waterways Commission will be paying for 74 percent of it and the Downtown Development Authority will cover the rest.

The second largest capital project is the airport snow removal building slated to cost $1,954,000.

Grants are paying for a large portion of that project too.

Matter could be taken to public vote

VOTE

ceives these petitions, they must decide to revisit the issue within 60 days or leave it alone.

After making a decision on what to do about the petitions, if the council decided to leave the ordinance — in this case amendment five — as it was, then the matter would go to a public vote. This vote would be not less than 60 days from the council's decision on the petitions and not more than one year.

And the chances of a petition being circulated on the band shell, according to Carlson, are very good. Carlson said he knows someone interested in taking the band shell to initiative action and, if this person does not decide to do it, Carlson said he would do it himself.

"From the people I have talked to I do support moving the band shell," he said.

However, Carlson added, if the matter is brought to a public vote and the band shell fails, he will support that vote.

As for when he would start such an action, Carlson said he wanted to wait at least a month from Monday night.

"I want to give it a month of rest. If people tell me it is not that big of a deal at that time, then I will support them," he said.

The fifth amendment dealing with the band shell originally was motioned for approval by council member Bob Timms.

Timms said he was fine with the idea of having a new band shell built.

"If enough people are upset, then they can do a referendum on it," he said.

He was joined in support of the amendment by council members Bill Haggard and Bill Bellows. But, council members Shirley Gibson and Karen Campbell did not vote in support of the amendment.

Since the amendment needed four votes to pass, the motion to pass amendment five failed, thus killing the band shell plan.

Gibson said she did not think the city was ready to start work on East Park. She pointed out the city has not received money from the Waterway's Commission yet — this state commission is slated to pay for 75 percent of the project — and the issue of East Park can be addressed when more is known on funding.

"We don't want to bite off more than we can chew," she said.

Campbell agreed. "I think it is too expensive and we can't afford it right now. Maybe in a few years or by a vote of the people," Campbell said.

At the beginning of the meeting, Carlson stressed the council was only voting on extending the life of the Downtown Development Authority to pay the local portion of the project through amendment four and amendment five. Detail items, such as what type of park benches and trash cans will be in East Park, will be addressed during the design phase of this project.

The city created two amendments due to a possible petition for referendum that was threatened over plans to demolish the current band shell and add an ice rink to East Park. City officials worried this would harm its funding from the Waterway's Commission on the marina portion of the project.

So, to protect this funding, the city made a separate amendment for the marina — amendment four — and another amendment with the marina and East Park together

Plans to tear down this band shell in East Park failed Monday night. However, the issue may be taken to the public.

— amendment five. This way, if the council had passed both amendments, and amendment five was petitioned, the city still had amendment four to allow it to start work on the marina portion.

Work is hoped to begin on the marina in the fall.

The total project's cost is estimated around $11 million. Of this total cost, East Park would cost around $2.4 million, a new band shell would cost around $1 million and an ice skating rink would have cost around $48,000.

Sewer fine exceeds $20,000

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Previous problems at the Charlevoix Wastewater Plant could cost the city over $20,000, if the Charlevoix City Council agrees to a proposed agreement with the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality.

According to Charlevoix City Manager Mike Wiesner, the MDEQ has given the city a consent order — basically an agreement between the city and the MDEQ on fines and actions over the wastewater issue — that says the city must pay a $20,000 fine in addition to $3,363 in costs and implement a corrective action program. Wiesner said the city has already implemented the corrective action program, but council will have to agree to the fine and sign the agreement.

"When it gets to council we will virtually complete everything in the consent order. Obviously we would have liked to have the fine less than it was," Wiesner said.

He added the city did negotiation

Ex-plant workers plead guilty

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Former Charlevoix wastewater plant superintendent Samuel Louis Creswell and former lead worker James Stanley Mazur plead guilty in Charlevoix Circuit Court Friday morning to one count each of making false statements.

The men were arrested in December after an investigation by the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality showed problems at the city's wastewater treatment plant over a three year period regarding high discharges of chlorine into Lake Michigan and monitoring reports that were falsified.

The false statement charge is a felony, punishable by up to two years in prison, $3,500 per violation and $25,000 for each day of unlawful discharge. A separate count of uttering and publishing for both men was dismissed. Sentencing for the two men has been set for 9 a.m., April 15 in the Charlevoix Circuit Court.

District seeks parents' help in funding fight

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Some superintendents in the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District say they have run out of ways to solve district funding problems and are looking to parents help.

Richard Diebold, deputy superintendent and director of non-instructional services for Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, said the districts have made an effort to increase funding by making budget cuts. Some districts within the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District and elsewhere are trying to get more parents involved.

"As school funding concerns get greater and greater, you'll see more grass roots efforts," Diebold said.

Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools John Sturock said the Charlevoix schools have not received an increase in state aid in the past three years. The district became pro-rated two years ago and money was taken away. However, Sturock said this year the district is back up to where it was three years ago.

This is not an increase as a little over $1 million in state revenue has been lost and won't be able to be reimbursed, Sturock said.

"The expenses are escalating and the revenues are going the other way," he said.

He said the drop in funding may be able to change by getting parents involved with writing their legislatures in Lansing.

"They'll listen because they're the voters," Sturock said of the legislature toward parents.

Parents will be informed in every district of the educational plan as the idea is to help every student in the state of Michigan, Sturock said.

If the funding continues to decline, Sturock claims all Michigan public schools are heading for closure.

"Some districts are going out of business," he said. "If things don't change financially we're all heading for closure."

Diebold said that time has already come.

Diebold and Sturock both said the Vanderbilt school, located about 40 miles East of Charlevoix, is not sure if they can keep their doors open next year.

"Each district is on a path there," Diebold said.

Diebold said it just depends on the individual districts whether the schools are affected immediately or in the near future.

He said the 11 school districts that make up the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District have made budget cuts in excess of $10 million over the last two years.

Along with the budget cuts, Diebold said in excess of 150 jobs were eliminated.

Another problem facing schools is having to convert to a pay-to-play program for athletics or having no athletics. Sturock said the Charlevoix Public Schools hasn't adopted anything of the sort, but has had to increase gate prices.

However, nothing guarantees what will happen in the future.

Since there are no more revenue options to bring in funding, Diebold said the schools can't do anything more to change the situation and everything is now in the hands of the legislatures in Lansing.

"State funding has diminished," Diebold said. "As state funding diminishes, the burden falls on the backs of local taxpayers."

State revenue for funding public education is based on a basic foundation grant that brings in on the state minimum $6,700 per pupil. Diebold said

Charlevoix brings in a little more per student.

Overall, about 75 percent of students generate the $6,700 while the other 25 percent, like Charlevoix, generates slightly more.

Diebold said before Proposal A went into effect about 10 years ago, the state funded about 70 percent creating a 70 to 30 split. Now, the state only funds about 40 percent creating a 40 to 60 split between state and local taxpayer funding.

"It's up to the legislature," he said. "We can't really do anything more."

Diebold said there's no place left to cut and the school districts only control the expenditure and not the revenue side of things.

He added the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District received $2.2 million less for all 11 districts than they did a year ago.

For Charlevoix specifically, Diebold said, the state is providing about $530,000 less than they did a year ago. This comes out to about $385 less per pupil.

The state, however, collects money from Charlevoix by collecting six mills from property tax, Diebold said. This equates to about $167 more per student that goes directly to the state.

Overall, Charlevoix is giving an increase of $167 toward Lansing than the previous year, but is receiving $385 less per student.

Beaver Island is our own Emerald Isle

EDITORIAL

Congratulations to Beaver Island for being named the best place to be in the world for St. Patrick's Day by the British magazine FHM.

Sure this magazine is a little racy (it is sort of like the Playboy of the states). But, regardless of this, it is a magazine that is read by thousands of people throughout the world.

And to have the little island of Beaver named as the top place for St. Patrick's Day by this magazine — over Chicago, Ill. and even Dublin, Ireland — is still an honor they should be proud of.

But, what makes St. Patrick's Day on Beaver Island so special? The magazine seems to insinuate it is the fantastic St. Patrick's Day festival the island hosts every year.

The main people behind it, the Gillespies, McDonoughs, Greens and a host of other families who make up Clan Na Gael, should be congratulated for the hard work they do and the great festival that is a result.

But, there is something that makes St. Patrick's Day even more special on the island. It is something you find beneath the wacky events, underneath the funny costumes and between glasses of Guinness.

On Beaver Island, they know why there is a celebration. There is a reason they call it the Great Day.

Islanders know St. Patrick's Day, March 17, is not just a day to dye your hair green, wear green clothing and drink green beer. St. Patrick's Day is something more. It is a day when they remember who it is they came from, how their ancestors came to America and why they love their island like they do.

Going to the island is like taking a trip to Ireland itself. The people of the island hold onto their heritage, nourish it and use it to enrich their lives. Like their Irish brethren, the islanders are poets, musicians, lovers, fighters, jokers and giving people. St. Patrick's Day is just the day when all of this that makes them unique in the states is celebrated to its fullest.

Islanders are an example on how our past can help guide us in life. They can teach us mainlanders many things.

For that, the island truly is the best place to be for St. Patrick's Day.

Our ideas of pilots have changed over the years

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

A lifelong interest in aviation and a year of Navy flight training — so long ago that military airplanes had propellers — encourage me to keep up with what is happening in the world of flight. There was an extraordinary event this month.

After the Wright Brothers' flight at Kittyhawk, each passing decade would be called "The Age of Flight," and often with good reason. As humans explored their new airy environment, the urge to fly higher, longer and faster than anyone else was overwhelming. The first (necessarily non-stop) flight across the English Channel from France was a major press event. And certainly the flight of Lindbergh across the Atlantic Ocean in 1927, fewer than 25 years after the Wrights', captured the world's attention and brought everlasting fame to the pilot. Wiley Post flew solo around the world in 1933, and although he had to make seven refueling stops, the press and the world's people were enthralled.

All these early 20th Century, longer and longer solo flights did not culminate in the first solo, non-stop flight around the world until early March of this year, more than 100 years after the first powered flight. Steve Fossett completed that astonishing trip in 67 hours, covering 23,000 miles in a single-engine jet designed and built especially for the trip by Burt Rutan. Unlike the press and public furor surrounding the 20th Century accomplishments, Mr. Fossett's achievement received very limited press, and he is unlikely to be feted, medaled or praised by governments around the globe. It is, as they say, a different world — one in which we no longer look upon aviators as heroes.

In 1931 James Thurber, who is not known for his attention to aviation, wrote a short story titled, "The Greatest Man in the World." His fictional account of the first around the world solo flight is a good deal more entertaining than Mr. Fossett's real flight, and well worth reading 75 years after it was written.

According to Thurber, all of our aviation heroes until 1934 had been men of character, who wore their laurels with honor and grace. Jack (Pal) Smurch, the hero of Thurber's fictional 1934 flight was anything but.

When Smurch began his flight from Roosevelt Field in New York, no one thought he had the remotest chance of success. When he crossed Europe a few days later, supported in flight by unusual floating gas tanks, and personally fueled, according to Thurber, by "a gallon of bootleg gin and six pounds of salami," the press was forced to take notice. When nine days later his ridiculous plane appeared over San Francisco, the press went wild.

Had there been CNN in 1934, there would have been 24 hour coverage, including everyone who had ever met the intrepid pilot. The 20th Century press moved somewhat more slowly in Thurber's story, but what they found out could not be printed.

Smurch was from Iowa, an appropriate source of heroes, but in her first press interview, his mother, "a sullen short-order cook in a shack restaurant on the edge of a tourist camping ground near Westfield, Iowa," told reporters, "Ah, the hell with him, I hope he drowns."

Other members of his family were equally complimentary. His fictional career up to the time of his incredible flight, had featured a number of petty crimes including assaulting his school principal with a knife and a theft from the local church, for which he had served reformatory time.

He was in short nothing like the earlier aviation heroes. What was to be done?

Thurber solves the problem by first keeping Smurch from any contact with the press and finally, with the consent of the United States president, pushing Smurch out the ninth story window of a New York Hotel, and providing him with the, "most elaborate, the finest, the solemnest and the saddest funeral ever held in the United States of America." So the crisis of the hero with unacceptable character ended.

We have not been told much about the character of Mr. Fossett. He is apparently well-enough connected to find funding for the building of his plane and for support of the project.

And at 60 years of age he seems to be a monument to the adventurous human spirit. He has previously funded repeated efforts to be the first to pilot a balloon around the world non-stop, and is both a world-class sailor and glider pilot.

Considering how Thurber's fictional hero was treated, I would urge Fossett to be extremely careful in his dealings with the press and the government. We may still like our heroes to be heroic. Or considering the extremely limited press coverage of his remarkable flight, and the apparent lack of interest on the part of governments, maybe we now care less about adventurous flight than we do about celebrity trials.

James Thurber would have had a wonderful time writing about a fictional celebrity trial.

Letters to the editor

Story response

Editor:

While at the city council meeting last March 7, I listened to a gentleman who spoke of the tax burden the non-voting taxpayers of Charlevoix assume. He seemed to say that for that reason the voting taxpayers of Charlevoix owed them some special considerations and luxuries in redesigning the marina and downtown park.

I believe that gentleman and anyone else who thinks as he does is rather misguided. Most of the permanent residents of Charlevoix will never enjoy the pleasure of sitting on the deck of a second or third home or condo enjoying the view of activities on Round Lake and the downtown area. Doubtfully they will never have the pleasure boat or yacht they can spend weeks on going to different ports and shopping with little regard to price. Neither will they ever realize a time when summer vacation lasts beyond the one to four weeks their employer or business allows them to take.

Make no mistake: I'm not looking for pity for those less financially blessed nor with ill will upon those more financially blessed. I do, however, take exception to the insinuation that someone who is more financially blessed, and as a result pays more taxes, deserves special considerations and that this community owes him or her something.

There isn't much that is done in Charlevoix that doesn't revolve around the needs and cares of the non-voting taxpayers who come here. The key word here is "needs" not "wants." The remodeling of the marina and park should be based on need not want.

I believe some humility and thanksgiving from our non-voting taxpayers for the pleasures and luxuries their financial blessings have brought is in order. I believe the marina and park do need some work to make them adequate, comfortable and functional, but beyond that this community owes nothing. If luxury above and beyond that is desired, you come up with the financing.

I, for one and for a change, would like to see someone express more interest and ideas for occupying and providing for the youth in our community. Perhaps drugs, alcohol, vandalism and numerous other complaints wouldn't be so prevalent if we had more activities and concern for our youth. They are the future leaders of this community.

Every parent knows that raising a child requires a sacrifice of investing time and resources. Raising these children is also a community responsibility which requires sacrifice and the investment of time and resources. We seem to know enough to fix our marina and park before something goes wrong; how about the welfare of our youth, the future of our city?

Voting tax payer, non-voting taxpayer, young, old, our city, the lakes, the scenery, are all gifts from god. All were set here to make this a loving, caring and enjoyable place for all. So the good for all, not just a few, should be considered. We are all the stewards of God's provision and blessings, let's keep it real and in perspective; God is the only one to whom we owe anything because he gave his all for us.

As a final note, the tax burden anyone bears in this community or any other is the price you pay for the luxuries you enjoy.

Minority rules due to abstention

Editor:

Your coverage of the Charlevoix City Council vote on the marina amendments was excellent. Since Amendment Five needed four votes, it failed to pass.

On the other hand, more council members voted for Amendment Five than against it. Because an ordinance requires a majority vote of council elect (being four) the absence of Mr. Sherman Chamberlain allowed a minority vote to prevail. Had one more council member been absent, all present would have had to approve for it to pass. By charter the mayor cannot vote on ordinances. So, clearly, it is the intent that a full council (six people) vote on such issues.

Whatever the reason for absence during the vote, it is not acceptable as votes on ordinances have been held up before to accommodate full attendance and participation.

A council meeting may be held with three members and the mayor present. It's obvious this type of meeting could only result in failure to pass an ordinance. It's as important to "deal with a full deck" as it is to participate.

One council person's decision not to participate in the process has caused a miscarriage of justice for the people of Charlevoix. Council must not function shorthanded on such crucial issues, thereby carrying out the intent of our charter to have all six council members voting on ordinances.

Ken Staley
Charlevoix

(Editor's note: Council member Sherman Chamberlain abstained from voting on the proposed amendments at that meeting because his firm Ferguson and Chamberlain surveyors had done some work related to the park plan. Therefore, he felt it would be a conflict of interest for him to vote on the matter.)

Need warning in Oyster Bay

Editor:

Webster defines a "hazard" as a source of danger, a chance, a venture or risk. Navigating Oyster Bay can pose a hazard.

There are six ships that have been laid to rest on the bottom of Oyster Bay, from a 206-ton schooner to a 57-foot steamer.

This past summer, 2004, an incident involving a 20-foot pleasure boat was reported. While navigating Oyster Bay, the pleasure boat struck part of one of the submerged vessels, raking the bottom of the boat and causing damage to the pleasure boat's outdrive. The passengers in the pleasure boat were thrown forward falling down. Luckily for the passengers, only bruises were incurred. It could have been much worse.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff was notified of the incident. The United States Coast Guard was also informed of the incident and asked why there is no marker placed above water to identify this submerged boating hazard area before someone is seriously injured. The Coast Guard indicated that the sunken/submerged vessels are marked on the Lake Charlevoix navigational chart and also that "everybody knows about them."

This does not appear to be sufficient marking or hazard warning of the submerged vessels. Where there is a definite navigational hazard, why not have a marking buoy placed and secured to identify the area for the safety of all boaters?

Thank you

Editor:
Please extend our sincere "thank you" to all those who helped to make our recent Rose Sale a success. We appreciate all the buyers and the sellers, the de-thorners and the boxers.

It takes a lot of volunteers to make any fund-raiser a success and our Kiwanis members really pulled together to make this happen. Bob Rajewski is one of our super salesmen and did his usual great job.

Special recognition should be given to Lori at Charlevoix Floral. Lori and her staff "donated" a lot of time, effort, the boxes and any profit they would make on the roses to benefit the community through Kiwanis. Pretty unusual and outstanding for non-Kiwanis members.

All the funds we raise go back to the community. For more than 70 years Kiwanis has been an important part of this community. We have supported Boy Scout Troop 11 for over 65 years. We sponsor the Northwest Academy Key Club for high school students, two Builder's Clubs at Charlevoix Middle School, and the Charlevoix Elementary K-Kids Club. We also sponsor and work with the Aktion Club at the Bergmann Center (and they in turn volunteered to assist with our Rose Sale).

Charlevoix is blessed to have so many outstanding volunteer groups and individuals. Again, our sincere thank you goes out to Lori at Charlevoix Floral and all the Kiwanis members, volunteers and those who purchased roses from our sale. You rock! We build!

Allen helps March into Reading

Senator Jason Allen came to Charlevoix Elementary School on March 18 to read to students as a part of the March Into Reading Month. Allen read "Lost in the Woods" by Carl R. Sams II and Jean Stoick and then donated the book to the school's library. Allen read to students from Sara Jonker, Nicole Sterrett and Krista Jarema's second grade classes.

Sheriff's book close to finished

George T. Lasater announces his book "Charlevoix County Citizens to World War II" will be submitted to the publisher by the end of March.

If you have a relative you would like to include, please contact Sheriff Lasater at (231) 582-7001 after 5 p.m. or on weekends.

Profiles of the book will go to the veteran organizations who were helpful in compiling the book, along with individual World War II veterans who need financial assistance.

Library to present its building plans to public

The Charlevoix Public Library Board of Trustees invites all interested people to attend a presentation of the new library plans.

Bill Williams, principal architect from Engherg Anderson Design Partnership, Alyce Riemschneider, from RDA and Duane Wixson, from Clark Construction will be presenting the final plans for the new Charlevoix Public Library.

The presentation will take place at 6 p.m. on Tuesday, March 22 in the library basement. The architect and interior designer will be presenting the finished design that will be sent out for bids the end of March.

The consultants will also be answering any questions from the public. For further information, contact Valerie Meyerson at the library (231) 547-2651.

Firefighters raising fund to help one of their own

The Charlevoix Volunteer Firefighters Association is asking the community to help one of our Volunteer Firefighters and his family.

Brian McDonald and his wife Ellen found out on March 10 that their 8-year-old son, Parker Ebert, has Rhabdomyosarcoma. Parker is a student at Charlevoix Elementary School.

Rhabdomyosarcoma is a soft tissue cancer that arises in the muscles. It accounts for about 4 percent of all childhood cancer. It is believed to originate in the embryonic state of the development of children. The outlook is that if treated with chemotherapy he should have a full recovery.

Parker has been at DeVos Children's Hospital in Grand Rapids to receive his treatments.

He has been able to come home for a couple of days here and there but has to continue to travel to Grand Rapids on a weekly basis to receive his treatments over the next 40-50 weeks. Since Brian and Ellen have not been able to work while being with their son they have not been able to receive paychecks.

When they arrive back in Charlevoix between treatments Brian will be able to work as much as possible, but they will still have the weekly travel expenses to take Parker to Grand Rapids.

If you would like to make a donation to help support the McDonald family the association is asking that you send your donation in care of the Charlevoix Volunteer Firefighters Association, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Also, please keep an eye on the paper for upcoming fund raisers the association will be having for the McDonald family.

If you have any questions please feel free to contact them at 547-3279 or check on Parker at www.carepages.com/devos, register and sign in for "parkerbert."

God can give peace in times of change

BY FR. JIM GUNN Rector
Christ Episcopal Church

I want to share a conclusion that I have reached after six winters in northern Michigan.

First let me say that I have listened to people for years as they said, "This is unusual!" when it snows more (or less) than predicted or when the temperature is different than expected or(fill in the blank).

This year it finally struck me that all of those statements are wrong. I came to that conclusion for the following reason — for something to be "unusual," then there must be a "usual." Since no two of the winters here have been more than vaguely similar (except for the presence of snow), I decided that there is no "usual" winter weather in northern Michigan and, therefore, there cannot be "unusual" weather. I'm not sure exactly what does make the weather or how it can be described, but I don't think that "unusual" is an option.

However, that does produce a dynamic in the lives of those who live here. Basically it is that you don't know what to expect from one day to the next. That can be very unsettling.

Beacons of Blessing

The priest who sponsored me for Holy Orders used to say, "You can adjust to anything except uncertainty."

One example that comes to my mind in the life of our congregation is my hesitancy to plan any major event during the winter months. We could invest a great deal of time, effort and money in the planning of a wonderful conference only to have it "blown out of the water," so to speak, by a major snowstorm the day before.

That would be true for any organization that plans events of any complexity. It can be disconcerting and disheartening to have such things occur. I believe that our minds and spirits long for continuity. We want our lives to have a sense of peace, but that is threatened by change and the unexpected.

I'm sure that's why so many organizations go through turmoil when things are changed. It's like the joke about how many Episcopalians it takes to change a light bulb. The answer is 10 — one to change the bulb and nine to complain about the change!

That leaves us with just one thing to remember. It is only in God that we can find the peace and continuity that we long for. That continuity is highlighted in James 1:17 — "Every good and perfect gift is from above, coming down from the Father of the heavenly lights, who does not change like shifting shadows."

And when we are constant in our relationship with Him, then we will experience that which we most need: "Do not be anxious about anything, but in everything, by prayer and petition, with thanksgiving, present your requests to God. And the peace of God, which transcends all understanding, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus." (Philippians 4:6-7)

May you find — and rest — in that changelessness and peace.

Charlevoix company rises from small shop

This is the second in a monthly series about local industry and its impact and importance in Charlevoix.

Michigan Scientific Corporation, a family owned business, specializes in the manufacturing and design of slip ring assemblies, transducers, signal conditioning electronics and data acquisition among other engineering services such as product failure analysis.

The corporation started in 1960 in Milford and has grown to encompass a separate facility in Charlevoix that opened in 1979.

Ralph W. Larsen, engineer, said the Milford location primarily focuses on the development work of engineers and technicians, data acquisition of products and the development of telemetry.

The Charlevoix location specifically designs and manufactures slip rings and load transducers among other engineering work.

Larsen's father, Hugh Larsen, created the company while he worked for General Motors. Larsen said his father got approval to make slip rings on his own time and that effort has grown into Michigan Scientific Corporation.

"It slowly grew and is one of those operations that grew out of the basement of a house," Larsen said.

Currently the Milford location employs 30 people and the Charlevoix location employs 40 people.

The Charlevoix location came into being when Larsen and another engineer, Mike Castiglione, got together. Larsen said Charlevoix was chosen as the new site because the family used to vacation in the area and liked the surroundings.

Also, the area was workable as shipping product wasn't a problem, Larsen said.

Larsen and Castiglione were joined by Larsen's brother, Kent Larsen, an electrical engineer, who transferred from the Milford location.

The initial productivity of the Charlevoix location was manufacturing slip rings in a 6,500 square foot room. In 1991 the location was increased to 14,700 square feet.

Slip rings are used to collect data on anything that rotates such as a tire on a vehicle.

Larsen said the slip ring functions like a rotary connector and allows power to get into and signals back out of a rotating part.

The information the slip ring helps transmit can be used to measure strain, stress, temperature and pressure.

Some of the slip rings that Michigan Scientific Corporation manufactures have extra built in functions such as encoders. These special slip rings function the same but the encoders inside them can measure rotational speed and angular position.

Michigan Scientific Corporation does a lot of work for the automotive industry as well as other industries such as off-road vehicles, military vehicles and much more.

Another market Michigan Scientific Corporation helps is the egg industry as they manufacture egg scales that accurately measure the weight of an egg in about one-third of a second as it rolls over the scale.

"We don't sell a lot of units to any one unit," he said of the variety of industry that uses their products.

Michigan Scientific Corporation has a lot of industry they sell their products to throughout the United States and abroad.

City sued over property split

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The city has been sued by Charlevoix residents Robert and Mary Eveleigh regarding claims their property was illegally split in the 1980s, thus making it difficult for them to sell it now.

The lawsuit is part of a larger suit the Eveleighs have against former owners of their property at 206 Dixon Avenue and the people who made the property split in question — Leone, Leon D and Karen Elaine Sheffer, as well as the title company at the time of the split, Northern Michigan Title (now called Northern Preferred Title). The city was added to the lawsuit about two weeks ago.

According to court documents, the Eveleighs claim the property they bought on land contract from the Sheffers was illegally split. From another section of land owned by the Sheffers in 1984. They claim the city did not take action on this matter when it was discovered, did not enforce its ordinances as a result and Northern Title did not conduct a thorough title search.

The Eveleighs claim the city also "invoked its zoning powers by creating spot zoning on the (Eveleigh's) property from R-1 to R-2, thereby depriving (Eveleighs) of their property."

Charlevoix City Attorney Jim Young said the spot zoning complaint is new.

"This is the first time I have heard of concerns on zoning," he said.

Young said the claim was vague and the city will learn more about it as the case progresses.

He has reviewed the lawsuit and sent it to the city's insurance company. The insurance company will decide what to do.

The Eveleighs had previously visited the Charlevoix City Council on the matter last fall. They claimed the previous owners of the property, the Sheffers, split the lot without going through the proper procedures that were in place according to city and state law.

However, after several meetings on the matter with the Eveleighs, Young informed them and the city council that the lot was not illegally split according to laws in the city at that time.

There are different laws dealing with lot splits in place now that would make a split such as their's illegal now, Young said.

But, at the meeting with council, the Eveleigh's said a local realtor estate agent told them they could not sell their property because it was split illegally. Young disagreed.

The Eveleighs would like the court to award them $25,000, plus costs, attorney fees and "further equitable relief as the court deems fair and just" each from the Sheffers, Northern Michigan Title and the city of Charlevoix.

McGraw, Ferguson picked as OPIE winners

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Each year a member of the teaching staff and the support staff are chosen as recipients of the Outstanding Person in Education (OPIE) Award by their peers. Both women have worked hard for their honors.

This year, Mary Beth McGraw was chosen as the 2005 Outstanding Person in Education for the teaching staff and Glenda Ferguson was chosen as the 2005 Outstanding Person in Education for the support staff.

McGraw, a visual art educator at Charlevoix Elementary School, said she is honored to have been chosen by her peers to receive the 2005 Outstanding Person in Education award.

"There are many teachers here that are just as deserving or more, but it was a very nice honor," she said.

This is McGraw's first OPIE Award in the 25 years she has taught in the Charlevoix Public School District.

Her educational career began at Charlevoix High School where she was a long-term substitute teacher. However, as luck would have it, doors opened for McGraw to take a full-time teaching position at the elementary school.

She has stayed at the school ever since because the formative years are where a teacher can create an interest in the arts.

"My favorite thing is helping students discover the arts and their individual abilities," she said in a statement. "The most gratifying is seeing a child's face when he realizes he has just created what he has imagined."

McGraw said after elementary school, the arts tend to become electives and not a core part of education.

Over the years McGraw has seen her young artists blossom into mature artists with their own creative flare.

"It's fun to see what they've progressed into," she said.

Art is something that McGraw has always been passionate about. She has served as a board member of the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair for the past 23 years. For the past nine years she has been the director of the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair and the president of the Charlevoix Council for the Arts.

The proceeds from the art fair are used to fund art education opportunities for the students and community at large.

"Art is incredibly important to total education," she said.

Her work extends into several educational activities on the local, regional and state level. McGraw's love of art also led her to own her own art gallery.

McGraw said her satisfaction as a teacher comes from watching her students succeed in the arts. Other subject areas may pose as a struggle for some students, but the arts allow each student to succeed.

"At the very, very least it gives them a productive leisure time," she said. "The interest lasts a lifetime."

Art also allows the heritage of one culture to be remembered and understood by another culture, McGraw said, as it is shown through art.

"I hope to continue giving the kids the best exposure with the time allotment and budget allotment," she said.

Ferguson, a counseling secretary for Charlevoix High School, said she is honored as Charlevoix is one of the few districts that honors support staff members.

"I feel very honored and proud," she said.

Ferguson said she was surprised by the number of people who have contacted her in some fashion to congratulate her on her achievement.

"It's pretty rewarding, I felt, to have people acknowledge it," she said.

Ferguson has been the counseling secretary for Charlevoix High School for 28 years.

Numerous opportunities have come along such as working for a principal or the superintendent's office, but Ferguson chose to stay where she is.

"I do love my job and I like working with the kids, and I get a lot of satisfaction watching the kids grow and mature through their high school years and seeing what their future holds for them," she said.

Ferguson wears many different hats throughout the day as she is in charge of student records, helping the teachers get report cards ready, helping students with anything they may need and much more.

"There's never a dull moment," she said.

The counseling office has been her only location as she enjoys her surroundings.

"I like the atmosphere of the counseling office as far as working with students, parents, teachers and the community," she said. "Teachers have always been very good to me and I appreciate that. I've enjoyed working with them."

Ferguson said she finds her work interesting, fun and rewarding as she is helping students and their families with the high school process and beyond.

Her position as counseling secretary was something Ferguson found herself falling into.

Ferguson had taken a 12-month business program from the Muskegon Business College and had also done some bookkeeping work at a few places before she applied with Charlevoix Public Schools.

Ferguson had stayed home with her children when they were small, but when they entered school she wanted to pursue a career that would allow her to be around children and have the same schedule in the summer and winter as her own children.

She applied for a part-time aide position, but got a full-time counseling secretary position after the previous employee moved with her husband.

Ferguson said she is very fortunate she was hired for the full-time position.

Aside from being the counseling secretary for 28 years, Ferguson has done the bookkeeping for her husband John's business, Ferguson and Chamberlain Associates Inc., for the past 28 years.

Ferguson said she also watches her three grandchildren and helps take care of them.

"It's very nice," she said. "I'm very happy with how things are."

Mary Beth McGraw received the 2005 Outstanding Person in Education Award for teaching staff for her hard work as the art educator at Charlevoix Elementary School.

Now that she has put in 28 years with the school and received an OPIE Award, Ferguson said she is looking forward to having more time for herself in the future.

"I would like to retire after I complete 30 years," she said of her time at Charlevoix High School.

"And then my husband and I want to do some traveling, camping and spending more time with our kids and grandchildren."

DDA discusses budget, chamber, lights

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The Downtown Development Authority looked over its projected budget at its March 21 work session and will have to decide what to do to enhance the outlook.

The meeting was a brainstorming session as no action was taken. Members simply stated ideas they had and talked about possible events and activities they are willing to fund with the budget they have.

Many issues are currently facing the DDA and one is the Christmas lights downtown.

City Treasurer Rick Brandi said the city has removed funding for the Christmas lights from its budget. That responsibility has now fallen into the lap of the DDA.

The lighting is budgeted for $32,700, which used to come out of the electric fund.

DDA member Fred DiMartino said he thinks it would be beneficial to use the lights in the summer.

DDA member John Yaroch said the lights could run from 10 p.m. to midnight during the summer in order to attract more people downtown.

The cost wouldn't be as great as it is in the winter since it stays lighter out in the summer.

However, business owner Kirby Dipert said the customers they receive after 10 p.m. aren't high in numbers.

DDA member Jeff Porter said he thinks the decision to hand funding for the lights over to the DDA from the city was done on the spur of the moment and was literally dumped into their lap.

DDA member Jeannine Wallace said she funding the lights wouldn't be a problem for her.

"I don't mind the DDA spending money on something that benefits the downtown and the community," she said.

Chairman Hugh Mason said one problem is funding the lights over the next 20 years would take a huge chunk of money out of the DDA's budget.

Another issue the DDA discussed was music in the park.

Wallace said she would prefer to fund the lighting instead of the music since it's permanent while music is fleeting.

Wallace and Mason said they enjoy the music downtown, but don't know if funds are there.

The Convention and Visitor's Bureau isn't going to be able to fund the music.

Tracey Sell, of the Convention and Visitor's Bureau, said the group's mission is to promote Charlevoix and bring people to Charlevoix. So, this year the board decided to not allocate any money to the summer concert series.

Sell said the budget has gone down $20,000 and they are off about $1 million in revenue from Charlevoix.

Thus, the group has had to adopt a more conservative budget.

Dipert said business is slower on night's there is music in the park since they're drawn away from the stores.

DDA member John Taylor said he thinks the music should be brought to the streets and out of the park. He said a few parking spaces could be roped off to allow musicians to perform along the street as people walk by.

"It could create a more festive atmosphere downtown," he said. "It's unique and different than other towns."

Wallace said there are plenty of talent locally, which would reduce the cost of bringing in larger acts.

"We need to use local talent that's not been tapped into," she said.

DDA member Dan Barron said there could even be mimes and jugglers and a large variety of music could be played throughout the evening along the streets.

DiMartino said they have to be careful as the new park renovation plans include building a new bandshell. He said having performers using the street as a stage instead of the new bandshell could raise some concern with residents.

Wallace said the bandshell isn't just for concerts, but rather a performance pavilion that can be the stage for a variety of performances.

The DDA's proposed cut in funding for the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce was also discussed.

Chamber members are concerned since funding is tight as it is. However, the DDA is not happy with the performance of the Downtown Coordinator.

Hugh Mason, chairman of the DDA, said in a previous meeting that he wants to help the Chamber but doesn't know if the funding is there to support the almost $50,000 the Chamber is asking for to keep promoting Charlevoix.

Barron said he is interested in looking into and analyzing each year what worked and what didn't in regard to downtown.

Yaroch said he thinks the downtown coordinator could be paid $32,000 for part time and $50,000 for full time. He said a central focus for all parties that promote Charlevoix is needed as the 100 year celebration of Charlevoix's charter is coming up and work has only just begun. Yaroch said that is something that should have been planned a few years in advance.

Porter said he is afraid Charlevoix is confused on it's character.

"Charlevoix has a schizophrenic problem between tourist or resort community," he said.

Porter said Charlevoix cannot be both and he thinks a resort community makes more sense for the area than a tourist community.

People who come for the resort atmosphere tend to stay, Porter said, while tourists come for the day and leave without staying in hotels or eating in local restaurants.

Jacqueline Merta, president of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, said new events have not been added, but she said the Chamber considers Charlevoix both a resort and tourist community.

She said the tourist industry fluctuates between being the second and third industry in the state of Michigan.

Dipert said the one thing he fears about the DDA possibly pulling together a team that would coordinate activities is that it might add another level of bureaucracy. He said the money that would be used to fund another executive position could be going to downtown.

The DDA will decide upon issues at their next meeting at 5:30 p.m. on March 28 in the City Council Chambers.

Congratulations!

Northwest students visit Brimley charter school

Courtesy photo
Northwest Academy's basketball team faces off against Brimley's basketball team during a visit the students of the Charlevoix school took to the Upper Peninsula charter school.

Accepting an invitation from the Ojibwe Charter School in Brimley, the students from Northwest Academy traveled to the upper peninsula school on Tuesday, March 1.

The two schools had competed at a basketball game in Charlevoix in February as a part of the Michigan High School Athletic Association class D league. The Ojibwe Charter School was formed in 2003 through the Bay Mills Community College as a K-8 public charter academy to build on the sense of community and provide a learning atmosphere that celebrates cultural differences.

The Northwest students and chaperones were treated to Indian tacos and salad bar for lunch in their newly operating cafeteria. Local Ojibwe community adults joined with students to open the afternoon's activities with native drumming and colorful dancing.

Music from the Northwest junior/senior band and the jazz band under the direction of Gary Stutzman then entertained the Brimley students.

The day concluded with a basketball game between the Ojibwe Charter School Eagles and the Northwest Academy Navigators. The final score was Brimley 45 and Northwest 25.

The head coach of the Navigators is Karl Redmer and the assistant coach is Gary Stutzman.

PUBLIC NOTICE

If it's not in the newspaper, how will the public notice?

Zoning changes. Tax increases. Legislative proposals. These are just a few topics where government actions can affect your life and community. Imagine if government no longer had the legal obligation to publish this information in your newspaper. How would public notices get noticed? In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. It should not be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, when to look or even to know what you're looking for to be informed. It is government's responsibility to publish and deliver public notice information as it becomes available. So take notice. Your right to know is being served... right here in your newspaper.

Festival of Tables to help area Child and Family Services

If you have a taste for fresh entertaining ideas and exciting table designs to help spring come just a little bit sooner, mark your calendar for the fourth annual Festival of Tables, a event benefiting Child and Family Services of Northwestern Michigan.

The event is set for 10 a.m. - 2 p.m., Saturday, May 7, at the Grand Traverse Resort and Spa.

More than 200 northwestern Michigan businesses and civic organizations are participating in this year's Festival. 40 of them are designing displays guaranteed to help you plan the perfect table for any occasion, and to share entertaining tips and ideas. Table themes include: "Blossoms and Butterflies," "Wildflowers and Wine on Old Mission Peninsula; and "Springtime in a Northern Forest".

Samplings include the Great Wolf Lodge, Ethnic Garden Catering, American Spoon Foods and Chateau Chantal (wine tasting). Demonstrations include Nawbin Bead designs for the table and hand-painted glassware by Lindalee Foresman.

You'll have the opportunity to select your favorite table, as several of those you'll see will be part of an exciting raffle. For the price of a $10 ticket, you may be the winner of a table with all the trimmings worth a minimum of $350 and as much as $2,000. Tickets for additional "dream" raffle packages are available now and at the event through Festival of Tables committee members.

Tickets for the Festival of Tables are $45 each. Proceeds will benefit Child and Family Services, a non-profit organization specializing in foster care, adoption, counseling and prevention services in northwestern Michigan since 1937.

Tickets are available now at Elements in Charlevoix, Details of Traverse City and Petoskey, Wildflower of Glen Arbor and Traverse City and Betsie Bay in Frankfort or by calling Child and Family Services at (231) 946-8975.

Code books found to have many errors

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

While Charlevoix City Commissioners have said they would like to start examining all the ordinances in the city code book in the near future, they discovered March 14 they don't even have the same code books.

Charlevoix City Clerk Carol Ochs said she discovered recently that there are several different versions of the city's code book in the possession of various council members. This means sometimes council members who question various ordinances in the city code book at council meetings, may not even be looking at the current ordinance.

"I don't think we were enforcing the wrong codes," Ochs said. "I think we were mostly running into problems when they (council) presented things (suggested changes to ordinances)."

Ochs said, in the past, the city contracted with a company that would update the code books once a year. However, to update the code books, the company just sent out supplements, and city officials and elected representatives were responsible for placing in their own books.

They didn't place those in some of the books, thus the differences in code books that the city is facing now.

"It was very confusing when I came here," Ochs said.

But, Ochs said the problem can be fixed. She said she can do it with the help of just one other person.

"I have professional skills for this type of project that another clerk would not have. Another clerk, with the code in its present state, would probably be forced to hire a professional company, most likely a codification company, at considerable cost to the city," she said in a letter to council.

Instead of hiring an outside company, Ochs and one other person, will be working nights and weekends to fix the mistakes in the current code books. City council has given Ochs the OK to hire a freelance proofreader to help her out with this at $12 an hour.

Ochs is also getting paid extra for her work on this at $15 an hour.

The total estimated cost of this project will be $7,500. But, Ochs added it could be considerably less.

"If I have time to work on the project during regular office hours, I will do so at no charge to the city. However, this kind of time has not been available in recent months," she said in a letter to council.

Ochs said council has been very busy in the past few months, thus making her very busy with clerk duties.

Even so, Ochs said she is trying to have the mistakes ironed out by the first part of June. And she does not think this problem will happen again.

"Once we get to a point where I can say, 'Here is your starting point,' I think it will be easy to update," she said.

CHARLEVOIX TOWNSHIP ~ BLIGHT ORDINANCE

Ordinance No. 1.71

Adopted by the Charlevoix Township Board

Effective Date: April 20, 2005

INTENT AND PURPOSE

An ordinance to secure the public health, safety and general welfare of the residents and property owners by regulating the storage of junk, rubbish, garbage, inoperable vehicles and trailers within Charlevoix Township and to prohibit such storage except under certain conditions and to provide provisions for enforcement, compliance and penalties for violation of the ordinance.

Section 1 - TITLE

This Ordinance shall be known and cited as the Charlevoix Township Blight Ordinance.

Section 2 - LEGISLATIVE FINDINGS

It is hereby determined that there exists on both privately and publicly owned parcels of land within Charlevoix Township accumulations of unsightly junk, rubbish and/or garbage, and inoperable vehicles and trailers, and that such accumulations constitute a hazard to the public health, safety and welfare of the residents of Charlevoix Township for the reasons that they provide a habitat conducive to the breeding and nesting of rats, mice and other vermin, and also that they contain objects with sharp edges and other hazards which could injure children who would be attracted to play thereon without appreciating the danger thereof, and that the regulations contained in this ordinance are the minimum regulations required to eliminate the foregoing undesirable conditions and protect the health, safety and welfare of the public.

Section 3 - DEFINITIONS

The following terms used in this Ordinance are defined as follows:

- A. Junk - As used in this ordinance, "junk," means any unused toys, unused or unusable tires, building materials, furniture, machinery, appliances, or parts thereof.
- B. Rubbish - As used in this ordinance, "rubbish," means wastepaper, metalware, plasticware, metal cuttings, boxes, glass, non-landscape shavings, barrels, lumber, paper cartons and brush trimmings.
- C. Garbage - As used in this ordinance, "garbage," means any accumulation of trash, refuse or litter specifically including, but not limited to, refuse from the preparation and consumption of food, as well as dead animals (or parts thereof) and discarded edible or drinkable items.
- D. Vehicle - As used in this ordinance, "vehicle," means motorized and non-motorized mechanical devices which have the primary purpose of transporting people on land, air, and water, including but not limited to, motor homes, cars, trucks, airplanes, snowmobiles, motorcycles, boats, (including canoes), and bicycles.
- E. Inoperable - As used in this ordinance, "inoperable," means any vehicle unable to perform its primary, legal function of transportation because of mechanical condition, missing parts or non-licensure or registration if same is required by state law.
- F. Trailer - As used in this ordinance, "trailer," means any non-motorized device which must be pulled by a vehicle and is used for the purpose of transporting other vehicles or items of any kind, including but not limited to utility and recreational travel trailers.

Section 4 - UNLAWFUL ACTS

- A. Storage of Junk, Rubbish, Garbage - No owner, occupant or possessor of land within Charlevoix Township shall keep, or permit to be kept at any time on such parcel, any accumulation of junk, rubbish, and/or garbage unless the same is within a completely enclosed storage container with lid or completely enclosed building awaiting removal.

- B. Storage of Inoperable Vehicles and Trailers - No owner, occupant or possessor of land within Charlevoix Township shall keep or permit to be kept, for more than ten (10) consecutive days, any inoperable vehicle or trailer, including vehicles and trailers under owner repair, unless said vehicle or trailer is within a completely enclosed building or completely screened behind a fence in the side or rear yards as defined in the Charlevoix Township Zoning Ordinance currently in effect.

- C. Placement of Junk, Rubbish, Garbage and/or Inoperable Vehicles and Trailers - No person shall place junk, rubbish, garbage and/or inoperable vehicles or trailers on the property of another, including any governmentally owned property.

- D. Vehicles, and Trailers for Sale - Residential property owners and occupants wishing to display and sell personal vehicles or trailers on their properties may display no more than two vehicles or trailers, or one vehicle and one trailer, at any one time for a period not to exceed 90-days in any 365-day period. Vehicles or trailers for sale shall not be displayed on vacant properties. Vehicles or trailers for sale need not be licensed but shall be operable in all other ways. Vehicles or trailers for sale shall be clearly marked, "FOR SALE." No person shall place vehicles or trailers for sale on the property of another, including any governmentally-owned property or road right-of-way, without the written consent of the owner.

Section 5 - EXCEPTIONS

This Ordinance does not apply to inventory or premises occupied by a merchant licensed under MCL 205.53 and conducting a lawful business or to the property of patrons of a lawful motor vehicle repair facility, furniture or appliance repair facility, or gasoline service station while left on the premises of either for purposes of service or repair, nor does this ordinance apply to licensed salvage yards which are regulated under Public Act 12 of 1929.

- B. Recreational vehicles and trailers which are usable, in good repair and are customarily licensed on a seasonal basis shall be allowed to be kept on the owner's property without license during the off-season so long as they are stored in a completely enclosed building or completely screened behind a fence in the side or rear yards as defined in the Charlevoix Township Zoning Ordinance currently in effect.

- C. Recreational, commercial and agricultural vehicles and trailers not required to be licensed or registered by the State of Michigan shall be allowed to be kept in the owner's property without license so long as they are stored in a completely enclosed building or completely screened behind a fence in the side or rear yards as defined in the adherence to the Charlevoix Township Zoning Ordinance currently in effect.

- D. Junk, Rubbish and Garbage may be kept in a temporary, roadside storage container, with closable lid, used for the purpose of keeping rats, foraging animals and other vermin away from the contents, and awaiting pickup by a refuse hauling company for up to a 48-hour period, so long as the temporary storage container shall not be larger than (2) two-cubic-yards in size and must have a locking or latching device sufficient to prevent opening by foraging animals.

- E. Commercial businesses may, in addition to the containers described in paragraph D, above, keep a dumpster on-site. The dumpster should be kept in such a place so that it is screened from view by the public. Additionally, the dumpster must be emptied on a regular basis so that it does not overflow. Further, the dumpster must have lid which shall be kept closed at all time, except when trash or rubbish is being placed into the dumpster.

- F. Property owners may place lawn clippings and hedge and/or shrub trimmings in a pile on their property. These items should be kept in a location which is not offensive to any neighbors (for example, do not place these items right on the property next to your neighbor's deck). In all events, unless the lawn clippings and/or hedge/shrub trimmings are being used as compost, the refuse shall be removed from the property at least once every two years so that the pile does not become too large or otherwise become a nuisance.

Section 6 - ENFORCEMENT AND SANCTIONS

- A. Authority. The Zoning Administrator and Supervisor shall have the authority to enforce and initiate proceedings to enforce and abate violations of the provisions of this Ordinance. Any violation of this Ordinance is hereby declared to be a nuisance per se.

- B. Investigation; correction period. The Zoning Administrator shall investigate each alleged violation and shall send to the alleged violator by registered mail a written notice specifying all violations and ordering him or her to correct the violation within thirty (30) days of the notice.

- C. Violations. Any person who fails to correct a violation of any provision of this Ordinance within thirty (30) days of the date of the notice ordering the correction shall be guilty of a municipal civil infraction as defined in Public Act 12 of 1994, amending Public Act 236 of 1961, being Sections 600.101-600.9939 of Michigan Compiled Laws, and shall be subject to a fine of $100.00, plus costs incurred. Each day this Ordinance is violated shall be considered as a separate violation.

- D. Repeat Offenses. Repeat offenses under this Ordinance shall be subject to increased fines as provided by this section below. As used in this section, "repeat offense," means a second (or any subsequent) violation of the same requirement or provision of this ordinance, as determined by the Zoning Administrator or Supervisor, for which the person admits responsibility or is determined to be responsible. The schedule of fines for repeat offenses under this Ordinance shall be as follows:

First repeat offense: $250.00, plus costs incurred
Second or subsequent repeat offense: $500.00, plus costs incurred

- E. Enforcement. The Zoning Administrator and Supervisor are hereby designated as the authorized Township officials to issue municipal civil infraction citations requiring alleged violators of this Ordinance to appear in court.

- F. Abatement. In addition to enforcing this Ordinance through the use of a municipal civil infraction proceeding, the Township may initiate proceedings in the Circuit Court to abate or eliminate the nuisance per se or any other violation of this Ordinance.

- G. Appeal. A property owner or occupant who is cited for a violation under this Ordinance may appeal to the Charlevoix Township Board of Trustees, if extenuating circumstances are involved.

Section 7 - PRIMA FACIE PROOF

- A. To any litigation arising under this ordinance, testimony that any unusable toys, unused or unusable building materials, furniture, machinery, appliances, or parts thereof, have been observed in the same place on at least (7) seven consecutive or non-consecutive calendar days, shall constitute prima facie proof that such constitute junk, as defined in Section 3.

- B. In any litigation arising under this ordinance, testimony that any unlicensed vehicle, including but not limited to cars, trucks, snowmobiles, motorcycles, boats (including non-motorized boats), or parts thereof, that have been observed in the same place on at least (14) fourteen consecutive days, shall constitute prima facie proof that such constitute an inoperable vehicle, as defined in Section 3.

Section 8 - SEVERABILITY

The provisions of this Ordinance are hereby declared to be severable, and if any clause, sentence, word, section or provision is declared void or unenforceable for any reason by any court of competent jurisdiction, it shall not affect any other portion of this Ordinance.

Section 9 - CONFLICTING REGULATIONS

In the interpretation, application and enforcement of this Ordinance, whenever any of the provisions or limitations imposed or required by the provisions of this Ordinance are more stringent than any other law or ordinance, then the provisions of this Ordinance shall govern. Whenever the provisions of any other law or ordinance impose more stringent requirements than are imposed or required by this Ordinance, then the provisions of such other law or ordinance shall govern.

Section 10 - EFFECTIVE DATE

This Ordinance shall take effect 30 days after publication as required by law.

Island celebrates Ireland's patron saint

Due to a raging snowstorm outside, the annual Beaver Island St. Patrick's Day festival kept all of its events inside the Shamrock Bar this year. The bar was packed with lucky festival-goers Saturday who had made it to the island before the island airline was forced to stop flying, due to the weather.

(Right) Adam Martin spits a minnow for accuracy in the Minnow Toss. Contestants had to throw or spit a live minnow across the bar to an "X" on the floor. The closest minnow won.

Contestants also took part in a modified Shopping Cart race using a box cart instead. They had to race around their teammates with one player on the box cart, left, and perform various activities after each time around the course in the Shamrock Bar. Above, one of those tests was a leap-frog. The fastest time won.

State recommends against jail for Creswell, Mazur

PLEA

MDEQ investigator Detective Vincent T. Woods said, "The state does not recommend jail time and they (Creswell and Mazur) were cooperative."

He added, "The judge could still give jail time though. There are no promises as far as sentencing."

Problems at the Wastewater Treatment Plant reach back over a three year period, which the city staff discovered last winter according to a letter written by Dustin Ordway, a city attorney to Barry Selden, chief of the MDEQ's Cadillac unit.

The MDEQ's investigation team recorded some of the problems they found in a March report that was given to City Manager Michael Wiesner. The report included that 31 total residual chlorine limit exceedences were reported to MDEQ as being in compliance.

The March report also stated that reports for 15 phosphorus results and 32 fecal coliform results were falsely reported to MDEQ. The report also stated that there were 27 days when monitoring didn't take place and other areas where proper protocol wasn't followed.

Originally, bench sheets, where initial readings of the treated water are recorded before being entered into a computer system that will provide a report given to the state, didn't match up with the reports given. In some instances, the bench sheets had been doctored or erased.

During the investigation, Richard Shoemaker, the senior environmental quality analyst with the surface water quality division of the MDEQ, said — in a previous interview with the Charlevoix Courier — that he didn't know why the operator would purposefully falsify information. Shoemaker said in the interview that he thought the person was trying to make the Charlevoix plant look good.

One problem Shoemaker said the plant had was that the formerly unnamed staff members were putting too much chlorine into the treatment process.

To kill the bacteria, the water needs to mix with the chlorine in the contact tank for 30 minutes. Shoemaker said the staff members just added more chlorine instead of waiting for the 30 minutes.

The high concentration of chlorine in Lake Michigan wasn't enough to harm fish, but Shoemaker said it probably killed some zebra mussels living near the discharge line.

Shoemaker said chlorine that concentrated dissolves in minutes once it reaches a body of water like Lake Michigan and wouldn't have affected the drinking water located over one mile away.

On March 17, 2004, Charlevoix City Manager Mike Wiesner discussed suspending Creswell, who had been the plant's superintendent for almost 30 years.

Creswell chose to retire instead, which became effective on March 17. He gave his notice to Wiesner's office on March 22.

Creswell said in a previous interview with the Charlevoix Courier, that he didn't retire due to the impending investigation, but rather because he had just turned 60 and decided he needed to leave the stressful position.

Charlevoix's Irish come out for pub crawl

Charlevoix restaurants hosted their own pub crawl on March 17 in honor of St. Patrick's Day. (Right) A bagpipe band from Sault Ste. Marie led the crawlers from bar-to-bar in downtown Charlevoix.

(Above) Several residents wore shirts commenting on the green dye scandal that occurred during last year's St. Patrick's Day Pub Crawl hosted by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber has a civil and criminal case against them for the incident, but no one has come forward. The caption on the various shirts said, "I know someone who thinks they know who did it."

Snowboard event helped area skate park

With over 40 participants for Charlevoix Community Skate Park's first snowboard challenge fund-raiser on Sunday, March 13, at Mount McSaubia, an afternoon full of spills and thrills captivated parents and spectators of local snowboard enthusiasts.

At 1 p.m., the Boarder Cross event started on a course set-up on the front hill. Boarder Cross is a course race with at least 3-4 snowboarders racing against each other on a set course at one time.

The idea for this event came while watching the Boarder Cross events shown on TV. The skate park would like to acknowledge and thank the Mt. McSaubia staff for all their help in setting the course and jumps for all the events. With the cold temps the course was fast and challenging for all ages.

At approximately 2:15 p.m., the Snowboard Scramble event started, which included starting with one foot out of its binding, going up the bunny hill, down the bunny hill, up the front hill down the back hill, up the back hill and down the front course. Much enjoyment was derived by seeing how innovative the Boarder could be to secure his bindings while going up the tow rope.

The much anticipated Big Air Demo started at approximately 3:15 p.m. on the front hill. A tabletop jump was built on the front hill for local snowboarders and skiers to show off their skills and talent at catching air.

Many parents and visitors remarked on how great this was as some of them had never seen their child perform the sport he/she loved and lived for.

Middle school wrestlers medal at tournament

The Charlevoix Elementary/Middle School Wrestling team competed in Rogers City on Saturday, March 19.

Nearly all of the wrestlers received medals in the round robin-style tournament. Coach Craig Golovich is happy with how well his team did. He said there are some good wrestlers moving up the next few years to the high school level.

As a whole, the team is making improvements. Individually, the wrestlers are enjoying the season and experience successes. Medals were awarded to the following wrestlers:

• First place: Cody Gould, Justin Perkins, Sammy Hovie and Matthew Levins.

• Third place: Tabettha Penfold, Jamie Eakes, Lucas Von Lau, Jacob Sharrow, Tanner Geer, Casey Swadling, Curtis Russell, Greg Bishaw, Jacob Roach, Danny Bryant, Nic Mailloux and Zeke Daman.

• Fourth place: John Kagabatang, Aaron De Vries, Avery Penfold and Ryan Penfold.

With the terrain park at Mt. McSaubia on the backside many had never seen them hit the jumps. Many were in awe of the talent and love for this sport that was clearly apparent.

Also featured at the event was live coverage by "The Zone," 94.5, which included T-shirt, CD and other item giveaways. Concessions were also available by the Skate Park Committee.

Hoodies, shirts, and skull caps with the Skate park logo (designed locally by Taylor Withhoef) on them were also available during and prior to the event. Please call Vickie Daman at 547-8063 if you would like to purchase any of these items.

All proceeds go to helping the building fund.

With an early summer opening targeted at the new site on Carpenter Street, the Skate Park Fund-raising Committee is trying to raise $50,000 locally.

Current fund-raisers are sticker sales and window display cards. These are available at local businesses and from the students themselves. Gifts in kind of donated services and support would be greatly appreciated.

The community has embraced this project from the very beginning and has shown amazing financial support for this community project.

The fund-raising advisory group is a non-profit entity and all inquiries can be directed to 547-8063. It is made up of a group of parents of local enthusiasts, meet every other Tuesday at Flap Jack Restaurant.

A contestant in the snowboard challenge at Mount McSaubia catches big air during the event.

Council to decide on order in April with the MDEQ on the final line amount, with $20,000 being the bottom line goal.

"We were fortunate to end up there," he said.

Council will be considering the matter at its April 4 meeting.

According to Richard Shoemaker, senior environmental quality analyst with the MDEQ, all the department needs is the city's signature on the agreement.

Problems at the Wastewater Treatment Plant reach back over a three year period, which the city staff discovered last winter and then reported to the MDEQ.

An investigation by the MDEQ showed 31 total residual chlorine limit exceedences were reported to MDEQ as being in compliance.

It also stated that reports for 15 phosphorus results and 32 fecal coliform results were falsely reported to MDEQ. The report also stated that there were 27 days when monitoring didn't take place and other areas where proper protocol wasn't followed.

The plant also had problems with the pump.
